United Fund sets $76,000 '75 goal

Arlington Heights United Fund has set a fund-raising goal of $76,000 for its 1975 campaign.

Fund-raising activities will begin Oct. 6 and continue through the end of October.

Unlike past United Fund drives, this year there will be no door-to-door solicitation. Residents will receive two letters asking them to contribute to the United Fund.

Harold Harvey, general campaign chairman, said the door-to-door collections were eliminated because of the number of people needed for the solicitation. "It becomes a manpower problem when people are asked to do so many things in the community," he said.

TRUSTEE ALICE HARMS will be chairman of the residential fund-raising campaign. Other campaign chairmen are Doug MacArthur and James Schroer, commerce and industry; Harold Bell, government and payroll; John Biestek, professions; and John Fish, education

Last year's Arlington Heights United Fund drive raised $68,000, just short of its $70,000 goal. Money collected in Arlington Heights goes to a variety of Northwest suburban organizations including the Volunteer Service Bureau, Clearbrook Center, Boy and Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs and Omni House Youth Service Bureau.

Harvey said a total of $120,000 from the United Fund will be spent in Arlington Heights this year. "What we hope is that people will contribute $76,000 locally," he said. The rest of the money will come from the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy which also seeks funds during October.

The first letter to residents will be sent out early in October, Harvey said. A second follow-up letter will go out near the end of the month.

Kidnap victim arrested for jumping bail

The victim of an alleged kidnaping and beating Thursday was arrested by Arlington Heights police Friday on a bond forfeiture warrant.

Arrested was James W. Case, 20, of 918 A Jefferson Sq, Elk Grove Village. He is being held at County Jail pending a court appearance Sept. 19.

Police said Case failed to appear in court to answer charges after he was arrested in a drug case by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Two Arlington Heights men were arrested Thursday for allegedly kidnaping Case from his home and then beating him with a billy club in their apartment.

Charged with aggravated kidnaping, aggravated battery and unlawful restraint were Mark W. Beatty, 24, and Guy Crawford, 18, both of 2165 S. Tonne Rd. They are being held in lieu of $20,000 bond each.

Case told police he escaped from the apartment and found a ride to the Elk Grove Village police station. Elk Grove Village police took him to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and then notified Arlington Heights police.

Jim Hill decries celebrity status

Saturday

by TONI GINNETTI

The conversation around the umbrella table is dominated by the familiar melodic, bass voice. Close your eyes and you could be listening to the radio.

Then the soft, muffled staccato of drops creeps into the early evening and Jim Hill — radio personality and weekend televison weatherman — sticks his hand out beyond the umbrella.

"Yep, it's wet. That's rain all right."

A trite, "Monday morning quarterback" prediction?

No, just a remark from Jim Hill, suburbanite, another guy whose evening of relaxation in the quiet expanses of the backyard just got washed out.

"LET'S GO inside." Like a child drawn by the Pied Piper, one heeds the velvet-throated words and follows his commanding 6-foot-plus frame up the stairs into the split-level, Hoffman Estates home.

Meet Jim Hill, 45, family man, father of four daughters, and local celebrity — even though he won't admit the latter.

"Someone asked me for my autograph about 10 years ago," he said.

"Don't believe him," wife Mary chimed. "People recognize him very often. Probably the most horrifying thing is when we're eating in a restaurant and people are pointing at us."

She related an incident which occurred just the other day when the Hills went to the aid of a woman whose dog had been struck by a car.

2 school districts set tentative pacts

Teachers in two area elementary schools reached tentative contract terms with their school boards Friday, but at least one district seems to be a long way from a settlement. A fourth district appears to be near agreement on a new contract. Teachers and school boards in River Trails School Dist. 26 and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 reached tentative agreements. No contract terms were announced in either district. Spokesmen for the school board and teachers in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 indicated they may be near a settlement. However, The Herald has learned no settlement appears close in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54. Teachers are seeking a 15 per cent pay raise, while the school board has offered a total increase of 7.2 per cent.

Alleged kidnap victim charged

An Elk Grove Village man who allegedly was beaten and kidnaped Thursday was charged Friday by Arlington Heights police on a bond forfeiture warrant. James W. Case was allegedly kidnaped from his home by Mark Beatty and Guy Crawford, both of Arlington Heights. They have been charged with aggravated kidnaping, aggravated battery and unlawful restraint. Case was charged with failing to appear in court to answer charges in connection with a drug arrest made by the Metropolitan Enforcement Group. A third person was questioned in connection with the kidnaping, but was not charged by police.

300,000 unemployed in Chicago area

Jobless total hits record high

A record 300,000 persons in the Chicago area were out of work in August, the Illinois Dept. of Labor announced Friday.

The department said 9.6 per cent of the eligible work force had no jobs last month, an increase of .7 per cent, or 25,000 persons compared with figures compiled for July.

The statewide unemployment rate rose to a record 9.1 per cent. Some 457,000 persons were jobless across Illinois in August, the highest figure since the state began keeping unemployment records after World War II.

LABOR DEPARTMENT officials said they could not pinpoint the reasons for the high total of unemployed but pointed to the end of massive layoffs as a sign the rate may level off.

The department said Michigan had a higher increase in unemployment than Illinois. The Wolverine state reported unemployment rose from 12.9 to 15.1 per cent. Other industrial states had an increase in unemployment of the same proportions as Illinois, the department said.

Six major areas of Illinois reported decreases in their unemployment rates in August compared with July, while two sections, Bloomington-Normal and the St. Louis area, reported increases in jobless levels.

Champaign-Urbana, 4.5 per cent; Quad Cities, 6.8; Decatur, 10.8; Peoria, 5.0; Rockford, 10.7; and Springfield, 5.9; each had improvements in their job pictures. Unemployment in the Illinois section of the St. Louis area rose from 9.3 to 10.8 per cent. The Bloomington-Normal unemployment rate went from 4.3 to 4.9 per cent.

A RECENT REPORT by the Harris Bank, Chicago, blamed the depressed steel industry, among other factors, for the downward trend in employment. The report showed construction in May at a 23-year low and local industrial production declining continuously.

A bright spot, the report said, was that the July consumer price index locally rose at a slower rate than the national level. Chicagoans paid 8.3 more for goods and services in July empared with the national price average increase of 9.7 per cent.

In the suburbs, Schaumburg was third in number of housing permits issued over the first six months of 1975, despite a 12.7 per cent decline in general housing permits from the same period in 1974. Elk Grove Village lead in June and July in the value of housing permits issued, $19.7 million, while Des Plaines lead over-all and Elk Grove Village followed in second place as the biggest housing builder in the first six months.

The Harris Bank report said several industries in the Chicago area are beginning to show signs of recovery but that the steel industry "remains the major depressant in the local economy." However, the report concluded, orders in the steel industry have picked up and should lead to an increase in shipments, production and, eventually, employment.

Encephalitis victim out of hospital

A Northbrook woman recovering from a confirmed case of encephalitis was released Friday from Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

The 27-year-old woman, whom hospital officials would not identify, was released from the hospital in "improved condition." She had been admitted Aug. 2 for fever, headache and back pains, a hospital spokesman said.

Hospital officials said they did not know where she contracted the disease, but added she had visited the South Side of Chicago several weeks before showing symptoms. Most of the encephalitis cases have been contained in southern Cook Cotunty.

THE NORTHBROOK woman is one of 22 confirmed cases of encephalitis in Illinois and one of 16 in Cook County. She was one of several persons in Northwest suburban hospitals tested for the disease.

A 36-year-old Schaumburg man suspected to have encephalitis remained in serious condition Friday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. The ccondition of a 56-year-old Mount Prospect man suspected to have encephalitis Friday dropped from good to fair at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Twenty-two new confirmed, suspected and probable cases of the disease were reported in Illinois Friday with 12 new cases in Cook County.

Cases in the county include three confirmed other than the Des Plaines woman's in Evergreen Park and Chicago. Two probable instances of the disease were reported in Oak Lawn, and six persons were hospitalized in Oak Park, Oak Lawn, Chicago, Blue Island and Evergreen Park with suspected cases.

THE NUMBER of suspected, probable and confirmed cases of the disease has risen to 151 in Illinois and 98 in Cook Ccounty.

Crews from the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District continued Friday to spray for mosquitos throughout the Northwest suburbs. The Illinois Dept. of Agriculture has offered to help local departments spraying for mosquitos, whether or not health departments have licenses to spray.

"We've got a problem on our hands and we are going to deal with it in the most practical way possible," said Robert J. Williams, director of the department.

Symptoms of the encephalitis virus include headaches, high fever, disorientation and sometimes coma. Most victims recover spontaneously, but the disease can result in brain damage and death. Encephalitis is transmitted by mosquitos that have bitten birds carrying the disease.

Gunman robs Chicago bank—again

A gunman who was recognized by a teller as a bank robber escaped with about $4,000 in cash from the North Bank of Chicago Friday.

The man, with a mustache and goatee, was the same man who had help up the bank earlier this summer, the teller said. She told police she pushed a silent alarm button as the robber approached because she recognized him. The man escaped before police arrived.

Jail head sues critics

Winston E. Moore, embattled executive director of the County Corrections Dept., filed a $8.4 million damage suit in Circuit Court Friday against some of his strongest critics.

The 12-count suit alleged that Moore was libeled in news accounts based on information reported to have been supplied by the John Howard Assn., a prison reform group, and the Chicago Crime Commission.

Rock concert canceled

A rock concert planned for Aurora Downs Racetrack today was canceled Friday when a federal judge refused to issue an order that would have allowed the promoters to stage the event.

U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry refused to issue a temporary restraining order sought by Twin Productions Inc., of Chicago, and the firm said the concert would definitely not be held.

The concert, which had been scheduled for 2 p.m. today, was to feature the Allman Brothers and Seals and Crofts. Twin Productions said it had sold 12,000 tickets at $10 each.

Illinois briefs

Pharmacists demand cash

Southern Illinois pharmacists will fill prescriptions for welfare recipients on a cash only basis to protest cutbacks in their fees announced by the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid.

About 100 pharmacists in a meeting in Benton, voted to resume the practice of demanding cash payment, an action they took in early August, but discontinued Aug. 14.

Pharmacists had lifted the cash requirement after being assured by members of Gov. Daniel Walker's staff that a solution to the problem of reduced fees would be found by the end of August. Alan Morris, a spokesman for the pharmacists, said a solution has not been worked out.

Urbana teachers OK pact

Teachers in Urbana returned to classes Friday after approving a salary contract settlement calling for 11 per cent pay increases.

The action ended a strike that had started Aug. 25 for the 370 teachers and 6,200 students in the Urbana school system. Negotiators for the teachers and school board will resume contract talks Oct. 1 to complete unfinished contract points.

SIU separation nixed

Gov. Daniel Walker Friday vetoed a bill to separate the Edwardsville and Carbondale branches of Southern Illinois University.

The bill would have set up an independent board of trustees for the Edwardsville branch of SIU. Walker said the bill would have "undercut" the "comprehensive master planning process" of the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

On the day the bill was sent to the governor in June, Walker's Illinois Democratic Fund had received a $1,000 contribution from the SIU Foundation at Edwardsville. John S. Rendleman, president of SIU-Edwardsville, admitted he engineered the contribution, but said it had nothing to do with his efforts to have the governor approve the bill.

Equipment, growth spending declines

A 17.7 per cent decline in second quarter plans by the 1,000 largest U.S. manufacturers to spend money for expansion and new equipment is reported by the Conference Board, New York.

The $9.42 billion seasonally adjusted, set aside in the second quarter of 1975, compares with the $11.46 billion figure for the first quarter of the year. The appropriations are 42.5 per cent below the $16.38 billion peak registered in the third quarter of 1974, the steepest decline since the survey was started in 1953.

Capital appropriations are authorizations to spend money in the future. Capital expenditures are actual outlays for new plant and equipment. Appropriations represent the first step in the capital investment process.

Cumulus clouds cover most of Florida.

Super Slam eludes area residents

Two area residents failed to grab the top prize Friday in the Illinois State Lottery's Super Slam drawing, when a 23-year-old Chicago woman won the big bonanza of $1,000 a month for life.

Eva Wright of Elk Grove Village and Mike Buncik, a Paddock employe, qualified for the drawing but were not selected among the 12 Super Slam finalists.

Jeanne M. Wolf, Chicago, winner of $1,000 a month for life said she has a boy friend and works in a chemical laboratory. She was chosen from among 12 Super Slam qualifiers and is guaranteed a minimum of $400,000.

Wesley Omodt of La Crosse, Wis., won second prize of $25,000.

Helen E. Close, Peoria, took home third prize, $10,000.

The two $5,000 winners were Anthony P. Glad, David, Ill., and Carl R. Kester, Burlington, Wis.

Ford assassination attempt foiled

by RICHARD E. LERNER

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A woman standing an armlength away from President Ford in a crowd aimed a loaded pistol at him Friday but a Secret Service agent tackled the assailant — a follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson — and Ford, white and shaken, escaped the assassination attempt.

The .45-caliber automatic did not discharge and the President was not harmed.

Larry Buendorf, the agent who grabbed the woman, suffered a hand injury when the hammer on the weapon slammed shut. There were six bullets in the clip but none in the firing chamber.

Lynette Alice Fromme, 26, frail, five-foot-tall daughter of a Southern California stockbroker and Manson's chief disciple while he is in prison, was taken to the city jail. The red-haired woman called "Squeaky" was booked on a charge of attempting to kill the President.

Bail was set at $1 million after federal authorities said they felt she would attempt to flee if set free pending her trial.

Ford said later the assassination attempt would not deter him from mingling with the American people.

He's not working for the people! He's not your servant!" Miss Fromme shouted as she was handcuffed to a tree and then led away by Secret Service agents and police.

Ford said later he had seen "a hand coming up from behind several others in the front row and obviously there was a gun in that hand." He ducked and was hustled away from the scene near the 106-year-old California State Capitol Building.

"The color went out of his face," Karen Skelton, 14, who was standing next to Miss Fromme, said of the President.

FBI agents, Secret Service agents and police sped to the home where Miss Fromme lived with several other women. Two women, one dressed exactly like Miss Fromme in a flowing red robe and red turban, were taken into custody for questioning. The two identified themselves as "nuns," as did Miss Fromme, who said they were "cleansing the earth."

At the time of the assassination attempt, Ford was on his way to address the California Legislature on the subject of law and order and gun control.

On his return to the Senator Hotel near the capitol three hours after the incident, Ford said it "in no way will prevent me or preclude me from contacting the American people as I travel from one state to another."

"I was very thankful to the Secret Service for doing a superb job. But once I saw that they had done it I thought I better get on with the rest of the day."

White House Press Sec. Ron Nessen said Agent Buendorf seized the pistol with his right hand, grabbed Miss Fromme's arm with his left hand and twisted the weapon away. The agent turned her away from the President and forced her back into the crowd and then to the ground. Her red turban was torn off her head in the scuffle.

Buendorf suffered a slight cut on his right hand between the thumb and the first finger as a result of the hammer slamming shut. He handcuffed Miss Fromme to a tree. She was then turned over to Sacramento City Policeman Gaylin Peterson and Buendorf returned to his post of guarding the President.

Dr. William Lukash, Ford's personal physician, treated Buendorf.

Miss Fromme was the first female to join Manson's "family" when she was 16. She still has a red scar on her forehead from when she carved an "X" on it during Manson's Los Angeles murder trial four years ago. She was charged with murder in nearby Stockton in 1972, but was cleared because of insufficient evidence.

Manson, now 41, is at San Quentin Prison across the Golden Gate Bridge from San Francisco. He was transferred there from Folsom Prison near Sacramento earlier this summer because officials said he had trouble with other prisoners. Miss Fromme had been writing letters to Manson in recent months with the authorization of prison authorities.

A San Quentin spokesman said Manson's reaction to the assassination attempt and the arrest of Miss Fromme "wasn't too much." He added, "Manson didn't say anything." The spokesman said it was believed other convicts told him about it.

After remarking "what a beautiful day" to a bystander, Miss Fromme pulled the pistol and aimed it at Ford. And when she was subdued, she said:

"Easy, guys. Don't batter me. The gun didn't go off. Easy guys, I'm still. The gun didn't go off . . . The country is a mess. The man is not your president."

Miss Fromme's roommate, Sandra Good, telephoned the UPI bureau in Sacramenton shortly after the incident, warning, "If Ford continues to run this country against the law, your homes will be bloodier than the Tate-La Bianca homes and My Lai put together."

Gun could not have been fired, experts report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The .45 caliber automatic used in Friday's threat against President Ford in Sacramento, Calif., contained four bullets in the clip but none in the firing chamber, according to official reports.

In that condition, the gun could not have been fired, experts with the weapon say. The experts wonder whether Lynette Fromme, who pointed the weapon at the President, was aware of that.

The Colt .45, weighing nearly two-and-one-half pounds and almost nine inches long, takes some strength to cock and has built-in safety features.

Once a clip carrying six to nine bullets is inserted in the handle the entire barrel must be moved back over the butt to move a bullet into the empty chamber. This cannot be done if the main safety catch, alongside the trigger, is locked.

With a bullet in the chamber, the weapon is cocked and simultaneous pressure on the trigger and on a butt plate, by squeezing the hand, releases the hammer and fires the weapon.

Someone unfamiliar with the weapon would not necessarily know it is necessary to cock it after inserting the magazine in order to move the first round into the breech.

Larry Buendorf

Body guard from Midwest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Larry N. Buendorf, the Secret Service Agent who broke up an apparent attempt on President Ford's life Friday, is a former Navy jet pilot with nearly three years on the presidential protection force.

The Secret Service said Buendorf, 37, graduated from Mankato, Minn., State College in 1959, and joined the Secret Service in Chicago in June 1970.

He was assigned to protecting the president in December, 1972.

Buendorf flew jets in the Navy from 1959 to 1963.

Buendorf, son of Mrs. Ruby Buendorf, is a native of Wells, Minn., and was graduated from Wells High School in1955.

Ford—a man without fear

by HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has appeared to be one of the least security-minded presidential candidates in recent history to reporters who have accompanied him on the campaign trail.

Ford plunges into crowds with the enthusiasm of a man without fear.

He walks along airport fences using both hands to grab the hands of as many well-wishers as possible. Usually, he will not leave ana airport unless he has "worked the fence."

There have been recent telephone threats against Ford both in Dallas and in New York. But the crowds along the way since he stepped up his cross-country traveling have been quite friendly, especially compared with the hostility of the antiwar demonstrators who plague Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Lyndon B. Johnson during much of their terms.

Ford also likes to open up the top of his bullet-proof, bubble top limousine so he can stand and wave to the street crowds. He had been expected to do more of this as the campaign heats up, but the Secret Service may recommend the top be kept down.

The President has a good relationship with the Secret Service agents who protect him, and, while they can only recommend that he follow their security precautions, he nevertheless seems to take their advice when necessary.

As best observers can tell, Ford has faced no immediate danger during his earlier political trips comparable to Friday in Sacramento.

But the history of the assassinations of John F. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King and the shooting of Alabama Gov. George Wallace on the campaign trail in 1972 have made both the Secret Service and the press more wary during political campaign time.

When Ford is shaking hands with any group, he is surrounded on three sides by the crowd and on one side by Secret Service agents. A small "pool" of reporters also has been permitted to follow him closely.

Usually the President is exuberant at such times. But last Saturday, in Warwick, R.I., he appeared genuinely perturbed when he was mobbed and jostled by a street crowd he had stopped to greet on impulse.

"Take it easy," Ford kept saying amid the crush. "Take it easy, take it easy." He seemed shaken.

Ford has scheduled out of town trips for nearly every week through October to boost his presidential candidacy and to sell his policies.

Next Friday and Saturday he is slated to make public appearances in St. Louis, Mo., and the Dallas, Tex., area.

The following week he has scheduled a four-day journey to California again with appearances at Stanford University in the San Francisco area and speeches in the Los Angeles area.

There was no immediate indication whether he would cut down such trips for security reasons in the future.

Israel guards against holiday attacks

Israel strengthened its security precautions Friday to guard against possible Arab guerrilla attacks during the two-day holiday that ushered in Jewish New Year 5736. Israeli military sources said security forces went on holiday alert along the frontiers, particularly with Lebanon, and were reinforced with other army and border police units. Police warned the public to beware of suspicious objects.

In Lebanon, police reported sporadic shooting in Tripoli after a night of heavy fighting in which a police barracks was attacked and several shops bombed.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, meanwhile, said that if Congress rejects the plan to dispatch American civilians to the Sinai to guard the Middle East peace, Israel will find alternative means of implementing its interim peace agreement with Egypt.

Portuguese leader Goncalves ousted

Pro-Communist Gen. Vasco Goncalves stepped down from power in Portugal Friday in the face of a threat of civil war by the moderate army and air force leaders. A communique at the end of the a showdown meeting of the powerful armed forces assembly said the former prime minister has decided against accepting the post of armed forces chief to which he was named by Portuguese Pres. Francisco da Costa Gomes. Goncalves' ouster coincided with a major defeat for the pro-Communists in the ruling military regime. It came at the end of a meeting boycotted by army and air force moderates who had been demanding his dismissal.

Government overthrow in Sudan fails

Rebel army officers staged a coup against Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiry Friday but were crushed within hours by loyalist troops who stormed their strongholds and seized their badly wounded leader. It was the second unsuccessful attempt in four years to topple the 45-year-old Numeiry and the government launched a crackdown on the opposition.

Mail rate increase delayed

The Postal Service Friday bowed to public outcry and announced a delay in mail rate increases until after Christmas. The minimum cost of sending a first class letter then will go up from 10 cents to 13. Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar announced the new rate "most likely" will go into effect the week after Christmas, sparing Americans millions of dollars in the cost of exchanging holiday greetings. Sharp protests to any pre-Christmas boost had come from the public, Congress and the greeting card industry.

Violence erupts in busing controversy

Isolated violence broke out Friday in Louisville, Ky. during the second day of racial busing under the nation's largest new school integration court order, but a fledgling pupil boycott appeared to ease. Thirteen persons were arrested Thursday night and early Friday at an antibusing demonstration in a shopping center across from a suburban high school, while two more persons were arrested outside the school Friday afternoon as buses of black students departed at the end of the school day.

9.1% out of work in Illinois

Rate of inflation at 9.6%

The nation's recovery from the recession is being accompanied by high rates of inflation and unemployment, according to key government reports Friday.

In separate reports, the Labor Dept. said unemployment remained at 8.4 per cent in August and wholesale prices rose 0.8 per cent, or at annual rate of 9.6 per cent.

The August increase followed a 1.2 per cent rise in July, making it the first time since last fall the wholesale price index rose two months in a row.

In Illinois, unemployment jumped to a record 9.1 per cent in August with unemployment increases being recorded in the six-county Chicago area and in East St. Louis and Bloomington-Normal areas, the Dept. of Labor reported.

"On the plus side," said Donald Johnson, the department director, the six other major labor areas of the state showed improvement in their labor picture.

Johnson said the 9.1 per cent unemployment figure meant 457,000 persons were unemployed in August. He said it was the highest monthly figure recorded in Illinois since unemployment statistics were first kept after World War II.

"The August rate is an increase of .7 per cent over the July figure of 8.4 per cent and means that a record 457,000 are out of work," he said.

Unemployment rose to 9.6 per cent in the Chicago area from a July rate of 8.9 per cent indicating that approximately 25,000 more workers lost jobs in August, according to the seasonally adjusted figures.

While unemployment was expected to continue to be high during the recovery, many economists were concerned about the surge in retail and wholesale prices back to near or above 10 per cent.

"Clearly," said Irwin Kellner of Manufacturers Hanover bank, "if the price indexes continue to rise at the double-digit pace of the last few months, the fledgling recovery stands a good chance of aborting by the beginning of the year."

Commissioner Julius Shiskin of the Labor Statistics Bureau said the bright spot in the unemployment situation was the rise of 750,000 in the number of persons employed.

Shiskin cited "a very strong rise in factory employment" of 210,000. "The job losers who bore the brunt of the recession were adult males in heavy industry," Shiskin said."As the recovery proceeds, they are getting their jobs back."

Shiskin said, however, the continued high rate of inflation was "something to worry about."

The most significant increase in wholesale prices came in industrial commodities, which make up more than 70 per cent of the prices measured. Fuel prices alone rose 2.9 per cent.

Author Algren fighting eviction

• Author Nelson Algren is fighting a legal battle to prevent his landlord from evicting him from a $275-a-month apartment in Paterson, N.J. The landlord won't say why, but Algren, formerly of Chicago, said he suspected the trouble apparently resulted from his involvement in the case of former middleweight boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, who is serving a life sentence for a triple shotgun murder in Paterson in 1966 and seeking a new trial. Algren is planning a book on Carter.

Ask Andy

Cobra deadly but handsome snake

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Greg Sparkman, 10, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Canada, for his question:

DOES THE FEMALE COBRA HAVE A HOOD?

It takes an expert to tell a male from a female cobra. And to be on the safe side, the expert may wait until the mating season. Then the male and female cobra both spread their hoods, rear up and perform a graceful dance.

The deadly cobras are handsome snakes, at home in many parts of Africa and Asia. There are several species, ranging from 5 to 10 feet long. They come in various colors, but in all species the males and females have wide scaly hoods, marked with a design that often looks like a pair of spectacles.

The famous cobra hood is formed from a flap of scaly skin on each side of the neck. It is stiffened by extensions of long, movable ribs that work somewhat like ribs of an umbrella. When the critter is relaxed or dozing to digest a big dinner, the two halves of his hood are folded down to his sides.

When this deadly snake is scared or excited, he or she rears up. The umbrella ribs spread out to the sides, and the threatening hood expands. At this point, nobody in cobra country stays around to wonder whether the menacing snake is a male or a female. For the cobra, male or female, is all set to strike.

The cobra's teeth are rather short, and he tends to chew the wound as his deadly venom is injected deep into the flesh. In India, where cobras are common, it is estimated that 10,000 persons perish from these venomous bites every year. The poison attacks the nervous system, and the victim may perish in 15 minutes.

Several large and small cobras live in Africa, in regions north and south of the Sahara Desert. There, also, they claim many human victims, especially children and others who go around barefoot and wear light clothing. Sometimes a cobra strikes from the bushes without provocation. Certainly these snakes are not on our list of desirable neighbors, though they do keep down the ratty rodent populations.

The cobra's mortal enemy is the dare devil mongoose. This small furry mammal is quicker-than-quick. He darts to and fro, tempting the snake to strike again and again. At last the snake becomes weary. Then the triumphant mongoose pounces on the cobra's hood and gives him a fatal bite in tte back of the neck.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Danny Friedman, 9, of Willowdale, Ont., Canada, for his question:

HOW FAST DOES THE EARTH REVOLVE?

Some people stay at home and complain that they never go anywhere. This is downright impossible because all of us travel along with the world. And our dizzy globe swings around in several different directions at the same time. Once every year it revolves in a vast orbit around the sun.

The earth's orbit around the sun is a round path, almost 600 million miles long. It has to travel very fast to get all the way around in one year. In December, when the orbit path is slightly closer to the sun, it revolves a little faster. In July we are slightly farther from the sun, and the earth revolves a little slower than usual. Its average speed around the sun is 66,600 miles per hour — which is faster than 1,000 miles a minute. Everybody, even the stay-at-homes, travels at this fantastic speed with the orbiting earth.

Two French film makers to resurrect 'Superman'

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — A pair of 26-year-old French-based movie producers will resurrect Superman to heights he never reached when soaring over Metropolis in the old film serial and comic strip.

Ilya Salkind and Pierre Spengler spent $3 million for film rights to Superman for the next 25 years.

They will lavish $15 million on the picture which will begin filming Feb. 29, Superman's traditional birthday.

But the unusual aspect of this movie project is that Salkind-Spengler have taken a blood oath to make "Superman" serious drama.

It is no laughing matter to the young producers. They demonstrated an instinct for the financial jugular last year by squeezing two pictures out of one when they made "The Three Musketeers."

AFTER COMPLETING the picture the boys decided there was enough film for two movies. With a few added scenes, "The Four Musketeers" was born.

The stars, naturally, were outraged to discover they had made two pictures for the price of one. But Salkind-Spengler gave the stars a percentage of the profits and harmony was restored.

They will reap $110 million from the original $9 million investment.

Now the young rascals are thinking about tacking both "Musketeers" together and releasing a third version.

Profits from "Musketeers" have enabled them to budget "Superman" at $15 million.

"This will be a straight dramatic film," said the bearded Spengler, who speaks five languages, all with a foreign accent, including his native French. "This is not going to be campy."

MARIO PUZO author of "The Godfather" was hired at great cost to write the script.

Salkind said, "It will be a psychological adventure drama with elements of '2001, A Space Odyssey,' 'Earthquake' and 'Romeo and Juliet.' "

"We are retaining certain bits of Superman mythology," Spengler added, "like his costume and his disguise as Clark Kent. Instead of being a reporter he will be a TV anchorman like Walter Cronkite."

Asked how they expected audiences to take "Superman" seriously, Spengler said, "If they believe 'The Exorcist' and James Bond they are ready for a serious picture about Superman."

God knows Salkind and Spengler are taking a sober view of the film. They made a list of the world's 11 top box office stars from which they will cast Superman and his adversary, Luthor.

"The two stars will be chosen from Clint Eastwood, Burt Reynolds, Robert Redford, Steven McQueen, Charles Bronson, Paul Newman, Al Pacino, James Caan, Marlon Brando, Dustin Hoffman and Gene Hackman," said Salkind, and he wasn't kidding.

BOTH MEN ARE supremely confident they will sign two of these heavyweights. Doubtless money will have everything to do with it.

They will hire an unknown for the role of Lois Lane, Superman's ageless girlfriend.

"We will start the film with Superman's birth on the planet Krypton," said Spengler. "It gives an aura of acceptability to the whole story."

But Puzo and the boys have knocked off that old line, "It's a bird! It's a plane! It's SUPERMAN!"

"The best special effects men in the industry will be hired," added Salkind, "to make it look like he really is flying.

"We are absolutely taking ourselves and this picture seriously. And we are confident audiences and critics will, too." (United Press International)

JIM HILL'S FACE is a familiar part of the Saturday news on WMAQ-TV. Hill is the station's weekend weatherman. At home in Hoffman Estates, Hill shuns the notion that he is a local celebrity.

TV's Hill dislikes 'suburbanite' tag

We came here to get something; it wasn't to escape the city : Hill

The hysterical woman stopped crying only for a moment when she looked up and saw Hill approaching.

"She looked up at me and said, 'My God, you're Jim Hill,' then she just started crying again," Hill said.

Hill dismissed the recognition with a shrug. "I never think about it. I don't feel anything about that kind of thing. I don't really enjoy that kind of thing. I enjoy human contact. That celebrity thing is unnecessary."

At home, Hill is not much different than most family men when helping himself to a drink, greeting his daughters' friends, lounging in the living room, and contending with family cat, Lily, for his kitchen chair.

BUT DON'T call Hill "a typical suburbanite." Although he's lived 15 years in his Hoffman Estates corner lot abode, a house nestled among trees and greenery, Hill begs off from the "suburbanite" tag.

"We don't live in the suburbs to get away from something. We came here to get to something. It wasn't to escape the city.

"I don't like the attitude of some suburbanites that they are better," Hill said. "The suburbs need the city."

When Hill, a transplanted Chattanooga, Tenn. native, came north to Chicago to join WMAQ radio and television 17 years ago, he and his family found in Hoffman Estates the type of community they were seeking.

Now, however, Hill said the city has "reached" the suburbs.

"When we came here it was cornfields," he explained. "Now drive down any street and there's the city. Everybody just accepts it."

LIFE AT HOME has changed somewhat this year for Hill, who in January fell victim to a programming change at WMAQ radio. He lost his show but retained his job as Saturday weatherman for the station's television outlet. Now most of his time is spent planning new careers, including that of a freelance commercial announcer.

As a weatherman, Hill's profession developed almost from a hobby.

"I came to feel that a guy out front in the public eye should know as much as he can about everything," he said. "Weather is just the first and foremost thing. Nothing else comes close because it affects everyone in terms of safety, future plans — even grocery store prices.

"I had wanted to do sports (at the Chattanooga station) and I was really ticked that they didn't give it to me. But I felt that a radio announcer, if he's going to be a professional, should start with weather, so I chose that."

Though his forecasting is aired only on weekends, Hill's work recently was commended by the Chicago National Weather Service.

EXPOSURE as a media personality often brings requests for personal appearances, a practice Hill said he prebadget counselor.

fers to keep to a minimum unless a worthy cause is involved.

"I've turned down an awful lot of things, but I've never turned down anything if I think it can be of help to someone."

Hill may tell you he is not "a joiner" in local civic groups ("I was at one point involved in everything and I got awfully sick of it"), but after some family prodding he will admit his involvement in local groups — like the Northwest Suburban Boy Scouts, for which he serves as weather merit

He may tell you he doesn't believe in unlisted phone numbers, though both he and his wife admit their privacy isn't always as secure as they would like.

"I try to keep it private," Mary Hill said of their family's life. "It's not nearly as private as I would like. People don't realize how you feel."

BUT HILL SPOKE candidly about dealing with the public. "If people want to hear me swear, I don't care.

"Just because you're on television doesn't mean you're different," he said. "What is a celebrity? I don't see myself that way. I don't like the idea of me or anybody else, just because they're on the screen, having people look at them and say 'big person.'

"It's nice to be recognized. Everybody likes to be seen as a nice guy. But you can put Godzilla on television long enough and people will respond positively.

"That bothers me about television, that it sets you apart," he said."The celebrity status is the thing I'm against. We're all in this together, this thing called life. It starts and it ends."

Aldrich Barrington Hills choice

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich has emerged as the top contender for police chief of Barrington Hills.

Aldrich, a 23-year veteran of the Arlington Heights department, was termed the "top choice" by a member of the four-man selection committee.

"He would be a real asset to the village and to the job," said Schaumburg Police Chief Martin J. Conroy, selection committee member.

ALDRICH CONFIRMED he had met with three members of the committee, but declined to say how close he was to striking a contract agreement with Barrington Hills.

"I still have to talk with the village president (John C. Denton). He's on vacation now and won't be back until next week. I hope to talk with him then," Aldrich said.

He said salary and job benefits would have to be discussed with Denton when they meet.

"I can't say how close we are until I speak with him (Denton)," he said.

ALDRICH indicated a final decision may have to await action by the full village board of Barrington Hills.

Conroy said that Aldrich had most impressed other committee members of the 25 applicants seeking the position.

Other committee members trustees, Jack Butler and Alexander MacArthur, former chairman of the Illinois State Racing Board, were not available for comment Friday.

Conroy said the committee is advisory only and that Denton will make the final selection.

Aldrich joined the Arlington Heights department in 1952 and was promoted to sergeant in 1959. Promoted to captain in 1969, Adrich is in charge of field services which encompasses the traffic and patrol divisions. He also has experience in the detective and juvenile bureaus.

HE ACTED AS director of the Northwest Police Academy in Arlington Heights for seven years. The academy provides training for 20 suburban police departments.

Aldrich graduated from Northwestern University Traffic Institute in 1966.

Jack Aldrich

Aldrich, 50, is married and has 12 children.

A lieutenant has been acting police chief in Barrington Hills since the resignation in June of Ralph Hummel. Hummel is now serving as a special investigator until February at the rank of lieutenant.

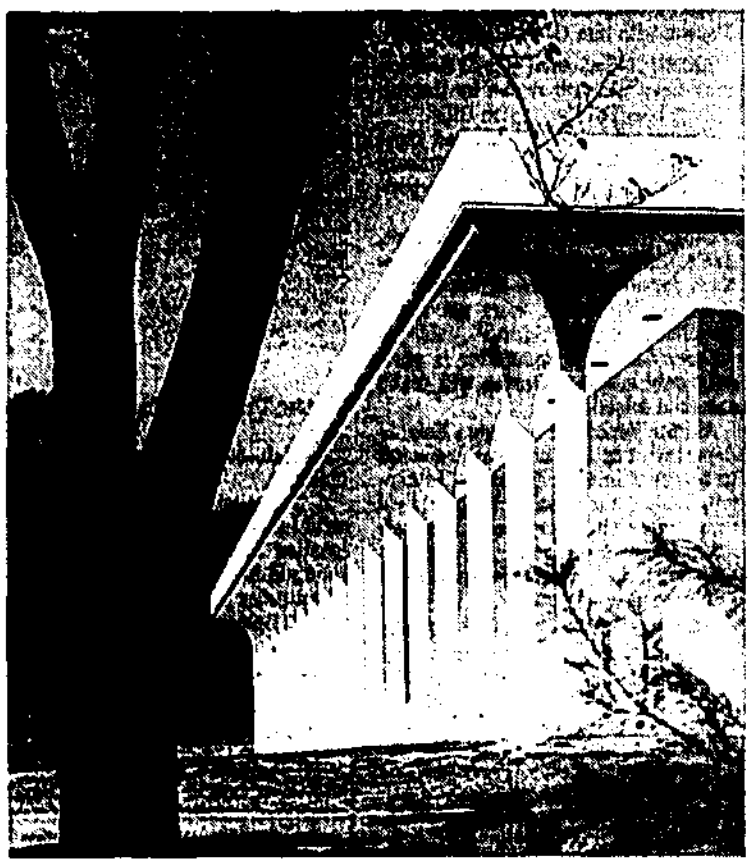
Museum an architectural treasure



Mitchell Art Museum, Mount Vernon, Ill.

Is there a town anywhere in the U. S. which hasn't planned some sort of Bicentennial fete? The attractions range from re-enactments of the Battle of Bunker Hill to the placing of monuments, demonstrations of goose plucking, organizations of singing groups and, in our town, a bed race.

Let me hasten to explain. The bed race is a newly added feature of the annual Corn Boil and Watermelon Festival, and this is how it goes: Four night-clothed persons of the male gender will propel a full-sized bed on rollers down a prescribed course, said bed being laded with a (presumably) attractive night-clothed person of the female persuasion. Now, I suppose if some ERA types wanted to get sticky about that, they may reverse the rollers and the rollees.

EVERY TOWN which has any sort of claim to fame, from a historic marker on the highway to a designated famous building, is dusting off its treasure and getting into the act. In our town, we have the Appellate Court House, a beautiful Italianate structure with twin curved wrought iron stairways and portico from which Abraham Lincoln once spoke. The building is floodlit at night and makes an impressive sight at the end of the main drag, where all traffic bears around it, and visitors can't help noticing the pride of the town.

Another architectural dream here in Mount Vernon is the new Mitchell Art Museum, one of the most nearly perfect proportioned buildings I've seen, combining modern design with a stately columned facade and huge bronze doors which are works of art in themselves. The museum is situated in a lovely little park and bird sanctuary, and some most impressive shows have been hung during the three years the galleries have been open.

BESIDES THE visiting artists' works, which are changed about every two months, the Mitchell Art Museum has a permanent collection of paintings, sculptures, marble statuary, silver, orientalia and a fine group of Boehm and Doughty bird porcelains. A great deal of planning went into this building, evident in such details as the very practical wormy chestnut paneling which covers all interior walls. More nail holes only enhance its appearance!

In Salem, Ill. (not New Salem), north of here, is the boyhood home and museum devoted to William Jennings Bryan, where he was born and spent his first 15 years. Then there's the popcorn capital of the world, Ridgway; the first bank in Illinois at Shawneetown; and Metropolis, Home of Superman —.honestly! The famous Koster Indian excavations are but an hour's drive from us, and we have decided to see those real antiques on a weekend soon.

The vast Shawnee National Forest covers the entire bottom of the state, and it just may be your year to explore Illinois.

GOING THROUGH any of the small towns in Little Egypt you will come upon at least one, usually several, antiques shops. I have several maps and listings of these but am not sure how up to date they are. If you are visiting any particular area in central through southern Illinois, however, I will send you the names of the shops I do have, upon receipt of your SASE. And always ask one dealer where others are located, too; usually they are happy to share information, unless you happen upon a crab.

Speaking of the crab family, after a recent heavy rain, the ditch in front of our house was riddled with deep holes which looked as if someone had poked a large broom handle into the wet clay earth. "Craw-dads," announced the man next door. "You never see 'em because they come out at night."

That's Southern Illinois: crawdads, front porches and front porch swings, C. B. band radios, miles-long man-made lakes, beautiful architecture, both old and new, and Bicentennial bed races.

Linda Kent Aug. 9 bride

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Boyer

Westminster Presbyterian Church in Rockford was the setting for the Aug. 9 wedding of Linda Kent and Pat Boyer. The bride and her family, the Carl Kents, are former Rockford residents now living in Arlington Heights. The groom is the son of the Melvin Boyers of Mackinaw, Ill.

Linda and Pat met at the University of Wisconsin, Whitewater, where they are starting their senior year.

The bride chose her sister, Becky, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Becky, and three of Linda's college classmates, Sue Ford, Barbara Andersen and Linda Mover. Mark Dittman, another student at Whitewater, was best man, with Pat's three brothers, Ed, Mike and Don, and Mike Inmann, also at Whitewater, as groomsmen.

CHARLES KENT, brother of the bride, composed and sang the wedding music to guitar accompaniment.

The bride's ensemble was a white peau de soie gown with lace trim and a lace cap with a long veil. She carried a single white rose. Her attendants each carried a single yellow rose and wore multicolored pastel jersey dresses.

After a reception in the church hall, the couple spent a honeymoon at Green Lake, Minn.

Garden reception follows wedding

Following their wedding Aug. 9 Barbara Ann Cutler and R. Jeff Carlson greeted 150 guests at a garden buffet dinner reception under a yellow and white tent. The reception was held at the Arlington Heights home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Carlson.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Cutler, Palatine, and Jeff were married at 3 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church of Palatine in a double ring service. Barbara wore an organza gown with daisy braid and lace trim. Her yellow roses, white daisies and stephanotis were carried in a nosegay.

MAID OF HONOR was Barbara's sister, Karen, who was in light powder blue voile with cotton lace trim. Bridesmaids, in green, yellow and lavender, were Nancy Huffine and Christine Pancratz of Palatine and Marge Nolan, Elmhurst. They wore white picture hats and carried baskets of summer flowers, including daisies to match their gowns.

Al Massie, Rosemont, was best man, and groomsmen were the groom's brother, Steve, and his cousins, Bob Moran, Deland, and Bill Stark, Hoffman Estates. Ushers were the bride's cousins, Eric Secoy, Normal, and Bill Cutler, Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Jeff Carlson

A '69 GRADUATE of Fremd High and a '73 graduate of Illinois State University with a degree in education, Barbara is a learning disabilities teacher's aide in Palatine Hills Junior High. Jeff, a '63 graduate of Arlington High, studied at the University of Illinois Circle Campus and is with Flick-Reedy, Bensenville.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Mackinac Island, Mich., and are now at home in Buffalo Grove.

Jana Oswald wed at St. Raymond's

Jana and Jorge Pesante are making their home in Palatine after a two-week honeymoon in Hawaii and Los Angeles. They were married Aug. 9 in St. Raymond Catholic Church, home parish of the bride's family, the K. G. Oswalds of Mount Prospect.

The former Jana Oswald and her bridegroom, son of the D. Pesantes of Arlington Heights, both work in Palatine. She is with Union Oil Co., he is with G&R Tool Shop.

They exchanged vows and rings in a 3:30 p.m. service, then greeted 250 guests at a dinner-dance reception at the Navarone in Elk Grove.

A WHITE PEAU DE SOIE gown with Venetian lace bodice and cuffs studded in pearls was Jana's choice for her wedding ensemble. With it she wore a matching lace-edged veil and carried white carnations and stephanotis interspersed with red rosebuds.

Leesa Oswald was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a pale blue halter dress and jacket trimmed in a plaid of several shades of blue. A dozen white carnations, red rosebuds and blue baby's breath were in her bouquet.

There were four bridesmaids, dressed identically to the maid of honor: Debbie Gilbert of Palatine, Judy Harvey of Rolling Meadows, Leigh Heffner of Arlington Heights and Jean Kleinhammer of Mount Prospect. Their bouquets contained a dozen white carnations, blue daisies and deep blue baby's breath.

BEST MAN WAS Jorge's brother, Ruben, and groomsmen were Doug Ward, LaCrosse, Wis.; Russ Miller, Palatine; Jorge Franco, the groom's cousin from Lombard; Todd Opela, Arlington Heights; and Ken Oswald, the bride's brother.

Jana is a graduate of Prospect High School and Harper College. Jorge graduated from Arlington High.

Mr. and Mrs. Jorge Pesante

Newlyweds feted twice

Two receptions, one at the Arlington Park Hilton the afternoon following their wedding and the other in the Holiday Inn at Moorestown, N. J., two weeks after their marriage, feted Sherron Marie Hansen and Joseph F. Gibialante.

Sherron, daughter of the R. E. Hansens, Arlington Heights, and Joseph, son of the Frank J. Gibialantes, Audubon, N. J., were married Aug. 9 in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, in a 10 a.m. nuptial mass. After receiving 80 guests at the Hilton, the couple left for a week's honeymoon at Elbo Beach, Bermuda. They then settled in Lindenwold, N. J., and on Aug. 23 received more than 100 guests in Moorestown.

For the double ring service Sherron chose an Empire gown of organza with Venise lace. Her fingertip veil was held by a Juliet cap of the lace, and she carried pink roses, white miniature carnations and baby's breath.

SALLY ANN BREISCH, La Crosse, Wis., was her sister's matron of honor, and maid of honor was Sherron's sister, Susan, Chicago. Bridesmaids were her sister, Sandra, and the groom's sister, Michele; flower girl was Kristen Ahlstrom, a 4-year-old cousin from Manchester, Mo. Kristen's father, E. Wayne Ahlstrom, uncle of the bride, was soloist.

The maids wore green, pink and lilac print gowns with floor-length capes. Pale green picture hats and bouquets of asters, carnations, poms and roses completed their ensembles. Kristin was in pink taffeta with white chiffon overlay, and she carried a basket of matching flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Gibialante

Anthony Paesani, Audubon, was best man, and groomsmen were Thomas Harrington, Berkely Heights, N. J.; Thomas Johnson, Carnegie, Pa.; and Thomas DeConna, Mountainside, N. J.

The new Mrs. Gibialante, a '71 graduate of Arlington High School, received a degree this spring from the College of Steubenville, (Ohio), and is certified to teach elementary and special education. Joseph received his degree from the College of Steubenville in '74 and has been on the teaching staff at Haddonfield High School as a math instructor and assistant basketball coach.

Happenings

Roaring '20s party

A "Roaring 20s" party is planned for next Friday by St. Francis Chapter of Naim, a group of Catholic widowed. The event will be held at Arlington Heights Knights of Columbus Hall, 15 N. Hickory, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

A floor show by The Dancing Darlings is a special attraction, and music for dancing will be provided by the Music Men.

Tickets are $5 per person, with a cash bar. Information, Barbara Csoka, 358-7958, or Jim Bouvier, 526-7059.

Boss Night

"Hail to the Chief" is the theme of this year's Boss Night for O'Hare Ten Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. A dinner will be held Tuesday, Sept. 16, at Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines, to honor the bosses.

Howard Olsen, former Palatine village president, will be guest speaker, and a "Boss of the Year" will be selected by judges from the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

In recognition of the Bicentennial year, the chapter has chosen this night to raise funds for its annual scholarship given to a local woman student or business woman seeking further education. Two afghans and an American flag pillow are prizes for the party.

ORT auction

Far Acres Chapter, Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training), presents its second annual evening auction tonight at the American Legion Hall, 121 N. Douglas, Arlington Heights.

Items for all members of all families will be auctioned. Toys, sports equipment, dinners for two, escape weekends, theater tickets, appliances, furniture and clothing are among the more than 300 items up for bid.

Items may be previewed at 7 with the auction starting at 8.

Money raised from the auction will go towards maintaining ORT schools, providing books, curriculum, teachers, and other equipment to run ORT's vocational training program. There is a donation of $1.50. Information, 537-0276 or 394-0257.

Beaver brown bag best to store silver

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I inherited a lovely silver tea service from my grandmother and also a silver tray service from a distant relative. I'd like to leave these to my immediate family. Is there a way to keep them beautiful and shining without polishing and "rubbing one's knuckles off?" Surely jewelers and silversmiths have a better way. —Mrs. C. W. Hemmer

Silver left out for display will tarnish and there's no way to get it off other than using a sturdy arm. Put away properly, silver will not tarnish — and "properly" means wrapped in a specific tarnish-proof tradename bag. It is beaver brown in color. There are other bags (not brown), which are fine for a while, but when the absorption limit for sulfur is reached, tarnish follows. Get the beaver brown bags.

Dear Dorothy: How do you prepare parsley or chives for winter use? —Mrs. E. L. Lerding.

I dry parsley and freeze chives. I wash the chives, cut them up into tiny circles and put them in cottage cheese cartons — or buy them this way. They stay perfectly and can be used just as if they were fresh. As for parsley, I put the washed sprigs in a foil dish and put the dish in the oven after it's been in use and has cooled off a little. A few days of this kind of treatment and the parsley is ready to go into a jar with a screw-on top. Celery leaves get the same treatment.

Dear Dorothy: When I make "rocks," I spread the dough out on a lightly buttered cookie sheet and bake for 15 to 20 minutes at 350 degrees. They are then cut into squares while hot. If I want them to be thin, I use a half batch per sheet. —Dixon MacQuiddy Rocks are my favorite cookie and I might try them more often if they didn't haven't to be dropped just-so from a spoon.

Dear Dorothy: I'm writing to tell you how I got rid of the weevil problem. A neighbor suggested I put sticks of gum — any kind — on the shelves. I did clean out everything first and put certain foods in jars with screw-top covers, but it's been 15 years and I've had no trouble since. Every once in a while I replace the old gum with fresh pieces. It's certainly much easier than spraying. —L.H.H.

I'm not about to scoff at your chewing gum bit. After all, we know that insects give certain plant odors a wide berth and gum may have a smell that repels weevils. I'm sure of one thing. You're a good housekeeper.

Dear Dorothy: My beautiful new carpeting had the worst kind of static electricity. Finally, the dealer suggested I use the kind of fabric softener recommended for use in dryers. I was shocked how rapidly it helped. —Julia Coverly

Can't help punning. You got unshocked, didn't you?

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Traveling book store at Randhurst Mall

The Better Homes and Gardens Traveling Book Store will be at Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect Monday through Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day.

Sponsored by Kroch and Brentano's the bookstore-on-wheels will arrive filled with hundreds of idea books featuring such subjects as gardening, decorating, cooking, sewing and home repair. All books will be for sale.

Visitors will receive free a 28 page booklet, "Shortcut Cooking" featuring many time saving recipes.

Sorority offers student grants

Mrs. Kenneth Suberlak, president of Nu Rho Chapter Delta Theta Tau Sorority, announced today that the sorority this year will give more than $10,000 for educational grants in the specific field of guidance and counseling.

Grants, based on scholastic ability and financial need, are awarded to college students, who will be doing junior, senior or graduate work. Anyone interested in more information or securing application for a grant may call Mrs. Suberlak, 894-4641.

Delta Theta Tau has been associated with this project since 1959 and has given a total of $162,800 to 339 students throughout the United States. This includes a grant by Nu Rho Chapter to Patricia Morris, Schaumburg, who graduated in June from Northeastern Illinois University.

Applications are reviewed by the philanthropy committee of the sorority at its meeting in February and applications for the summer session 1976 or the academic year 1976-77 should be postmarked no later than Jan. 15, 1976.

PAPER CLIP JEWELRY

Get clipping and make a necklace and bracelet for yourself or a friend. You can make this paper clip jewelry in a jiffy.

Clip together a chain long enough to go around your neck (about 24 clips). Attach some short dangly paper clip chains on one side.

Cut squares of Contac paper ¾-inch by 1-inch. Peel off the back and wrap one piece around each clip. Metallic type Contac paper looks best. Now you may want to make a matching paper clip bracelet the same way.

ARE YOU READY FOR A DIFFERENT FORM OF "CHURCH?"
(So were we — five years ago)

WE —
— began as an experimental ministry of the Lutheran Church in America.
— are composed of people who insist on doing our own thinking, especially in matters of religion — believe we offer what traditional churches value, but aren't structured to provide.
— emphasize communication, not indoctrination.
— are a natural humanizing community, not a radical sect.
— strive for intellectual and emotional genuineness.
— are ecumenical, serving the NW Suburbs.
— trust the family as the best vehicle for education.

INTERESTED? We hope so. Let me tell you our story at a no-obligation meeting in my home, Sunday, September 14, at 7:00 p.m. Phone me at 359-5191 for my address and more information.

World soon must face the problem

Shall some eat—others starve?

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

The world food crisis — in and out of newspaper headlines — has raised a lot of social, economic and political questions.

It also has raised a problem for religious ethicists: how to respond to the proposed triage or lifeboat ethic solutions

Triage was the word used during World War I among Allied medical teams to determine priority in the treatment of the wounded. It stems from a dividing of the wounded into three groups — those likely to die no matter what was done, those likely to live even without immediate medical treatment and those who could survive if they received immediate medical treatment.

UNDER THE triage theory, the world population and food crisis have created, for affluent countries such as the United States, a similar situation.

A statement by the Environmental Fund, signed by such notables as writer Isaac Asimov, businessman J. Paul Getty, philosophy professor Sidney Hook, poet Archibald MacLeish, Time, Inc., president Henry Luce III, Readers Digest President DeWitt Wallace and labor leader Leonard Woodcock, suggests that while "no one really likes triage" it may be necessary.

The United States, the statement said, did not have a moral obligation to provide for the world.

The implication is that if population continues to grow unchecked, a triage like condition will emerge in which demands for food are impossible to meet. A proper response to that, some argue, might be a "no nonsense realism" in which aid is concentrated on those countries most likely to survive.

DR. LARRY Rasmussen, professor of ethics at Wesley Seminary, Washington, D.C., in a paper for a continuing education seminar at the seminary, raised the question of what triage meant for Christian ethics.

He suggests the triage ethic might have a place in Christian ethics as "the ethics of last resort," an ethics of necessity.

At the same time, however, he argues that "triage and lifeboat ethics must be resisted with all the force we can muster."

"Until we have made every effort to treat all the wounded we will not know whether genuine triage conditions exist," he said.

"In the food crisis, that means that until we have ourselves undergone those basic changes of life-style and institutional arrangements, we will not know the carrying capacity of the planet.

"Therefore our task is not assigning the triage tags of fate to groups one, two and three; it is institutionalizing the sharing ethic."

IF GENUINE triage conditions do come about, Rasmussen said, it raises issues that go to the heart of the Christian faith — the meaning of the Gospel and the "moral and theological status of human life."

Rasmussen does not answer those questions but leaves them for the community of faith to respond to:

"Does the Gospel mean an imperative of Christian simplicity that, facing stark human needs, respond without condition or qualification, without concern for anything but meeting basic subsistence needs, however short term the alleviation? Or does the Gospel mean sitting down and counting the costs, keeping watch on the common good by calcuating as best we can the long-term consequences of our actions?"

ON THE STATUS of human life, he asks: "If there is a meaning and value in God that surpasses even survival itself, does it say anything to food crisis policy?

"If not all can live, are there criteria rooted in ultimate meaning and value that can aid us in determining who should live? Or is the very making of distinctions among lives . . . a violation of an ultimate meaning grounded in caring?"

For the Christian ethicist, the tragedy may well be that those questions never get addressed by the churches.

Lifting weights can build your strength

by Lawrence E. Lamb

I am 18 years old and in good health. I exercise with weights. I am confused about the right way to accomplish my goals. I want to increase strength without excessive muscle weight with a few repetitions, or a lesser amount with more repetitions?

You will get different opinions. A general guideline is to lift a weight for a particular exercise that you can lift comfortably three times in a row, but one heavy enough that you can't lift it easily 10 or more times in a row.

Lift this amount of weight as many times as you are able up to 10 times in a row for each exercise session. Some experts then advise resting and repeating the number of contractions. If you do this small number three times a week, with a day of rest between exercise sessions, you will gain the maximum amount of strength in the shortest period of time.

Lifting the same weight over and over again for more than 10 times will not produce any more increase in muscle strength. It may even slow the normal growth and tissue change you need for strength.

The strength of a muscle is related to its size (cross-sectional area). Many bulging muscles, however, are bulging not from strength but from fat inside the muscle. This occurs from excess calorie intake and diet fads, including excess protein intake used in body building programs. A good normal diet with 100 grams of protein a day is adequate for most strength programs. Remember a new pound of muscle only requires 100 grams of protein. Most of the muscle weight is water. If you gain a pound of muscle a week, it only takes 100 grams more protein a week than you would otherwise eat. A pound of lean raw meat (cooked before eating, of course) added to the diet over the week is enough for this purpose. Two and a half quarts of fortified skim milk a week will also provide about this much protein.

Recently my grandmother returned from the hospital and nursing home following a fractured hip.

She's able to take a few steps, but her nails on her feet have grown so long and hard it causes her pain and discomfort. Could you suggest a softening agent, as it is delaying her progress in walking.

The first step is to let her soak her feet in a tub of warm water for 15 to 30 minutes or however long is required for softening. Be careful and don't make the water too hot and burn her foot. While the nails are still soft they can be trimmed easily. That will help a lot.

The second step is to dry the feet and oil the nails well. You can use any hand lubricant or even cooking oil. The oil will help the nails retain moisture and soften them. Use the oil or lubricant regularly everyday to keep the nails soft.

Dow Jones drops 2.34 points in slow trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices drifted lower Friday in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 6.02-point gainer Thursday lost 2.34 points to 835.97. It had fluctuated in a narrow range most of the day. For the week, the closely watched average gained 0.63 points.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.58 to 85.62. The average price of an NYSE common share fell 10 cents. Declines topped advances, 811 to 491, among the 1,764 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 11,680,000 shares, down from the $2,810,000 traded Thursday.

Virginia Electric and Power led the Big Board actives, unchanged at 12¼ on 339,300 shares, including a block of 272,900 shares at 12-1/8. Magic Chef followed, off 3/8 to 5¼ on 213,000 shares, including a block of 166,500 shares at 5. Northern Indiana Public Service was third, unchanged at 15¼ on 176,900 shares, including a block of 160,000 shares at 15¼.

U.S. Steel, the fourth most active issue, gained 3/8 to 68½. The issue gained 2¾ points Thursday. Company officials said they knew of no reason for the stock's activity. But some analysts theorized investors were banking on a rise in auto sales to boost the demand for steel. National Steel rose 1¼ to 39-1/8.

Prices closed lower in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share lost four cents. Volume totaled 1,300,000 shares, compared with 1,330,000 Thursday.

Herald opinion

Fire fighter force needed

Palatine residents owe it to their community to vote "yes" next Tuesday to approve a needed tax increase for the Palatine Fire Department.

The proposed increase of 21.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation — which will boost the over-all fire and paramedic tax rate to 29 cents — will allow the village to hire 26 additional full-time firemen to reinforce a dangerously depleted fire department.

Currently the community employs 14 full-time firemen and 17 paid-on-call volunteers. The department must serve 50,000 residents in the village and in the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District, both of which cover 52 square miles.

The present manpower simply isn't adequate to cover such a large and heavily populated area. Four full-time firemen on duty during a given 24-hour period "have been spread too thin over the multiple calls that come in at one time," says Village Mgr. Anton Harwig. He's absolutely right. Local departments usually employ one full-time fireman for every 1,000 residents, and that standard must eventually apply in Palatine, too.

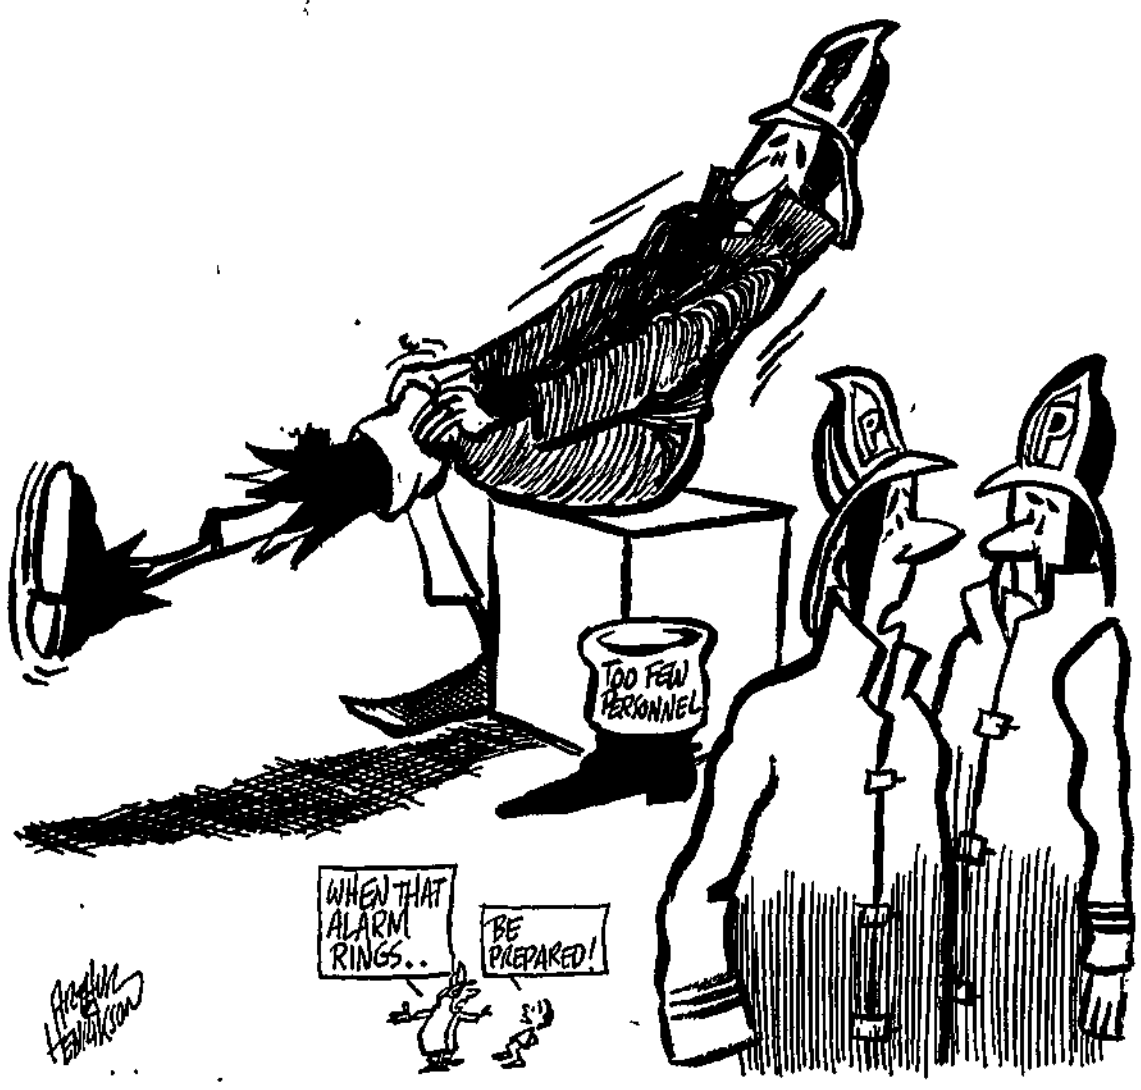
Presently, Palatine residents are paying a comparatively low tax rate, and this helps account for the department's heavy reliance on volunteers. Next year the department's capabilities will be reviewed by the Insurance Services Office of Illinois, which recommended in 1966 that the department boost its full-time force to 40 men, with a reserve volunteer force of 20.

If the referendum passes, the department can reach that manpower goal. If it fails, the department's insurance rating could slip, and that would mean area residents would have to pay higher fire insurance rates. In short, Palatine residents may be voting themselves a tax hike, but they'll be substantially lessening the chance of stiff insurance rates.

Tuesday's referendum, if it passes, is only one step in meeting the present and future needs of the community and outlying areas. More full-time firemen, new fire stations (to cover the large geographic area) and additional equipment will be needed to bring the department up to standard.

The vote on Tuesday will be advisory, according to village officials, but it is expected that the village board will move quickly to boost the department's budget and manpower if the referendum is approved. The rural district is expected to conduct a comparable referendum vote, if Tuesday's referendum is approved by Palatine voters.

The arguments in support of an overwhelming "yes" vote are very clear. For the safety of the community, there must be no more delays in developing a fire department in tune with the safety needs of the Palatine area. The property and residents of Palatine are just too valuable and too important for voters to neglect to vote "yes" at the polls on Tuesday.



The community can't afford to outgrow its fire protection!

Hoffman board praised for ending utility tax

We commend the Hoffman Estates Village Board for its decision to eliminate a 5 per cent utility tax.

This special tax on all gas, electric and phone bills was levied to pay off a $350,000 fire department debt and on Dec. 31 the tax will be abated. To compensate, property taxes will be increased about 18 per cent.

Hoffman Estates officials, by eliminating the utility tax, have decided to level with the community's residents. If more money is needed to run village government, the most direct way to raise it is through property taxes.

The utility tax is easily placed upon homeowners and other residents with little notice. In Arlington Heights, for example, a "temporary" utility tax now is as costly to residents as the local property tax itself.

The Hoffman Estates Village Board has lived up to its obligation to be direct with the people of that village. We wish we could say the same for the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The almanac

Today is Saturday, Sept. 6, the 249th day of 1975 with 116 to follow.

The moon is approaching new stage.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

Will 'meanness' spoil Bicentennial?

Fence post
letters to the editor

As a Bicentennial commissioner, it has become evident to me that the Bicentennial is an extremely important historic event. It gives us the opportunity to examine the past, to re-evaluate our national (and individual) priorities, to reaffirm our pride in our great country and to celebrate.

There is much for us to take pride in, and so very much to celebrate. However, we must also face up to the problems which confront us today. While it is good to be optimistic and better to present a positive approach, the time has come to call a spade a spade.

There is in this country today a meanness and smallness of spirit corrupting us as individuals and threatening our nation itself. Give whatever reasons you will for its appearance, it is the breakdown of our individual code of honor, our individual integrity.

AMERICANS have been noted for their largeness of heart. The country was founded on the principles of honor and justice, principles which find their root in personal integrity. The priorities of Americans have differed. The values of the Indian, pioneer, statesman, immigrant were not the same, but each had a code of ethics which stemmed from the "golden rule."

Facing the nation today is a problem which can cause our destruction. It's evidenced in petty vandalism, small thefts, corruption in our society, "getting the other guy before he gets you."

A situation has occurred here in Des Plaines which exemplifies this problem. The Des Plaines Jaycees' Betsy Ross flag was stolen during the Octoberfest!

The flag was one of the finest contributions to the Bicentennial efforts of the entire community. It symbolized all that the Bicentennial represents, and was to have been used throughout the year.

Notwithstanding its monetary value, it is priceless because of the time, effort and sincerity of those who made it. It was offered for the community's use and would have added much to the celebration in our city.

Regretfully, its loss now symbolizes the nation's ills rather than its greatness.

UNDOUBTEDLY those who "ripped off" this emblem will not be reading a letter to the editor. But should anyone know of its whereabouts and aid in its return, one step toward recovery of our integrity will have been taken.

We cannot expect integrity in government unless it is reflected in our personal "gut level" honesty. Nor can we celebrate the nation's Bicentennial blindly ignoring our ills. But we can begin to re-examine our values and code of conduct.

The integrity of our land begins with the individual. This is not rhetoric, this is fact; and it is essential should we wish to celebrate a third century of freedom as Americans.

Volunteers needed to help girl walk

I know a young girl named Tierney. She's 10 years old, she has big brown eyes and shining black hair. She is just about as smart as most girls her age. But she has never walked, she has never talked, and she is just now learning to crawl, to grasp objects, to communicate with her parents and her friends.

Tierney is a brain damaged child, whose motor functions have been impaired since birth. She needs patterning therapy and crawling sequences every half hour, 18 times a day, to train her brain to learn what it is like to crawl, to stand, to move.

An article by Joanmarie Wermes in the Chicago Tribune and one by Lil Floros in The Herald brought in many helpers for Tierney's therapy earlier this summer. But many are young people who are now going back to school. And Tierney's program must continue if she is ever to walk, to eat by herself, to jump in a pool, in short, to do all the things we take for granted in our children.

We are looking for volunteers who can spend one hour a week helping (or more, if they can). Each session should be manned by three people, so find a couple friends to join you; or you can be paired with other volunteers.

It's not strenuous work, but it is oh! so rewarding. Tierney is a very smart girl. She knows her friends and helper and never fails to greet us with a big smile and waving arms. To know we have helped her convert just a bit of her frustration into positive, directed movement makes every hour worthwhile.

Please call either her mother, Kathleen Parkhurst (298-5796) or call me at 392-6229. I'd be happy to answer any questions before you commit yourself. Thank you.

Coverage added in Lake County

If the Buffalo Grove Herald is really going to serve Lake County Buffalo Grove residents, please remember that we exist. In the Aug. 26 paper, the article listing lawmakers in the area failed to mention state senators and representatives in the 32nd District, which includes Lake County Buffalo Grove. Our senator is Karl Berning, and our representatives are Donald E. Duester, Betty Lou Reed and Daniel M. Pierce.

Your article would be more helpful if it included a map of the districts or gave readers a source for determining their district.

Another view on stadium

As a 25-year resident of Arlington Heights, may I comment on a recent survey taken by one newsperson regarding the proposed Bears stadium in our village.

In this survey, 100 persons were supposedly interviewed, with 50 for and 50 against having this stadium in Arlington Heights. It makes me wonder how many people were actually interviewed in order to reach this exact ratio. What about the remainder of the almost 80,000 residents? It seems to me the only equitable way to judge whether or not a stadium is really wanted is by referendum. Let the people decide and then abide by their decision.

Also, in regard to financing: If you or I were to build a new home or business building, who would pay for it? Ourselves of course, including finding our own financial backing. Therefore the obligation to build a new stadium should rest entirely on Madison Square Garden Corp., a multi-million dollar organization, and in no way should any of the debt fall upon the people of Arlington Heights, by bond, taxes or otherwise. Any costs incurred by planning and investigating committees should also be borne by Madison Square Garden Corp., and should not come out of tax monies paid by the villagers. This money could be put to better use by our parks, schools or senior citizen programs — these always seem to get the "short end" where funds are concerned.

As the days dwindle down

by DOROTHY MEYER

The day after Labor Day some joker at the office is bound to sigh and say, "Well, that's it — another summer gone and before you know it Christmas will be here." This year, though, nobody had to say it because the newspaper I was looking at had three Christmas ads in it and I wish the business world would quit rearranging the seasons.

I never remember to buy spring clothes in the winter, and when the first warm day in March reminds me that I don't have anything springy to wear, it's too late. By then the stores are full of sleeveless summer styles.

The same things happens every fall and I bet you can tell that I just discovered that there aren't any fall clothes in my closet. And the stores are having clearance sales to make room for their winter lines.

I HAVE NOTHING against clearance sales, because I love a bargain as much as anybody, but I always seem to get there after all the goodies are gone. What's left on the rack is left there because 500 customers before me thought it was ugly too.

Actually, I don't suppose it makes that much difference that I don't have the proper seasonal clothes. I'm not after a "best dressed" award and as far as my modeling career is concerned, that was shot the day I was born.

Besides, with over-anxious heating and cooling systems at work in the stores and restaurants, I dress for comfort. In the winter I wear lots of layers that I can add or subtract as the thermometer does its yo-yo thing.

Then, when the air conditiong season starts, I haul out my warm clothes so I don't freeze my duff at the typewriter or the lunch counter or standing in line at the supermarket.

BUT THE FACT remains that here I am on a mild September day with nothing to wear and an ad reminding me to order my Christmas cards early.

I don't feel like buying my Christmas cards in September. I have to be into the Christmas spirit before I buy greeting cards full of snow scenes, and I don't get the Christmas spirit until December.

Which is when I'd also better remember to buy some spring clothes.

Second half surge lifts Lions, 24-6

by MIKE KLEIN

You really couldn't fault Jim Lyne for being just a bit cautious and superstitious about Forest View's football stadium.

After all, The St. Viator Lions' 1974 season ground to an inglorious halt at Forest View with a 22-6 loss to Willowbrook in IHSA playoff quarterfinals.

And through one half Firday evening, the favored Lions were tied, 6-6, with battling Forest View.

Viator had converted just one-of-three first period scoring opportunities, then stalled completely as the Falcons rallied with an excellent second quarter.

But Lyne didn't tamper with his St. Viator machinery. And in the end, quarterback Jim Thompson had led them out of the woods.

Thompson scored on runs of five, one and five yards and tossed a 32-yard touchdown pass to Jim Kane as the Lions rallied for a 24-6 victory.

"Yeah, I felt like bleep," Lyne said of his halftime attitude. "But you gotta remember, this was a first ballgame.

"Very few of those kids played on a regular basis last year. Look at the penalties. That's from inexperience, not because anyone's trying to make penalties," said Lyne.

In something of a typical season opener, the Falcons and Lions totaled 17 penalties for 186 yards. Viator had nine for 115 stripes.

Viator scored on the game's first possession, marching 63 yards in 11 plays. Thompson snuck behind center Lumpy LaMantia for a five-yard touchdown.

The Lions also stalled at Forest View's 16 and 33-yard lines during the first dozen minutes. And Falcon runner Joe Difatta locked the score at 6-6 with his two-yard plunge with 9:15 before halftime.

Greg Jacobs topped a 41-yard field goal effort which could have given Forest View a 9-6 halftime lead.

The first of two interceptions thrown by Falcon Jim Petran (to Kevin Mulroy) set Viator on a third period scoring streak.

Mulroy returned to Forest View's 36 and nine plays later, Thompson snuck behind LaMantia again for a 12-6 lead.

Viator stopped Petran's offense in four plays, forcing a Rick Holan punt. After a Thompson incompletion, Viator marched to the Falcon 32 in seven rushes. Then Thompson found Kane open for a 18-6 bulge at 1:03.

Viator's last score was Thompson's five-yard right side rollout with 3:35 before the last whistle.

Overall, it was a fine first game effort by Viator which outgained Forest View, 339-143, in total offense and 275-52 in the mud.

In rushing, Viator had Jack Gracheck with 18 carries and 99 yards, Mark Bonucchi 20-89, Thompson 13-71 and Tom Joyce 6-16.

Most significantly, the Lions held Petran to 6-of-24 passing for 91 yards. Petran had one completion in his last 11 attempts.

Knights hold off Maine West, 14-13

by JIM COOK

The Prospect Knights and Maine West Warriors each scored two touchdowns in the season opener in Des Plaines Friday night, but the difference came at the three-yard conversion stripe as Prospect won a 14-13 thriller.

With just 5:52 remaining in the game, Maine West was attempting to knot the score at 14 after Scott Unger tallied his second electrifying touchdown.

After the snap from center, though the Knight defensive line, led by Keith Kallberg on Jeff Carlson, poured in on Warrior placekicker Mike Izral and deflected his kick to the right to preserve the Prospect triumph.

Maine West began the scoring at the first shrill of the whistle when Unger fielded the opening kickoff on one bounce and bolted through a gaping hole and down the sidelines for a stunning 83-yard touchdown.

Before the home crowd had a chance to finally sit down, Izral split the uprights with a soccer-style boot and the Warriors led, 7-0.

Prospect got a chance to unveil its touted, punishing offensive attack during the ensuing series, but the bronc-busting rushing of Don Meyer and Keith Mason was stymied when the ever-present Unger picked off Knight quarterback Tim Qubicki's sideline pass.

Maine West's lead stood at the quarter, but Prospect came back for the equalizer on the strength of two, seven-yard bursts by Meyer sandwiched around a 25-yard Qubicki to Tim Twitchel pass. Meyer lugged the pigskin in from the one and Terry Freeman connected on his first of two extra points.

The teams settled for the 7-7 deadlock at the intermission, but Prospect got back in business at the outset of the second half as Qubicki spiced the Knight offense with deadly aerials.

The Knight field general threw two strikes to big, tight end Fred Korf — the first eating up 34 yards and the second netting 16 as Prospect came knocking at the Warrior seven-yard line.

Mason blasted off tackle for two stripes and Dave Thoma wedged for four more before the deserving Meyer, who carried 24 times for 92 yards, plunged from a yard away for his second score. Freeman added what proved to be the clincher when his conversion boot sailed home.

The Warriors, limited to just three first downs through the opening 30 minutes, began to roll down the pressure-mounting stretch.

Multi-talented quarterback Bob Zuccarini bootlegged for 18 yards as Maine West invaded Prospect territory at the 22 and after hard-nosed spurts by Bernie Corr and Unger, the Warriors earned a fresh set of downs at the Knight 11.

Zuccarini threaded the needle to Ken Kunze for eight yards and Unger offset a five-yard motion penalty against the Warriors by sweeping left end for a six-yard score.

But that's as far as the Knight defense budged as the blocked conversion attempt split the difference between two equally-matched clubs.

Schaumburg in 35-0 romp

by ART MUGALIAN

Led by all-everything quarterback Russ Zonca, the Schaumburg Saxons scored the first two times they had the ball and went on to defeat Fremd, 35-0, in Palatine Friday night.

Coach Bob Ferguson's Saxons showed a multiple offense and a tough-as-nails defense in stopping the Vikings in the season's first game for both grid teams. Schaumburg picked up 322 total yards and 15 first downs and held Fremd to just 105 yards all evening.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound Zonca, voted by Mid-Suburban League coaches as the player of 1974, made an early bid to acquire that honor for the second straight year. The Saxon signalcaller directed an 11-play drive in the opening moments of the contest, capping it with a 12-yard touchdown pass to Bill Fairbanks in heavy traffic and on fourth down.

Five minutes later, after Bill Bolger recovered the first of three Viking fumbles, Zonca rambled for a 56-yard TD run off a classy fake handoff in the backfield. The Saxons made it 14-0 when Scott Mielke ran for a two-point conversion with 1:57 left in the first period.

While Zonca was gaining 102 yards on the ground (and 99 through the air), Mielke picked up 55 yards rushing also, including an eight-yard burst in the second quarter for Schaumburg's third TD. Reserve fullback Mark Godinez added 42 yards on the ground.

"I have to give praise to Godinez, he did a good job," said Ferguson, who was just slightly stunned with his team's offensive fireworks. Godinez is filling in for the injured Mike Christy.

Fremd managed only seven first downs against Ferguson's defense, almost entirely rebuilt from last year's Super Bowl squad. The two returnees, Scott Scholz and Gary Bolger, were instrumental in making the Saxon defense click against the Vikings.

"We had a lot of question marks on defense," said Ferguson. "That was our main concern, but they performed well. And Steve Atamian was a surprise — he's gonna be a starter."

Atamian sacked quarterback Dale Hallberg from his defensive end position and moved well enough to make several other tackles.

Zonca went back to work in the second half, galloping for two more touchdowns on the option keeper. After hitting Fairbanks with a 12-yard pass to the Fremd 21, Zonca broke three "sure" tackles and coasted into the end zone. Later, after passing 26 yards to Brad Crawford, the Saxon QB faked once, put the ball on his hip, and reeled across the goal line from four yards out.

Fremd's attack was led by Curt Blik, who cut through the defenses for 77 yards rushing. Tom Philippe added 29 yards on the ground.

Meadows topples Wheeling

by KEITH REINHARD

All in the family.

Rolling Meadows had that kind of response to talk about being an inexperienced football team Friday. They struck for three first half touchdowns and went on to blank visiting Wheeling 26-0, spoiling Gerry Clinnin's area head coaching debut in the process.

Mustang mentor Angie Barro was insistent on labeling the result a team effort, complete with plenty of first night jitters. But to the question of who would fill the big shoes vacated this fall by premier quarterback Steve Breitbeil and to the dilemma of finding a versatile ball carrier to augment the attack, the unsaid answer was strictly a family affair.

Ken Breitbeil may, in fact, even make Meadows fans forget about his older brother. He struck paydirt three times Friday night and showed all the poise of a seasoned vet in his own starting debut.

And at Breitbeil's side, the coach's son Ken Barro was available to handle the brunt of the Mustang overland load. He scored his club's other touchdown while earning game rushing honors and was generally a thorn in Wheeling's paws all evening.

"They did a good job on us," sighed Clinnin, whose own team produced even more of the painful signs of inexperience. "Our kids showed that they still need more time to adjust to new assignments and a new system.'

Neither side actually came up with a near flawless performance. There were 25 penalties signaled during the course of the contest and both teams had frustrating moments in just holding onto the ball.

But the host gang asserted domination early and never relented. On their first go from scrimmage Rolling Meadows capitalized on a 39-yard punt return by Barro to gain good field position and took it in 12 plays later, Breitbeil scoring on a keeper from the three.

Their next try on offense following a fumble recovery, the Mustangs took a dozen plays again to hit the goal line. Breitbeil scored this time from eight yards out on another keeper.

Just before halftime Meadows went over again. A key 22-yard pass to Jay Dallman moved them within range and Breitbeil plunged over from the two. Meanwhile, Wheeling had accumulated just 28 yards of offense through the first two quarters.

Later on the 'Cats revved up behind the passing arm of Glenn Barry and made one long thrust into enemy territory. But not before an interchange of miscues had set Meadows up at the six-yard line for Barro's touchdown jog.

Still later a Barry to Bob Terryberry fling netted 37 yards and had Wheeling within foot of the end zone when time ran out.

MORE BASS may be lost with a lighter line, but an angler employing 8-10 pound test increases his opportunities for strikes.

But you can't 'horse' them anymore

Light line catches more bass

Vic Watia

"I've been getting away from that heavy tackle more and more," said Rufus Davis of Decatur, Ga., "and believe me, it's made a big difference in my fishing."

Davis, a professional bass fisherman and fishing tackle manufacturers representative, is among the growing number of believers who are beginning to switch over to lighter tackle for largemouth bass fishing.

"The reason everyone began using heavier tackle is that the pros were doing it," Davis said during a visit to Chicago to take orders on Fleck and Red River fishing lures. "But now, many of the pros are using lighter tackle and getting better results.'

Bass fishermen often use 20 pound test line or heavier when fishing plastic worms or other lures around bushes, fallen logs and treetops and in deep water structure where the fish congregate. The heavier line is used so the angler can pull the fish clear of underwater objects where they can tangle and break the line. . .

Davis said he has found by dropping to lighter fishing line he gets more hits, and although he may lose a few fish, he also catches more each outing.

"I still use it (heavy tackle) under certain conditions, but you can believe it or not, this year most of my bass — and some mighty big bass — have been caught on line no heavier than eight pound test.

"When I fished the American Bass Fisherman $50,000 tournament at Kentucky's Barkley Lake this summer, almost all of my fish were caught on eight pound test line," he said.

Davis also said he doesn't hesitate to use the light line in fishing deep water structure. But, he has devised his own technique to improve his odds.

"I try to figure out before hand just what the fish are going to do," Davis said. "I don't believe when a bass hits he's always going to run for cover.

The reason he usually does, is because you're fishing out from cover and his natural instinct is to run back towards it when you have him hooked.

"That's why so many bass are lost on light line, because the fish gets tangled in the structure and breaks the line. Once hooked, a fish is going to try and swim off in the direction opposite to which he is being pulled."

Taking that into consideration, Davis came up with this technique:

"First, I make certain I know exactly how the structure is located in any deep water area I plan to fish with light line. Once I know where the structure is and how it is shaped, I try to position my boat so when the fish is hooked he pulls away from the structure rather than swimming back into it."

Davis pointed out, for example, that most largemouth bass anglers have a tendency to fish in toward a point of land. "With light line, I like to get closer to shore and fish out," he said.

"Of course, it depends how the structure of the point is, but in many instances it will have the bass swimming away from underwater structure once he is hooked."

Davis is not always in the winners' circle in the tournament he fishes, but usually he can be counted on to put in a good showing.

"You've got to take a little more time with your fish with light tackle," Davis said, "You can't be horsing them to the boat. But believe me, it really makes a difference in the number of strikes you will get."

Fish and game commission lands in political arena

Outdoors

It's always interesting to take the pulse of the Illinois Department of Conservation . . . if you can find it.

Lately, though, the IDC's heartbeat has been almost audible since the introduction by Sen. James Donnewald, D-Breese, of a 105-page bill that would create an independent, five-man commission to regulate the fish and wildlife programs now under the direction of conservation director Tony Dean.

In general, the bill (S.B. 1366) seeks to eliminate the two key programs from the politically-appointed conservation department which draws new leadership whenever there is a change in Illinois governors.

Donnewald's bill, endorsed by the powerful Illinois Wildlife Federation, calls for stability in the form of appointed commissioners with extensive training and experience in the field of fish and wildlife management to staggered terms of office.

In this way, a new governor would be unable to tamper with the commission when he takes office. The commissioners would select their own chairman.

Illinois Wildlife Federation secretary Ace Extrom admits that under the present system, there is no way you can do any long-range planning.

Conservation department directors change too frequently, he argues. "You just can't function under a political setup the way it is."

Dean, as expected, opposes the legislation, citing four reasons why the setup would fail. In a personal letter to this editor, he outlined the department's position.

Such a commission, Dean writes, will never survive solely from the finances of fish and game license fee money unless license fees are doubled or programs, services and staff are severed by 50 per cent, neither of which Dean considers a viable alternative.

With access to General Revenue funds and available grants, the Department of Conservation has averaged $15 million worth of annual benefits.

Average annual revenues collected from the Game and Fish Fund were $7.6 million. Dean points out that a $6 million deficit would result.

He's assuming something that just isn't so," Extram counters. "Besides, it's likely bills will be introduced to double license fees anyway. There were (bills introduced) during the spring session."

Secondly, Dean says the Illinois sportsman will suffer while the new commission completes lengthy land acquisition procedures to conduct fishing and hunting on lands which the Commission owns.

Duplication of time and effort would also result, according to Dean's appraisal of the Commission. Each department, he debates, would need separate law enforcement officers while the current conservation department officers are responsible for enforcing all of the laws.

Additional office equipment, space and administrative costs would be something the sportsman would not be willing to foot, according to Dean.

Finally, the director levels that the proposed Commission will not be any more independent or less political than other state agencies since commissioners will still be governor-appointed, the budget will still be legislatively reviewed and approved and both employes will still be covered by the Personnel Code.

"A Commission can do little, if anything, to improve or maintain existing wildlife and fisheries programs in Illinois simply because it would not have access to much needed General Revenue funds," Dean commented.

"I suggest that the most viable approach to improving the wildlife and fisheries resource in Illinois is not further fragmentation of the natural resource base, but rather a cooperative effort to initiate new programs and improve management techniques which will benefit all Illinois sportsmen."

So does the state receive a new commission to regulate the fish and wildlife programs?'

It will be up to the politicians . . . who else?

Wisconsin gets 50-day season

Federal changes in the waterfowl hunting season framework will allow Wisconsin hunters three additional days of hunting.

According to the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the duck hunting season which was scheduled to extend for 47 days has been lengthened to 50 days. In addition, point values for 15 point birds have been lowered to 10 points.

With these changes, the season will still start at noon on Wednesday, Oct. 1 and close Nov. 19. The extended scaup season will now start Nov. 20. Point values for the 1975 Wisconsin waterfowl season are:

100 points — canvasback, redhead and black duck;

90 points — hen mallard, wood duck, hooded merganser;

10 points — pintail, teal, gadwall, shoveler, scaup;

35 points — drake, mallards and all other ducks.

The entire waterfowl regulations are still subject to approval by the Governor.

Bulls trade for vet forward

Fred Foster, a seven-year NBA veteran forward, was traded Friday by the Cleveland Cavaliers to the Chicago Bulls for an unspecified draft choice in 1976.

Foster, who also played for the Detroit Pistons and Philadelphia 76ers prior to joining the Cavs as a free agent in October, 1973, had his best season with the Cincinnati Royals in 1969-70 when he averaged 15 points per game. In his two seasons with the Cavs, the former Miami-Ohio star averaged 5.9 and 6.9 points per game respectively.

Green Bay releases Tagge

Jerry Tagge, once Green Bay's quarterback of the future, was let go Friday by the National Football League club and left free to deal on his own. The former Nebraska star, a first round draft choice in 1972, was released after the Packers failed to make a deal for him despite having talks with other clubs who had expressed some interest.

Cubs, Phillies split; Sox win, 3-2

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mike Schmidt's 32nd homer of the year, a two-run shot, capped a four-run eighth inning Friday night that carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-3 victory in the second game after the Chicago Cubs won the opener, 4-3, on Andy Thornton's three-run homer.

Dave Cash doubled to start the Phillies' eighth and scored on successive singles by Larry Bowa and Garry Maddox. Greg Luzinski followed with a run-scoring single and Schmidt connected for his homer, which gave him the major league lead.

Reliever Tug McGraw picked up the victory, his eighth against five defeats, while Paul Reuschel, 1-2, was the loser.

Chicago used singles by Joe Wallis and Pete LaCock and a Thornton double to score once in the Third. Manny Trillo singled and scored on Steve Swisher's double as the Cubs made it 2-0 in the fourth. George Mitterwald's pinch homer accounted for the final Cub tally in the ninth.

Thornton's three-run home run put the Cubs in front in the fourth inning of the opener, then winning pitcher Bill Bonham, 12-13, doubled and scored the decisive run on a Jim Tyron sacrifice fly.

The Phillies scored in the fourth when John Oates doubled in Mike Anderson. Singles by Oates and Ollie Brown and a Cash double accounted for two runs in the ninth, but Paul Reuschel came on to get the last two outs and pick up his fourth save.

BYE, BIL. Cubs' Bill Madlock is held by Manager Jim Marshall after being tossed out of the Phillies' game Friday night.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bucky Dent's two-run triple triggered a three-run fifth inning and Rich Gossage notched his 23rd save with one and one-third innings of scoreless relief Friday night to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Dent tripled off Dave Goltz following singles by Bill Melton and Nyls Nyman then scored the final run of the inning on an infield out.

Gossage came in to relieve Wilbur Wood with two out in the eighth after the Twins had scored their second run on a double by Dan Ford and a single by Craig Kusick. Gossage made one pitch to retire Steve Braun and end the inning then set the Twins down in the ninth.

The Twins' first run came in the fourth on Steve Braun's double and Dave McKay's single.

The victory snapped a four-game losing streak for Wood and raised his record to 14-18. Goltz was tagged with his 11th loss against 13 victories.

Kingman hits 30th

Dave Kingman, who starred for Prospect High School in his prep days, continued in his drive to win the home run title with his 30th of the year Friday, helping New York Met pitcher Tom Seaver win 5-2. Kingman is chasing Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia, who hit his 32nd. Right behind him is teammate Greg Luzinski, who is from Prospect Heights, with 31.

Chris to meet Evonne in U.S. Open tennis finals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Chris Evert, always gracious and charming, said she was lucky to defeat Martina Navratilova, but she said her good friend must learn to take the bad breaks, too.

"I was lucky. I got a good break in that second set, but I was in a tough position," said Evert, who reached the women's singles final Friday at Forest Hills for the first time in five attempts with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over her doubles partner.

Chris Evert

Evert will meet Evonne Goolagong Cawley today for the title. Last year Cawley stopped Evert in the semifinals in a rain-interrupted three-set match.

The "luck" she talked about was a disputed point in the eighth game of the second set. Evert returned a drop shot which apparently landed over the baseline, but the lineswoman called it good. The official declined to change her call even after Navratilova had pointed out the mark the ball left on the court.

"Martina is honest. If she said the ball was out, then I suppose it was out," said Chris. "Had I seen it, I would have asked to play a let, but I was too far away.

"It was a tough position for me to be in."

Chris said she suggested to Martina that the 18-year-old Czechoslovak girl ask the lineswoman to check the mark, "but when she refused to change her call there was nothing I could do. I am not the umpire."

Evert, 20, said this was the toughest game Navratilova had played in their 10 meetings this year. Chris, who leads Martina, 8-2, for 1975, said "Martina was super. She surprised me. She missed two critical overheads, but she got 90 per cent of her shots in. Instead of me winning 6-4, with a bit of luck she could have won 7-5.

Chris, who charmed the crowds as a 16-year-old in her first appearance at Forest Hills in 1971, said "Martina must not let bad calls upset her. She must learn to play the next point. This will come with maturity, but she's still a super top opponent right now."

Cawley advanced to the finals with an impressive 7-5, 6-1 victory over second-seeded Virginia Wade.

Part Two...

Three more area teams in grid debuts

by MIKE KLEIN

Bill Gourley remembers his first inclination that Hoffman Estates might be developing a strong football foundation. It happened two years ago just before the school opener.

"When they were sophomores, I honestly didn't know what to expect," said Gourley. "I didn't know if I was doing a good job or a bad job. It'd been 10 years since I coached sophomores."

Gourley had been 18-5-1 on varsity during his final three years at North Chicago (through 1965). Then he coached at North Park College before Hoffman Estates opened two years ago.

"I remember we played on a Saturday so I went out and watched some old school on Friday. When I came back, I felt a heckuva lot better.

"Our kids were tough," said Gourley. "They'd learned their lessons in three weeks fairly well. That's when I began to feel this would be a strong program."

This afternoon, Gourley will pop the first varsity clutch in Hoffman Estates' football career when the Hawks host Palatine at 2 p.m.

Then, Gourley will begin to answer whether Hoffman will accelerate and move forward or sputter and temporarily choke out.

"I hope we can go," he says confidently.

It will be half of Opening Weekend — Football 1975 — Part Two. Arlington begins a rugged three-game non-conference schedule down at Homewood-Flossmoor.

Hoffman fans might look for...and perhaps even expect...immediate success. The school's first seniors were 7-0-1 as sophomores and 8-0 at the junior-varsity level.

Gourley established the running offense last season and has introduced greater passing into this year's attack. It's a long way from Hoffman's sophomore days when the offense numbered just eight plays.

The Hawks are fit to fight, said Gourley. Thirty young men will face Palatine.

Arv Herstedt's Pirates are winners of just five games in their past two seasons. But Herstedt cites "real fine" football during the club's final four games last year (2-6) with predominantly juniors.

Palatine closed with a 14-0 loss to Super Bowl bound Hersey and 20-18 defeat against Buffalo Grove. Hersey scored after two fumbles. Palatine closed inside Buffalo Grove's 10-yard line three times without scoring.

Now, Herstedt believes the Pirates are ready to capitalize during his 10th year as head coach. He is 34-37-2 overall.

Today's game will showcase the Pirates' fine quarterback, Mark McCostlin. He's the Mid-Suburban League's all-time single season percentage passer. McCostlin completed 55-of-90 for .611 last year, his junior campaign.

Arlington journeys down to Homewood-Flossmoor this afternoon in search of a second straight win over the Vikings. Arlington won, 17-15, last fall. Then Homewood reeled off a 9-2 season and S.I.C.A.-North championship.

Cardinal coach Chuck Haines said Homewood might have taken Arlington too lightly last fall. "they scouted our Schaumburg game (17-0 loss) last year," said Haines.

"Only somebody accustomed to a fish market could have stood the smell of that one."

Haines will send out six two-way players at Homewood, more than he'd like. Not surprisingly, offensive signal caller Matt Shaughnessy isn't among the double duty half-dozen.

Two-way players will be Kirk Kennedy (OT-DT), Greg Kloiber (TE-DE), Art Klein (OG-MG), Rick Purcell (C-LB), Jason Slezak (OT-LB) and Tom North (FL-S).

"We want to go with as much experience as possible," said Haines. "These kids going both ways are capable of it."

Haines admitted to "not that much exceptional depth yet. At least in the beginning, this is how we'll proceed."

Arlington plays three consecutive non-MSL games and next week hosts another 1974 league champion, St. Francis deSales, co-winner with St. Viator in the East Suburban Catholic.

Buffalo Grove dumps Conant, 33-8

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Ben Orcutt put up 21 points to the good all by himself and a crowd scene of talented offensive performers kicked in with some dandy improvisations of their own as the Buffalo Grove Bison slapped the Conant Cougars 33-8 in the opening game for both teams.

Orcutt, a 5-11, 175-pound junior running back, sliced through the young and inexperienced Conant defenses for three touchdown runs of two yards each. He completed his scoring night by kicking a trio of extra points and rushed for 77 yards in 13 carries.

"I thought Ben did just a super job," said Bison coach Grant Blaney. "In fact, I think the whole offense looked very sharp."

The offense was triple-edge sharp in the first series for the Bison as Orcutt, running back John MacIssac (10 carries for 62 yards) and quarterback Dave Zimmer moved 69 yards in nine plays before MacIssac cracked over from the three for the Grove's first points.

In the drive, Zimmer showed good judgment and poise behind Brink's truck protection and keyed the drive with a 28-yard pass to receiver Mike Valentine.

"I was happy with the way my quarterback looked," Blaney said. "That was a big question with his team and Zimmer played very well tonight."

The 6-1 senior, who also plays a little safety on defense, hit the likes of Valentine, Orcutt, George Bastable and Wayne Eischen in the hands for 141 yards through the air.

Buffalo Grove sprang to a 14-0 lead on the jittery Cougars as Valentine recovered a fumble on the first Conant offensive play following the opening touchdown.

Orcutt cracked across from the two with his first touchdown but for the rest of the first half the Conant defense stacked the Bison ground attack in its tracks.

The Cougars yielded minus-nine yards rushing in the second quarter and laid a safety on the Bison. Zimmer dropped back from his own 11 yard line into the end zone, looking for receivers downfield, but found just Cougars Rich Johnson, Tom Izzo and Carl Paulson.

The two points pumped up Conant's spirits and the good feeling was kept alive by the running of Steve Stompanato, who led all rushers with 90 yards in 15 carries.

"My Big Gun looked terrific," said Conant coach John Ayres, who was pleased over-all with his coaching debut.

"It's a start, that's about all I can say. We're young and inexperienced and that's always a problem. When a kid puts a pair of pads on for the first time he's going to make mistakes.

"I was pleased because these kids had their backs to the wall early and recovered. Buffalo Grove is one helluva team and I'm pretty pleased with the game we gave them."

Conant starting quarterback Tom Haupert gave way to Scott Schaefer in the fourth quarter and the 6-1 junior completed a 10-yard pass to Ed Hill and followed that with an 8-yarder to Mike Frisch in the end zone as the gun went off to end the game.

Hersey hits Elgin, 29-6

by BOB GALLAS

ELGIN — A balanced offensive attack, coupled with a stingy defense, helped the Hersey Huskies beat a young but fast Elgin High School team Friday night here, 29-6.

The Huskies held the Maroons to minus seven yards offense in the second half and only 41 yards all game while completely dominating on offense.

The game was played despite a teacher's strike that has shut down Elgin schools. School officials declared an "emergency day" off, usually reserved for snow storms, which allowed the game to be played on a soggy Elgin field.

The Huskie attack, led by quarterback Scott Topczewski, put up an impressive 120 yards in the air and 146 yards on the ground. The Maroons meanwhile, could counter with only 12 yards in the air and 29 on the ground.

"Tonight gives us the idea that we can catch a few passes this year," said Hersey coach Joe Gilwa after the game. Gilwa said his team would be working this week though, for a "more consistent" running game.

"Our defense shut them out — they only scored on the kick," said Gilwa, referring to the Maroons' only score.

In the fourth quarter, seconds after a Huskie touchdown had made it 22-0, Elgin speedster Richard Hersey took a kickoff at his nine yard line then burned the sidelines in a brilliant 91-yard touchdown run.

Hersey, a 6-foot-2, 178-pound junior teamed up with another speedster, 6-2, 185-pound senior Butch Douglas, to make up for a fast backfield that couldn't find a hole in the Huskie defense.

Matt Zakula proved he's made the switch from quarterback to fullback. Zakula ginaed 92 yards in 17 carries to lead the Huskies.

Topczewski's favorite target was Wally Hommerding, who caught four passes for 58 yards.

Hersey's first score came with 5:24 left in the first quarter when Topczewski hit Dave Koelper with 40-yard pass. The extra point kick failed.

The Huskies came back quickly, scoring seconds into the second quarter on a Topczewski sneak to cap a 46-yard drive. The kick by Bob Schackner made the score 13-0.

Hersey got to the seven-yard-line with 4½ minutes left in the half when Topczewski was sacked back to the 18. Passing back to the four yard line, Schackner kicked a 21-yard field goal to make it 16-0.

In the fourth quarter, Gene Johnson picked up an Elgin punt blocked by Bob Hart. He ran it in from 17 yards for the score. Schackner's kick was good.

The Huskies' final score came late on a 15-yard run by Tony Becker. Schackner's kick made it 29-6.

Larkin handles Elk Grove

by J. ANDREW KEHE

The Elgin Larkin Royals, invading the Mid-Suburban for the first time in the league's history, spoiled Elk Grove's home opener and field dedication to the late principal of that school Robert Haskell, downing the Grenadiers 28-6.

The Royals powered their way to touchdowns in each of the first two quarters, then tucked the contest away scoring two more in the third quarter.

The Grenadiers countered the first Larkin score with a touchdown early in the second quarter but couldn't come close to pay dirt the rest of the night.

The Royals showed an awesome ground attack in registering their first score, driving 63 yards in 18 plays all on the ground. Fullback Scott Connell was the workhorse on that initial drive following blocks by center John Difulvio and guard Joel Lueck through the middle of the Grenadier line. Quarterback Dan Kallenback finally scooted ver from one yard out for the game's first score.

Grenadier junior fullback Timmy Roberts immediately went to work on the oversized Royal defense, time and again picking up tough yardage.

A pass interception penalty enabled Elk Grove to move to the Royal 16 before Tim Roberts scampered through four Royal tacklers and went all the way in for the score. The try for two points failed and the Grens trailed 7-6.

Following an exchange of punts Elgin Larkin had to move only 36 yards for their next touchdown, once again staying on the ground. Kallenback mixed his calls nicely running up the middle and performing smooth options. Scott Connell finally busted over from four yards out to give Elgin Larkin a 14-6 halftime lead.

The Royals wasted no time in resuming its domination taking the second half kickoff and marching 67 yards on eight plays with Dave Placek going over from the two to make the score 21-6.

The Royals showed nothing fancy in its drive but constantly badgered the Grove's middle and outside linebackers with fullback plunges and quarterback options.

The Grenadiers could not generate any offense in that third period and another short punt put the Royals in good position to score again. This time they moved 56 yards in nine plays with Scott Connell leading the way and finally scoring from three yards to put the game on ice 28-6. Keith Millekan went four for four in P.A.T.'s.

Elgin totalled 310 yards on the night 291 on the ground and throwing only twice completing one for 19 yards. The Grenadiers managed 188 total yards with Tim Roberts supplying most of the spark gaining 88 yards in 15 carries.

Along the way Elgin picked up 17 first downs to only eight for The Grens. The Royals dominated the clock, running 62 plays to just 42 to Elk Grove.

Left-handed golf tourney Sept. 20-21 in Kankakee

The annual Left-Handed Golf Championship of Illinois will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 20-21, at the Elks Country Club in Kankakee.

Medal play will be conducted over 36 holes with United States Golf Association rules to apply.

Contestants, regardless of ability, are urged to register now through Dick Barnard of Arlington Heights at 394-2316.

A $25 registration fee includes golf both days plus Saturday evening dinner and dancing. There will be an additional $9 charge for wives or guests.

Special room rates have been made available at the Howard Johnson's motel.

The tournament will be categorized into a championship flight plus at least four other flights. Trophies and prizes have been set aside for the top three golfers in each flight.

Electric golf carts can be reserved for $9 and advance notice is required.

Barnard can supply all further details.

Pirates hockey club to meet

The Palatine Pirates hockey club will hold its first practice and tryout at 6 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 9, at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

Only boys attending Palatine High School may participate, the full equipment must be worn for this opening session.

For additional information call Ed Johnson at 358-3279.

At Sims Bowl

The YMCA Women's Bowling League met for coffee and their business meeting on Wednesday. New officers for the 1975-76 season were introduced: President Marge Peters, Vice President Carol Sieben, Secretary-Treasurer Barbara Jackson and Sgt. At Arms Rosemary Fang.

This year's season starts on Wednesday, Sept. 10th at 9 a.m. at Sims Bowl in Des Plaines. There are still a few openings in the league — for more information call the "Y" at 296-3374.

At Fair Lanes

The season opener had the Micro-Waves rolling high series of 1948 and high game of 690 was captured by the Crock Pots in the Thursday Eye Openers...Top bowlers were Esther Soukup with 488-178, Dee La Carta with 483-168, Carol Simmons 480-178, Meg Easterwood and Lee Moranda 175, Scotty Cole 172, Pam Snell 167 and Lorraine Dall 163.

Classic leagues open tonight; Thunderbird, Ten Pin to host play

The finest male and female bowlers in the Northwest suburbs will be reaching for the resin bag tonight to kickoff the 19th edition of the Paddock Classic Traveling League season.

The scratch circuit is open only to men whose average is 180 or better and to women who can maintain a 170 or better score to insure top-notch action.

The men's division of the Paddock Classic Traveling League opens at 6:30 tonight at Ten Pin Bowl in Barrington with Oost Produce meeting Teddy's Liquors, Beverly Lanes vs. PCTL Team 2, Formco Metal Products vs. Des Plaines Ace Hardware and Arnie Yusim Chevrolet vs. Ten Pin Bowl.

Glenn Chesser, bowling for Oost Produce, is defending men's average champion, having registered a gaudy 204.3 average during last year's season. He is expected to be severely challenged by Formco Metal Products teammates Fred Hansen (201.33) and Barry Stjernberg (199.73) as well as his own teammate Rich Moores who sports a booming 213 average from the 1974-75 Norridge Classic campaign.

The women keglers will get the ball rolling at Thunderbird Lanes where L-Tran Engineering meets Ten Pin Bowl, Mason Shoes vs. Ziebart Rustproofing, Lass Excavating vs. Thunderbird Country Club and Striking Lanes vs. Petterson Safety Service.

New fall shows look a lot like past TV seasons

LEE GRANT stars in the title role of "Fay," NBC's new comedy series telecast Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. Fay is a 43-year-old divorcee trying to adjust to a new life.

RICHARD CASTELLANO stars as widower Joe Vitale in the new CBS series, "Joe and Sons" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays. His sons are played by Barry Miller, left, and Jimmy Baio.

by KAREN BLECHA

Don't expect surprises from the new television season which starts Sunday. There aren't many.

Twenty-eight new shows premiere on ABC, CBS and NBC this fall and most are imitations of previous successes. It seems Hollywood producers agree on one thing: if it worked before, it will work again. Just give it a new twist.

Cop and private eye shows are big again and there are six new ones this season. "Matt Helm" (ABC), "Ellery Queen" (NBC) and Robert Wagner and Eddie Albert in "Switch!" (CBS) join "Cannon," "Barnaby Jones" and "The Rockford Files." Plainclothes cops "Bronk" (CBS) and "Starsky and Hutch" (ABC) join the law-and-order lineup and Lloyd Bridges in "Joe Forrester" (NBC) gives us the story of the cop on the beat.

YOU'LL SEE more white coats on the screen as "Doctor's Hospital" and "Medical Story" (both NBC attempts to move into the hospital scene) compete with Marcus Welby and Joe Gannon. Also premiering is "Kate McShane," the feminists' answer to "Petrocelli" or if you prefer, "Owen Marshall" in skirts. Tony Curtis is McCoy, the lovable con-man who joins the "NBC Sunday Night Mystery Movie" to replace Amy Prentiss. Another new show is the "ABC Friday Night Movie."

Nine new situation comedies are in store and only two — "Doc" and "Phyllis" — are from MTM productions. Many will be aired during the networks' new family hour, from 7 to 8 p.m. when programming is supposed to be suitable for general family viewing.

You'll be laughing in Sherwood Forest with "When Things Were Rotten" (ABC) and behind prison walls in "On The Rocks" (ABC). Ethnic humor is back with Italian-American episodes of "The Montefuscos" (NBC) and "Joe and Sons" (CBS).

NOT BE BE outdone, the old shows have added some new twists. Archie Bunker becomes a grandfather, Steve Kiley gets married on "Marcus Welby" and "M*A*S*H" gets a new commander while Alan Alda gets a new tentmate. Rhoda meets Joe's ex-wife and Mary Richards rents a new high-rise apartment.

While the season starts Sunday, shows will premiere throughout September. Some have already been previewed by TV viewers. Here is a rundown of the new shows.

SUNDAY

Three For The Road (CBS). A widowed photographer jaunts around the country in a mobile home with his two teen-age sons. Vincent Van Patten, who played Paul on the defunct "Apple's Way" stars.

Swiss Family Robinson (ABC): Martin Milner heads family shipwrecked on an uncharted tropical island and must learn to survive. Every week they think maybe they will be rescued. A serious "Gilligan's Island."

GLENN FORD and Julie Harris star as a poor Southern preacher and his wife in the new NBC dramatic series, "The Family Holvak," Sundays at 7 p.m.

The Family Holvak (NBC): Glenn Ford plays a small town minister during the late 1930s coping with the problems of a small, impoverished Southern community while he tries to support his wife and family. The wife is played by Julie Harris.

Bronk (CBS): Jack Palance plays Lt. Alex Bronkov, plainclothes detective assigned to special duty by the mayor of a large city.

MONDAY

Invisible Man (NBC): David McCallum of "Man From U.N.C.L.E." fame plays a scientist who discovers how to make himself invisible and then has to guard his secret from those who would use it for evil purposes. Based on the old movie hit.

Barbary Coast (ABC): William Shatner, alias Captain Kirk of "Star Trek," plays a man who adopts many disguises to battle evil in wide open San Francisco of the 1880s. Also stars Doug McClure as Cash who runs a gambling saloon. A semi-civilized "Wild, Wild West."

Phyllis (CBS): Phyllis leaves Minnesota and "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" for life as a widow in San Fransicso. Oscar and Emmy-award winning actress Cloris Leachman and her daughter, Bess, move in with Lars' mother Audrey. MTM Productions keeps it all in the family as Dick Schaal, real-life husband of Valerie Harper who plays Rhoda (another MTM spinoff), stars with Leachman.

TUESDAY

Joe and Sons (CBS): Richard Castellano is an Italian-American father bringing up two teen-age sons alone.

Welcome Back Kotter (ABC): Gabriel Kaplan is a teacher in the tough Brooklyn high school he attended. Created by Jimmie Komack, who gave us "Chico and the Man" last season.

Switch! (CBS): Robert Wagner is an ex-con-man and Eddie Albert plays an ex-bunco cop. They join talents in a private-investigation agency to try to out-swindle the swindlers.

Joe Forrester (NBC): Lloyd Bridges stars in his fourth television series as a patrolman pounding a beat. He plays Forrester, a compassionate cop who befriends people on the beat instead of intimidating them.

Beacon Hill (CBS): The most publicized of the new shows, Beacon Hill is admittedly adapted from the public television hit "Upstairs Downstairs." The series centers around the life of the wealthy Lassiters and their servants who live on Beacon Hill in the Boston of 1920.

Polo—pursuit

by JOE SWICKARD

Polo is genteel rowdiness on horseback.

The sport of the monied has traveled intact from its Persian beginnings to the well-tended polo fields of west suburban Oak Brook. Sundays, June to September, eight players and two referees chase a compressed bamboo ball over a 300-yard field in pursuit of goals and glory.

If polo brings to mind images of the dainty diversion for the horsey set, just remember the game was used to sharpen skills of cavalry.

WITH SKILL and determination, riders follow the white ball. The game is played with four-man teams, in six periods of seven minutes each, called chukkers. The idea is for the players on horseback to hit the ball with long-handed mallets so it goes between the goal posts at opposite ends of the field.

The play is rough. Rules establish the right-of-way for players with the ball, but the maneuvering needed to maintain position ensures physical contact similar to ice hockey.

The sudden starts, stops and constant galloping require players to obtain fresh horses after each chukker. By the time play is halted for a break, both rider and pony are well lathered with sweat.

of goals, glory

DESPITE THE high-speed play, spills and tumbles are rare. However, when they do occur, they can be serious. One junior player (under 26) from Honolulu was hospitalized when he and his horse fell during tournament action.

Although polo has been linked with the very rich, they appear to be not so different from you or me. Younger players have opted for painters' pants (with the hammer loop on the trouser leg) instead of the traditional white polo trousers. Players and their friends are as likely to arrive at the matches in a pick-up truck as a Mercedes-Benz.

Spectators, who are welcome, favor well-worn jeans and (of course) polo shirts. Tailgate brunches and beverages can add to an afternoon at the polo field.

TO BROADEN the appeal of the game, the Butlers, owners of the Oak Brook International Sports Core, bring added attractions for each of the matches. One week might feature classic autos while another week's audience could witness fly-overs and stunts by antique airplanes.

But all this is just a teaser for the real reason to be there: polo. The polo season officially ends at Oak Brook Sunday as teams compete in the President's Cup and U.S. Polo Assn. National Open matches. Sixteen teams will compete in the President's Cup and the open generally draws the highest scoring players from around the world.

Today's schedule includes a polo pony show at 2 p.m., when the horses are put through their paces and judged. Tentatively scheduled is a President's Cup match after the show.

FINALS OF THE President's Cup are set for 1 p.m. Sunday with finals of the U.S. Open at 3 p.m. All matches are scheduled weather permitting and spectators should call 654-1550 for field locations and game times.

Games last about 1½ hours.

General admission is $2 for adults; children under 12 are free. General admission includes a bleacher seat on one side of the field or an area of grass to picnic and watch. Box seats for $5.50 are equivalent to 50-yard line seats at a football game. The seats are folding chairs at the edge of the field or riser seats. Some are covered by a canopy.

Soft drinks and bar drinks are for sale along with hot dogs and bratwurst but spectators are welcome to bring their own. The polo fields are located at 22nd Street (Cermak Road) and York Road in the suburb.

TV scans area via 'Chicago Camera'

by STEVE BROWN

Flip your television to Channel 5 at 2:30 p.m. Sunday and you will probably see a neighbor strolling with an estimated 12,000 other persons at the Des Plaines Historical Society's Annual Flea Market.

The viewer will also see Jerry G. Bishop, Linda Alvarez and the crew of WMAQ-TV's energetic "Chicago Camera" beam the program to the rest of the Chicago area.

"I just couldn't pass up the hog-calling contest," said producer Karen Copeland while explaining why "Chicago Camera" decided to turn its eye on Des Plaines this week.

Since it began, the 16 month-old program has made many stops, including Hoffman Estates and Arlington Heights.

THE SHOW IS DONE live each week from a variety of locations in the Chicago area. Last weekend "Chicago Camera" focused on bike races in Grand Park.

"Tell them its live, live, live," Copeland said. She explained that it is the live and remote aspects of the program that add an element of vitality that is sometime lacking in television.

"We have to educate people to live television. There will be some flubs and mistakes, but it can make for a lot of fun and some surprises," she added.

"We think the program is exciting, but technically it is a lot of work and everybody has to be on their toes," Copeland said.

She noted that besides giving viewers a varied look at Chicago, the program also allows Bishop and Alvarez to fulfill a few fantasies.

"JERRY ALWAYS WANTED to be a ringmaster, so one weekend we went to a circus and he got his wish," she said.

The locations selected for the show depend on what is happening in the area and which events promise a lot of action.

The weather and being preempted by other programs can sometimes raise problems for the show, but luck has been with the Chicago Camera crew — it has only been rained out twice.

"We usually know about sports events well in advance, unless it is something like the seventh game of the World Series which does not get played," Copeland said.

Besides gaining a video following, the program has also attracted a few people who show up each Sunday wherever the show originates.

SOMETIMES THE SHOW itself can make for fun. Copeland remarked that Alvarez opened the telecast from the Ski Show at Arlington Park last year on a man-made ski skill.

"The thing was moving and she slipped, which was not supposed to happen, it made for a funny opening but Linda almost got chewed up by the machine," she said, adding that there are always a few surprises each week for Bishop and Alvarez. This week will be no exception, she predicted.

IT COULD BE a hog-calling contest or Grant Park bicycle races for Jerry G. Bishop and Linda Alvarez, hosts of NBC's "Chicago Camera."

Weekend rodeo slated at park in Barrington

Cowboys will wrestle steer, ride broncs and bulls and rope calfs today and Sunday at the annual Lion's Bronc Championship Rodeo in Barrington.

The rodeo, sponsored by the Denver-based Rodeo Cowboys Assn., will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Lagendorf Park today and at 4 p.m. Sunday. Cowboys will compete for national standing and $3,000 in prize money. The RCA also sponsors famous rodeos such as the Calgary Stampede and Cheyenne Frontier Days.

The country-western group "Cactus Jack" will perform and WMAQ radio personalities will be on hand. Ellie Dyland, WMAZ disc jockey, will reign as rodeo queen and at each show will give one person a piece of gold bullion worth $180. Cowgirls will compete in a barrel race.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2.25 for students under 18. Proceeds from the rodeo will benefit Good Shepherd Hospital and Lions Club charities. Lagendorf Park is near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 59 and U.S. Rte. 14.

Cabaret airs Sept. 15

ABC airs the Academy Award-winning musical "Cabaret," starring Liza Minnelli, Sept. 15. The film based on Christopher Isherwood's "Goodby to Berlin" and the play "I Am a Camera," deals with the decadence of a cheap cabaret singer as she prances through Germany on the brink of the Nazi takeover. "Cabaret" won eight Academy Awards.

Cop and detective shows big again in new season

A super soap opera with a painstaking recreation of the costumes and settings of the Prohibition era. One-hour episodes reportedly costs $197,500 to film.

WEDNESDAY

When Things Were Rotten (ABC): Mel Brooks' crazy version of the Robin Hood legend with the exploits of Robin Hood and His Merry Men.

Doctor's Hospital (NBC): George Peppard stars as Dr. Jake Goodwin, chief of neurological surgery, at Doctor's Hospital.

Kate McShane (CBS): Comedianne Anne Meara, of "Blue Nun" wine-commercial fame, stars as one of TV's first woman attorneys. In the dramatic series, Meara portrays an outspoken, hard-driving attorney with her own law firm.

Starsky and Hutch (ABC): Paul Michael Glaser and David Soul team up as plainclothes cops to fight crime. Movie pilot of the series was shown last season.

THURSDAY

The Montefuscos (NBC): Joe Sirola heads a large Italian-American clan full of love and wit. Comedy scenes center around the Sunday dinner table.

Fay (NBC): Fay, played by Lee Grant, adjusts to a new life after raising two children and divorcing an unfaithful husband. She is helped and hampered by a married daughter with an obnoxious husband, various friends, her lawyer boss, new boyfriends and her ex-husband.

On The Rocks (ABC): This comedy set in a prison is based on an English prison series called Porridge. Four inmates of a minimum security prison spend their time trying to make life pay off. Remember "Hogan's Heroes?"

Ellery Queen (NBC): If it works in books, maybe it will work on TV. Jim Hutton stars as the crime-solving author.

Medical Story (NBC): An anthology series about doctors and other medical personnel. A medical "Police Story."

FRIDAY

Big Eddie (CBS): Sheldon Leonard, a classy ex-gambler, marries his mistress, played by Sheree North, and together they raise his 8-year-old grandchild. An unconventional trio.

Mobile Two (ABC): Jackie Cooper returns to TV as a veteran TV newsman who has beaten the bottle. He gets involved in community life as he follows the mini-cam from story to story.

THE WEALTHY Lassiter family, above, and its servants reside in the mansion "Beacon Hill" during the 1920s. The new series, revolving around life during Prohibition, airs on CBS Tuesdays at 9 p.m.

SATURDAY

Doc (CBS): Barnard Hughes plays Doctor Joe Bogert, an old-fashioned physician practicing in a modest New York City neighborhood. He hates to collect bills and has a large family.

Howard Cosell Variety Show (ABC): The famous sportscaster hosts entertainers in a variety show heavy on big productions and unusual guests.

Dame Agatha stops 55 years of killing

by United Press International

Agatha Crhistie has been murdering people for 55 years, and the time has come for the killing to stop.

Dame Agatha, the unchallenged "Queen of Crime" and probably the best-selling fiction writer of all time, is 85 Sept. 15. Her friends are reluctant to say so openly, but it seems unlikely that there will be any new Agatha Christie mysteries.

"She has a couple of projects she works on from time to time," said Edmund Cork, 82, her agent and close friend for more than 50 years. "But she's not really writing much now."

NOT THAT the flow of Christie books has stopped yet.

At least three more are due — two cases by her most famous dective creations, Hercule Poirot and Miss Marple, and Dame Agatha's autobiography.

But all three were written long ago by the gentle, white-haired dowager who kills so readily but cannot stand violence, who dislikes fame because "it spoils so much of your private life."

SINCE HER first Poirot mystery in 1920, written on a dare, Agatha Christie has produced 88 books and 17 plays, plus several anthologies. The result has made her an institution, a phenomenon.

Even Cork remains baffled by her incredible popularity — in Russian as much as in English, in Bengali and Japanese and Turkish and dozens of other launguages.

"Why should a quiet old lady have this success everywhere?" mused Cork in his courtly Georgian office. "There is really no end to it."

"Her sales go up every year. A million and a half paperbacks a year in Britain alone. She is unquestionably the best-selling author of all time. Every estimate of her sales I have seen is a gross underestimate. Three hundred million copies? Too low, much too low.

"HER BOOKS have been made into films since the 1930s. 'Murder on the Orient Express already has made more money than any British film in history, and naturally a new one is planned.

"Two of her plays are running outside London now. And of course you know about 'The Mousetrap.'"

That mystery is a legend in itself — playing since 1952, the longest-running play ever, giving its 9,476th performance the night of Dame Agatha's 85th birthday.

THE FOUNTAINHEAD of all these superlatives is a congenitally shy, half-American matron — her father came from New York — who has lived all her years away from London, trying to avoid the limelight and speak only through her books.

"She is an old-fashioned gentlewoman, a great lady," Cork said. "She has a lively sense of humor and a very keen mind. But she holds firmly to the traditional values."

All her murder stories have "a dash of the old morality play behind them," Miss Christie once said. "You defend the innocent and pin down the guilty."

AGATHA CHRISTIE

SUCH "TRADITIONAL values" suited the double life which Agatha Mary Clarissa Miller Christie Mallowan lived for 45 years.

Each spring she braved the heat and unhygenic conditions of archeological digs in the Middle East, accompanying her distinguished second husband, archeologist Sir Max Mallowan.

Each winter she would spend two or three months tapping out a mystery novel in a three-finger typing style. Most plots came to her while munching apples in her vast Victorian bathtub.

"It gets difficult to find new ways of murdering people," she once confessed. "I try to steer clear of firearms because they need so much technical knowledge. Poisoning is much easier. And you can always rely on a dull blow on the head — no magic needed for that."

HER AVOIDANCE of publicity, of interviews and publishers' parties, was no pose.

"She has always taken the view that a writer, unlike an actress does not thrive in the public eye," Cork said. She refused to come to London even to sign contracts — Cork signed them for her.

With great reluctance she agreed two years ago to appear in public at the 21st birthday party for "The Mousetrap." She was frail even then. Her hair was luxuriant and white, her gray eyes clear. But her plump, grandmotherly features had thinned and she walked only with her grandson's support.

EVEN THEN, though no one knew it, more than half a century of Agatha Christie mysteries was coming to an end.

Last year, for the first time, there was no new "Christie for Christmas." Her publisher instead issued a collection of previously published short stories.

This year comes "Curtain," which kills off Hercule Poirot. Miss Christie wrote it 35 years ago, intending at that time to have it published after her death. Miss Marple's last case will be held until then.

"Dame Agatha hasn't any reason for writing any more," Cork said in a wistful tone. "She hasn't needed the money for decades. And she hasn't any vanity in her makeup to make her go on."

MISS CHRISTIE herself told an interviewer six years ago, "I can't imagine why I do so much, especially as I say, 'This is the last one I'll ever write' whenever one is finished.

"You get into a habit, and once you're in the mold of doing a thing — and consider you do it reasonably well, shall we say — you want to go on doing it."

The only explanation Agatha Christie offered for her unequaled success came in that six-year-old interview.

"There's no getting away from it, it's pure luck, really."

Move over Johnny — heeere's Julie!

by United Press International

Julie Nixon Eisenhower is working with Warner Bros. Television on the format for her own television program, which likely will end up with the daughter of the former president hosting a daytime talk show.

"We're really in the early stages," said Edward Bleier, vice president in charge of sales and programming and head of Warner's New York office. "Julie and I aren't zeroed in on what it will be like or how it will be distributed — network, syndication or whatever. We're not even sure yet whether the show will emanate from, although probably it will be either New York or Washington.

"Essentially, it is going to be a discussion-talk-interview program, which is certainly what she's best at. I'm incredibly impressed with her talents but I doubt if singing and dancing are among them."

BLEIER FIRST became intrigued with the idea of working out a Julie Nixon Eisenhower show last fall, when Mrs. Eisenhower substituted for Barbara Walters on NBC's "Not For Women Only."

The topic under discussion at the time was "Public People, Private Lives," with Mrs. Eisenhower acting as ringmaster for celebrity guests ranging from Sen. Barry Goldwater to opera star Roberta Peters.

"I was very favorably impressed with what she did the first time out," Bleier said, "although I thought the subject was too easy."

MRS. EISENHOWER and the people over at ABC's AM America morning show did some talking several months ago, but nothing ever came of it.

Bleier and Mrs. Eisenhower got down to business on their project about two months ago, he said, and added:

"She's composed, intelligent and curious about people and things. I think that's the most important quality. She has genuine eye contact with people and sincere interest in what you do and how you do it. That's her essential quality and that's what we're trying to build around."

AT THIS STAGE, at least, Bleier isn't thinking in terms of bucking the early morning news pros or the late night sophisticated talk types. He's thinking daytime, and he believes it is daytime audiences who will prove most responsive to Mrs. Eisenhower.

He made the point that some personalities, such as Dinah Shore, are specially appealing to daytime viewers, that they somehow blend in better with the viewers' background and values.

"I ran ABC daytime for a number of years," Bleier said, "and if there's one thing you learn early in the game, it's that the daytime audience is a lot different from, say, the Johnny Carson audience.

"First of all, it's women who watch television during the day. But that doesn't mean you're talking about all women, or about women in general. Daytime television doesn't draw all women any more than Ms magazine represents all women.

"THOSE WHO WATCH during the day for the most part are housewives with family and children. They don't work outside the home and their activities, ties, interests, are different from those who do.

"They even go to bed earlier because of their families, their children, their particular set of responsibilities."

Asked whether Mrs. Eisenhower's father, former President Nixon, would be involved in any way with the proposed show, Bleier said, "Absolutely not."

"I think the sympathies and the feeling of the country will be with Julie," Bleier said.

"And I'm a Democrat."

Fiddlers will compete Oct. 4 in the Illinois State Fiddle Contest at the Shelbyville High School, Shelbyville, Ill.

Each contestant must play a hoedown and a waltz and be prepared to play a different kind of tune of his choice if selected as one of the finalists. No trick fiddling or novelty tunes will be allowed.

Any Illinois resident between age 19 and 70 can compete for the honor of Illinois State Fiddler of 1975. Young fiddlers are encouraged to participate in the junior class for fiddlers up to age 19. Older Illinois citizens can enter their own category that includes anyone over 70 years old.

Guitarists who belong to the Illinois Oldtime Fiddle Assn. will provide entertainment. Trophies and prizes as large as $125 will be awarded to the fiddle winners.

Each contestant must mail a $2 entry fee with name and complete mailing address to Emogene Green, RR 1, Box 289, Illiopolis, Ill. 62539. The contest will be judged by remote control by three former Indiana state champion fiddlers.

Bob Conrad takes pride in doing own stunts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thanks to endless reruns of "The Wild, Wild West," Robert Conrad is one of the most familiar actors in the world.

He takes great pride in doing his own stunts. He rates himself "the finest action actor working today."

But one stunt that went wrong narrowly missed paralyzing him for life.

IT WAS MORE than two years ago and Bob was nearly halfway through the eight episodes he would film for his mini-series "Assignment: Vienna," shot on locations in and around the Austrian capital.

"We were doing an auto-wrecking chase, with me running from Victor Buono," he said. "It was raining. I lost my footing on top of this wrecked car. I just missed. He couldn't help me because his back was turned. I cried out — he might have broken my fall if he's been able to see me — but it was too late and I was out of control.

"They took me to a hospital and I was unconscious for 30 hours."

HE HAD FRACTURED his skull — for the second time. He had cracked his head seriously while filming "The Wild, Wild West," in a fall from a swinging chandelier.

"After that first accident, they had a piece of my skull in the refrigerator and they just popped it back in place. I woke up and didn't even have a headache. Of course, I didn't wake up for four days."

The Vienna accident seemed less serious at first, but Bob's neck pained him. Shooting of "Assignment: Vienna" was suspended for two months and the actor went to an orthopedic surgeon. "I couldn't move my neck," he said.

"The doctor took X-rays and found I had broken a bone in my neck, actually severed it. It had missed my spinal column by an eighth of an inch.

"If it had been in the spinal column, I'd have been paralyzed the rest of my life.

"THE DOCTOR said I'd regain 90 per cent movement with the right exercises and routine. It doesn't bother me at all now — but I have to be careful." For six months after his operation, Bob wore an apparatus on his neck and couldn't turn his head. But two months after the mishap, he was back at work finishing "Assignment: Vienna."

"I had no mobility in my neck at all and had to do everything straight on. If somebody came into the room, I had to adjust by moving my whole body.

ROBERT CONRAD

"My doctor said I should see another doctor," Bob recalled with a grin. "I asked why. He said 'You should see a psychiatrist because you're crazy for continuing to do these thing.'"

CONRAD MAY be crazy, but for a man who has been as battered as he has and who freely admits having passed his 40th birthday he's in remarkably good shape. In his New York hotel suite overlooking Central Park he said, "I'd go crazy in this town without that park." He was about to start out on his daily run, he said, explaining his blue sweat suit.

Conrad has been touring the country to publicize a movie called "Murph the Surf," his first film since he tried producing and directing himself eight years ago in "Los Banditos."

"This is really the first major film I've ever done," he said. Conrad and his "Murph the Surf" costar, Don Stroud, have since completed a second film together, "Sudden Death," shot in the Philippines.

BOB SAYS he doesn't want to return to the small screen unless someone miraculously comes up with an idea as fertile as "The Wild, Wild West."

"I've turned down nine television series in the last three years," he said. "Single appearances? I turn down one a week. I accept some. I'll do anything where there's a role that means something to me. But I won't do junk for $100,000.

"And I'm not a wealthy man. I have to work. I can't afford to quit. My restaurant, a place called the Wild West Saloon at Bear Valley in Southern California, was a disaster. What a pleasure it is to tell you I don't have it any more. I thought I'd better get back into the acting business full time."

Canada coastal ships honored

The Canada Post Office will issue four 8-cent commemorative stamps on Sept. 24 honoring Canada's coastal ships.

Designed by Tom Bjarnason of Toronto, the adhesives feature the Beaver, Neptune, William D. Lawrence and the Quadra, which figures in American history as well . . . in 1924, while the Quadra was serving as an ore carrier, she was seized by the United States for rum-running and auctioned off for scrap.

Twenty-six million stamps will be printed se-tenant by the British American Bank Note Company of Ottawa. Marginal inscriptions, including the designer's name, appear on each pane of 50 stamps. The entire production bears general tagging.

Stamp notes
by Bernadine M. Rechner

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "FDC-Coastal Ships, Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1A 0B5" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed plus a 15-cent service fee for each cover to be affixed with less than 60-cents postage. Your remittance should be by international bank draft payable to "The Receiver General for Canada."

The Franklin Mint has created a special division, The Franklin Philatelic Society, to develop and market stamp-related products. The division is expected to "attract one-million new collectors by the end of the decade" said to corporation President Charles L. Andes, and "should result in an annual sales volume of approximately $50-million by that time."

The first offering is expected to be a series of first day covers bearing stamps issued by the nations of the world to commemorate America's Bicentennial.

THE U.S. POSTAL Service released the design of its 1975 Christmas stamps Aug. 27 without any money amount on their face. It does not know what the price of a first class postage will be at the holiday mailing season and the stamps had to be printed in order to be ready in time. The cherub stamp is based on an early Christmas card by Louis Prang which appeared in 1878 and is in the collection of the Museum of New York. Another stamp, not shown, is based on a Madonna and Child painted by Domenico Ghirlandaio, a 15th Century Italian artist. It hangs in the National Gallery of Art in Washington.

Shelby Lyman on chess

Anatoly Karpov is a young man with a heavy burden but he has a substantial fighting spirit which, so far, has been more than up to the task.

Karpov proudly brought the title "World Champion" back to the USSR and is determined to keep it — even from the likes of Bobby Fischer.

The notion that a title won by default is empty, irks Karpov. He has pointed out that it was Fischer who refused to play their scheduled match after he had sat on the title for three years. Karpov's firm intention is to bring luster to his country and himself by being a fighting champion.

So far he has impressively achieved his ambition.

After an easy victory in the strong Vidmar Memorial Tournament in Yugoslavia, he engineered a smash in the preliminary rounds of the USSR "Spartakiad," a team tournament in which he is the first player for Leningrad.

In the four games he played in that section, he scored three wins and one draw. As destiny would have it, one of his victims was Boris Spassky.

That game had a rather tame beginning, though Karpov did have a very slight edge because of Spassky's vulnerable isolated queen's pawn.

On move 20, Karpov bravely grabbed the "abandoned" QRP with 2. QxP, and Spassky played his apparent rebuff 20 . . . NxBP!? Diagram 1.

Spassky's capture had breached the white king position and simultaneously threatened the white rook. It was immune to capture because of (after 21. KxN) 21 . . . QxP check; 22. K-B1, R-B7 with mate to follow.

Not to be suckered, Karpov turned the tables with 21. NxQP. After 21 . . . BxN: and 22. QxQ, Boris was in a quandary. The recapture of the queen (22 . . . RxQ) would have left him in a lost engame, a clear pawn down, after 23. RxB Diagram 2.

Instead Spassky chose to give up his queen for a rook and knight. With this slight material sacrifice, he hoped to achieve compensatory active play against the slightly exposed white king. Diagram 3.

But Karpov's technique closed the door on Boris. He artfully traded rooks (blunting the hoped-for attack) and created an unstoppable passed pawn on the queen rook file.

By move 44, Spassky had had it and resigned.

Karpov obviously has a resplendent future, though Fischer lurks ever presently in the background.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Here is a 40-year-old hand played by the late R. R. (Dick) Richards of Detroit. Dick was one of the really great auction bridge players and the founder of the American Bridge League, which became the American Contract Bridge League in 1936.

A lot of players might have tried to find a way to bid seven with Dick's hand, but old timers were never scientists and as anyone can see there was just no way to make a grand slam. In fact if West had opened a club as called for by East's double there would have been no way to make six.

However, West looked at his nice diamond holding and decided to open that suit. This gave Dick a chance to discard his losing club on dummy's ace of diamonds, but Dick saw that the club discard was going to be a snare and a delusion. West had bid spades. East couldn't hold many and there would be no way to handle his spade losers.

Then Dick proceeded to show how to play the hand. He played a low diamond and ruffed in his own hand. Then he drew trumps, cashed his ace and king of spades and led a club. East had to take his ace and lead a club or diamond to dummy.

Kissinger makes Taylor-Burton peace

By DICK WEST

It was more than mere coincidence that Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor showed up in Jerusalem while Sec. of State Henry Kissinger was there on his Middle East peace mission.

Their only publicized meeting was a party that Henry and Nancy gave for Liz and Richard at their hotel. But I have it on good authority that there was more to it than that.

The feeling was that if Kissinger were skilled enough as a mediator to arrange an agreement between the Egyptians and Israelis, he might have an outside chance of preventing another Taylor-Burton war.

SO THE FAMOUS thespians and debaters, who were divorced 14 months ago, were invited to visit Kissinger's suite in the hope his negotiating technique would shore up their shaky two-week-old reconciliation.

As in his diplomatic trips between Jerusalem and Cairo, Kissinger shuttled back and forth between Taylor and Burton. First a conference with Taylor to see how far she was willing to go toward restoring marital relations. Then a quick trip across the living room to discuss Burton's demands and concessions.

At about the time Israel and Egypt were initialing their agreement, Taylor and Burton were flying back to Switzerland and reports they had agreed to rewed.

"I understand there are several technicalities that must be cleared away before they return to the altar," one veteran diplomatic and matrimonial observer told me.

"BUT IF THE formula that Kissinger worked out in Jerusalem does bring them back together, it will be the crowning achievement of his brilliant career as a negotiator.

"Compared to Taylor and Burton, Egypt and Israel were like Damon and Pythias."

The big question mark now is the tentative arrangement that provides for the United States to furnish technicians to monitor certain aspects of the second marriage.

Congressional opposition is expected on grounds the monitors would be caught in the middle should hostilities break out again.

Blecha named editor of Leisure

Karen Blecha has been appointed editor of The Herald's Leisure section.

Blecha, a member of The Herald's metropolitan desk, will have primary responsibility for planning the feature content of Leisure and for coordinating staff contributions to the section.

The appointment was announced by Herald Editor Daniel E. Baumann, who credited Blecha with significantly improving the section.

"She, copy editor Nancy Reese and several other staff members have made this one of The Herald's leading features," Baumann said.

Leisure is The Herald's weekend magazine format section which includes staff-developed features, the weekly TV listing and a variety of entertainment material. It was launched last February as part of the Saturday Herald.

Blecha is a February 1971 journalism graduate of the University of Illinois, Urbana. She interned with the Herald during the summer of 1970 and joined the staff full-time as a reporter after graduation from college. She was assigned to the metropolitan desk as a general assignment reporter in June 1973.

12,000 expected at flea market

More than 12,000 persons are expected to browse through the exhibits in downtown Des Plaines Sunday at the Des Plaines Historical Society's annual flea market.

Browsers will get a double treat because the Des Plaines Art Guild will stage its 20th annual Fall Fair. The fair will feature the works of more than 150 artists from three states.

The flea market will be centered at the historical society's musuem, 777 Lee St., while the art fair will set up shop at the parking lot at the corner of Lee and Ellinwood streets.

THE FLEA MARKET will attract nearly 130 exhibitors from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The art fair is scheduled to run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In addition to the art work at the fair and the various exhibitors at the flea market a number of contests will be staged.

Cake baking and decorating, husband and wife calling, balloon races, hog calling, a spelling bee and a pie-eating contest are all on tap for the afternoon.

A variety of refreshments and other entertainment also is planned.

The art fair will include a body painting exhibit for youngsters. A variety of designs will be offered for arms or legs.

MORE THAN $600 in cash prizes will be offered to the winning entries at the art fair.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners of the contests at the flea market. The finals of a number of the contests will be televised Sunday as part of WMAQ-TV's "Chicago Camera" program. The show will originate its 90-minute telecast from the country fair activities.

While there is no charge for admission to the fair or art festival, proceeds from the refreshment booths will benefit a number of local organizations including the historical society. The Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission will offer red, white and blue popsicles.

Local man's accused slayer recaptured

Pete (The Satan) Mukite, accused slayer of a Des Plaines man, was captured by police Friday after remaining at large for nearly two months after escaping from the County Jail.

Mukite, 23, who is awaiting trial on the charge of murdering Richard Bollacker in Des Plaines in 1973, escaped from the County Jail July 10 with five other prisoners.

Sheriff's police and Chicago police arrested Mukite early Friday at his mother's home in Chicago. Police said one police officer gained entry to the house posing as a pizza delivery man.

Police said they had received a tip that Mukite, a reputed street gang member, had been staying with his mother.

Police said Mukite did not seem too surprised when a 13-man raiding party entered the house.

"They seemed like they expected us," one officer said.

Mukite was with his wife and one of his three children at the time of the capture, police said.

Mukite and another Chicago man stand accused of killing Bollacker on June 20, 1973 in the Grand Forest Preserve near Rand and Ballard roads in Des Plaines.

HAPPY FOOTBALL FANS. The high school football season kicked off for many area teams Friday night, but only some of the fans left each game smiling. See sports for details on all games.

Jim Hill decries celebrity status

by TONI GINNETTI

The conversation around the umbrella table is dominated by the familiar melodic, bass voice. Close your eyes and you could be listening to the radio.

Then the soft, muffled staccato of drops creeps into the early evening and Jim Hill — radio personality and weekend televison weatherman — sticks his hand out beyond the umbrella.

"Yep, it's wet. That's rain all right."

A trite, "Monday morning quarterback" prediction?

No, just a remark from Jim Hill, suburbanite, another guy whose evening of relaxation in the quiet expanses of the backyard just got washed out.

"LET'S GO inside." Like a child drawn by the Pied Piper, one heeds the velvet-throated words and follows his commanding 6-foot-plus frame up the stairs into the split-level, Hoffman Estates home.

Meet Jim Hill, 45, family man, father of four doughters, and local celebrity — even though he won't admit the latter.

"Someone asked me for my autograph about 10 years ago," he said.

"Don't believe him," wife Mary chimed. "People recognize him very often. Probably the most horrifying thing is when we're eating in a restaurant and people are pointing at us."

She related an incident which occurred just the other day when the Hills went to the aid of a woman whose dog had been struck by a car.

JIM HILL'S FACE is a familiar part of the Saturday news on WMAQ-TV. Hill is the station's weekend weatherman. At home in Hoffman Estates, Hill shuns the notion that he is a local celebrity.

TV's Hill dislikes 'suburbanite' tag

The hysterical woman stopped crying only for a moment when she looked up and saw Hill approaching.

"She looked up at me and said, 'My God, you're Jim Hill,' then she just started crying again," Hill said.

Hill dismissed the recognition with a shrug. "I never think about it. I don't feel anything about that kind of thing. I don't really enjoy that kind of thing. I enjoy human contact. That celebrity thing is unnecessary."

At home, Hill is not much different than most family men when helping himself to a drink, greeting his daughters' friends, lounging in the living room, and contending with family cat, Lily, for his kitchen chair.

BUT DON'T call Hill "a typical suburbanite." Although he's lived 15 years in his Hoffman Estates corner lot abode, a house nestled among trees and greenery, Hill begs off from the "suburbanite" tag.

"We don't live in the suburbs to get away from something. We came here to get to something. It wasn't to escape the city.

"I don't like the attitude of some suburbanites that they are better," Hill said. "The suburbs need the city."

When Hill, a transplanted Chattanooga, Tenn. native, came north to Chicago to join WMAQ radio and television 17 years ago, he and his family found in Hoffman Estates the type of community they were seeking.

Now, however, Hill said the city has "reached" the suburbs.

"When we came here it was cornfields," he explained. "Now drive down any street and there's the city. Everybody just accepts it."

LIFE AT HOME has changed somewhat this year for Hill, who in January fell victim to a programming change at WMAQ radio. He lost his show but retained his job as Saturday weatherman for the station's television outlet. Now most of his time is spent planning new careers, including that of a freelance commercial announcer.

As a weatherman, Hill's profession developed almost from a hobby.

"I came to feel that a guy out front in the public eye should know as much as he can about everything," he said. "Weather is just the first and foremost thing. Nothing else comes close because it affects everyone in terms of safety, future plans — even grocery store prices.

"I had wanted to do sports (at the Chattanooga station) and I was really ticked that they didn't give it to me. But I felt that a radio announcer, if he's going to be a professional, should start with weather, so I chose that."

Though his forecasting is aired only on weekends, Hill's work recently was commended by the Chicago National Weather Service.

EXPOSURE as a media personality often brings requests for personal appearances, a practice Hill said he prebadget counselor.

fers to keep to a minimum unless a worthy cause is involved.

"I've turned down an awful lot of things, but I've never turned down anything if I think it can be of help to someone."

Hill may tell you he is not "a joiner" in local civic groups ("I was at one point involved in everything and I got awfully sick of it"), but after some family prodding he will admit his involvement in local groups — like the Northwest Suburban Boy Scouts, for which he serves as weather merit

He may tell you he doesn't believe in unlisted phone numbers, though both he and his wife admit their privacy isn't always as secure as they would like.

"I try to keep it private," Mary Hill said of their family's life. "It's not nearly as private as I would like. People don't realize how you feel."

BUT HILL SPOKE candidly about dealing with the public. "If people want to hear me swear, I don't care.

"Just because you're on television doesn't mean you're different," he said. "What is a celebrity? I don't see myself that way. I don't like the idea of me or anybody else, just because they're on the screen, having people look at them and say 'big person.'

"It's nice to be recognized. Everybody likes to be seen as a nice guy. But you can put Godzilla on television long enough and people will respond positively.

"That bothers me about television, that it sets you apart," he said."The celebrity status is the thing I'm against. We're all in this together, this thing called life. It starts and it ends."

Teachers, Dist. 26 reach pact accord

by MARILYN McDONALD

Teachers and board members in River Trails Dist. 26 have reached a tentative contract settlement for 1975-76.

Agreement was reached Thursday night during the fifth negotiating session held this year. Although neither side will release terms of the final agreement, both say they are pleased with the settlement.

"We were really pleased with the attitude that existed among teachers and board members," said Sylvia Lurie, board member and negotiator. "Things went pretty well, considering the financial circumstances we are under."

THE DIST. 26 school board approved a $4.6 million budget for 1975-76 last week that will result in a $166,000 deficit at the end of the year. The budget provided for a 7 per cent hike in teachers' financial benefits, said Ralph Beaudoin, district business manager.

"I think negotiations were very positive," said Gary Rathgeber, president of the River Trails Education Assn. union and spokesman for the negotiating team. "We're pleased with the settlement."

Dist. 26 settled two previous contracts in the spring after just a few negotiating sessions. Rathgeber said that delaying this year's final settlement until the fall helped teachers to better understand the district's financial picture.

"I THINK the teachers understood what the district's finances were, and the board knew them better too," Rathgeber said.

Teachers will meet Tuesday afternoon at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, to vote on the tentative contract. Final wording will be drawn up by both sides Thursday.

Although the contract may not be in final form for signatures by the Sept. 16 school board meeting, William Hause, chief board negotiator, said members at least will discuss the settlement at that time.

RAINY DAY. Kindergarten children brave the storm while trekking home from school Friday. Their only problem was keeping the rain off art projects and end-of-the-week show and tell offerings.

Dist. 59 to borrow $1.5 million

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has approved borrowing $1.5 million to pay expenses in the education fund.

The district expects to have a deficit of $1.4 million in the education and building funds at the end of the year, according to the $15.5 million budget approved by the board. To cover these expenses, the board approved issuing teachers' orders, a method of borrowing money through the bond and interest fund to pay teachers' salaries.

The anticipated deficit includes figures for teacher salary increases approved by the board. The new contract gives teachers a 4 per cent cost-of-living increase in addition to the 4 per cent raise for an additional year of experience in the district. The 4 per cent cost-of-living raise is costing the district about $267,000. Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel, said the total cost of the contract's increases will be determined in about two weeks.

TEACHERS WILL be paid through teachers' orders starting Sept. 12. Six pay periods will be covered by the orders this year with the final payment being made Nov. 21. The board also will decide by that date whether another $250,000 order will be issued.

Teachers must cash their pay checks at Mount Prospect State Bank which will issue the orders. The district must pay back the orders at 5.25 per cent interest per year. The payment schedule will determine the tax increase which will result from issuing the orders.

The board can be prevented from issuing bonds to pay back the orders if 10 per cent of the voters petition the board to hold a referendum against the orders and the referendum passes. The petitions must be submitted within 30 days of when the board decides to get bonds to pay the orders.

St. Mary rummage sale

The Parent Teacher Council of St. Mary School is sponsoring a rummage sale from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., Sept. 19, and 9 a.m. to noon, Sept. 20. The sale will be in the school hall, Prairie and Center streets, Des Plaines.

Furniture, used clothing and household items will be available at the sale. Persons wishing to donate articles for the sale may contact Mrs. John Smith, 827-4756, or Mrs. Thomas Nugent, 824-4876.

Beauty pageant for elderly slated

A Golden Agers Beauty Pageant will highlight Randhurst's Golden Agers Day Saturday.

The pageant, which will begin at 1:30 p.m., will feature appearances from Edith McKown, last year's queen, and master of ceremonies Paul Heitner. A senior citizen's square dance will follow the pageant.

Represented in this year's activities will be Addolorata Villa, Wheeling; Magnus Farm and Lutheran Home, both in Arlington Heights; Plum Grove Nursing Home, Palatine; and other golden agers groups from Northbrook, Glenview and Niles. Many of the homes will be exhibiting products from their craft and activity workshops.

Lake Geneva trip planned by elderly

The Maine Township Senior Citizens Commission has announced plans for a trip to Lake Geneva, Wis., Sept. 17.

Margaret Moehling, vice president of the group, said the trip will include a two-hour boat ride on the lake and an opportunity to browse through some of the shops.

The only cost for the trip will be $4 for lunch, she said.

Buses will leave from 815 Lee St. at 9:45 a.m. Free parking also will be provided at that location.

Persons interested in registering for the outing can call Maine Township at 297-2510 or Beatrice Balling, the group's secretary, at 827-0745.

Teachers, board agree on pact

by MARILYN McDONALD

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers and board members have reached tentative agreement on a contract for 1975-76 after a 4½-hour negotiating session Friday.

Neither side would release details of the final settlement before teachers vote on the proposal Thursday afternoon. Edward Searing, spokesman for the teacher union negotiating team, said Friday, "I feel the teachers will accept the contract. Not everyone is happy with it, but it satisfies the teachers' needs."

BOTH SIDES had said they were very close to a settlement after their last meeting Wednesday. That was the first time both sides had met since an impasse was declared by the board Aug. 25. At that time, board members said a 10 per cent hike in the financial package was their last offer. Teachers held out for a 15 per cent financial hike at that time.

The impasse was resolved after both the school board and district teachers instructed their teams to return to the bargaining table as soon as possible.

"Even before the impasse, we didn't feel that far apart," Searing said. "We both had some moving to do, but we weren't that far apart."

Kenneth Rodeck, school board president and a member of the board negotiating team, termed Friday's bargaining session "friendly."

"BASICALLY THE issue Friday boiled down to money. Almost 90 per cent of our bargaining Friday was on money," he said.

Rodeck said the contract could be ratified at Thursday's board meeting if teachers have approved it and if board members approve the terms.

According to information released when impasse was declared, the new contract will contain the following features:

- Negotiable summer school salaries. Summer school salaries were not previously negotiated.
- Two personal leave days for teachers. Teachers previously had one personal leave day.
- Increased tuition reimbursement for graduate studies. The district will now pay $20 per semester hour of graduate credit, compared with $15 per semester hour, previously.
- Guidelines for reducing the present teaching staff if the need arises. These guidelines, new to the contract, determine the order in which teachers would be laid off.
- Sick leave bank program. Teachers can donate one unused sick day per year to a common bank, available to all teachers who use up their personal accumulated sick leave.

Parks to sue village, MSD on basin job

The Wheeling Park District is preparing a lawsuit against the Village of Wheeling and the Metropolitan Sanitary District charging the two with failure to complete work on the Heritage Park West retention basin.

The park district decision was reaffirmed this week despite stepped up talks between the village and the park district on how the matter can be resolved. Dave Phillips, park district superintendent, said the meetings have indicated the MSD's current plans for other flood control projects may increase the cost for the retention project and further delay the work.

The suit charges the MSD and the village with failing to live up to an agreement which provides for improvements at the basin. The easement agreement states the village "will construct, operate, maintain and enlarge the basin." In addition it assures "safe and sanitary conditions that will not interfere with the park district's use of the property for recreation."

LAND FOR THE basin was donated by the park district in 1969 with the understanding the retention basin would be suitable for boating and fishing. The basin never has been used for recreation because of its lack of size and depth, and officials have labeled it a "mudhole and eyesore."

MSD officials have told the park district that widening of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch between Dundee Road and the Des Plaines River should be completed before any work is done on the retention basin. Park district officials have said this work will delay the retention project even more.

Park officials have a five-step plan submitted by Herbert G. Poertner, Wheeling's flood control consultant, which outlines how the basin can be turned into a usable recreation facility. The plan would create a permanent 20-acre basin-lake suitable for recreational use.

Cost of the project has been estimated at $324,000 which the park district would like the village and MSD to help pay.

Phillips said another meeting with village officials to discuss the situation will be scheduled later this month.

Director elected to Countryside board

Richard Nardella of Buffalo Grove recently was elected to the board of directors of the Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Palatine.

Nardella, an active member of the Parents Assn. at Countryside, has been associated with the center for several years. He has worked on many of the center's fund raising events.

Countryside Center is a private, nonprofit organization providing education, training, recreation, rehabilitation and sheltered work for the mentally or physically handicapped child and adult.

Dist. 23 negotiators predict accord

by MARILYN McDONALD

Teachers and board members in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 are predicting a contract settlement within the next few weeks.

Both sides met Thursday night, settling one more benefit item and making progress on several other items, said Vincent Battaglia, board member and spokesman for the board negotiating team.

"Last night, we settled compensation for professional dues outside of union dues," Battaglia said. The district previously reimbursed teachers up to $10 annually for professional organization dues. Now, they will reimburse up to $15 in dues other than union dues.

"We're now down to seven items. If everything goes well, we can cut the list in half or more next week," Battaglia said.

KENNETH BATES, spokesman for the union negotiating team, described Thursday's talks as "very friendly." Bates said the board team has increased their combined financial package for merit and across-the-board raises to a 4½ per cent hike, to be divided at the teachers' discretion. Bates said the board previously had offered a total 3 per cent hike in the financial package.

"Our financial request has come down," Bates added. "Teachers are now asking a 12½ per cent increase in the financial package, down from a previous 13½ per cent request, Bates said.

Bates said the two sides also agreed on the way to approach settling final salary items. Bates said teachers will consider dropping requests for cost-of-living raises in exchange for concessions on other items.

Teachers and board members have been meeting since February to settle financial items in the second year of a two-year contract. Talks went into impasse July 17 after the board presented a counter proposal with several concessions but teachers made little movement in their counter-proposal. The breakdown was resolved a month later after both sides went through a series of impasse procedure meetings and decided they could continue meeting without a mediator.

Items settled thus far in contract talks include:

- Extra duty and summer school pay increases. Teachers will receive a 10 per cent raise in extra duty and summer school pay.
- Sick leave accumulation. Teachers may now accumulate up to 135 days of sick leave rather than 120 days as previously allowed.
- Professional travel allocation. Teachers now have a total of $1,500 to spend annually for trips related to professional duties. That same amount was allocated last year, but district officials spent about $500 of it to pay substitute teachers.

Both sides will negotiate again Thursday.

Teachers, board agree on pact

by MARILYN McDONALD

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers and board members have reached tentative agreement on a contract for 1975-76 after a 4½-hour negotiating session Friday.

Neither side would release details of the final settlement before teachers vote on the proposal Thursday afternoon. Edward Searing, spokesman for the teacher union negotiating team, said Friday, "I feel the teachers will accept the contract. Not everyone is happy with it, but it satisfies the teachers' needs."

BOTH SIDES had said they were very close to a settlement after their last meeting Wednesday. That was the first time both sides had met since an impasse was declared by the board Aug. 25. At that time, board members said a 10 per cent hike in the financial package was their last offer. Teachers held out for a 15 per cent financial hike at that time.

The impasse was resolved after both the school board and district teachers instructed their teams to return to the bargaining table as soon as possible.

"Even before the impasse, we didn't feel that far apart," Searing said. "We both had some moving to do, but we weren't that far apart."

Kenneth Rodeck, school board president and a member of the board negotiating team, termed Friday's bargaining session "friendly."

"BASICALLY THE issue Friday boiled down to money. Almost 99 per cent of our bargaining Friday was on money," he said.

Rodeck said the contract could be ratified at Thursday's board meeting if teachers have approved it and if board members approve the terms.

According to information released when impasse was declared, the new contract will contain the following features:

- Negotiable summer school salaries. Summer school salaries were not previously negotiated.
- Two personal leave days for teachers. Teachers previously had one personal leave day.
- Increased tuition reimbursement for graduate studies. The district will now pay $20 per semester hour of graduate credit, compared with $15 per semester hour, previously.
- Guidelines for reducing the present teaching staff if the need arises. These guidelines, new to the contract, determine the order in which teachers would be laid off.
- Sick leave bank program. Teachers can donate one unused sick day per year to a common bank, available to all teachers who use up their personal accumulated sick leave.

Police recapture accused slayer

Pete (The Satan) Mukite, accused slayer of a Des Plaines man, was captured by police Friday after remaining at large for nearly two months after escaping from the County Jail.

Mukite, 23, who is awaiting trial on the charge of murdering Richard Bollacker in Des Plaines in 1973, escaped from the County Jail July 10 with five other prisoners.

Sheriff's police and Chicago police arrested Mukite early Friday at his mother's home in Chicago. Police said one police officer gained entry to the house posing as a pizza delivery man.

Jim Hill decries celebrity status

by TONI GINNETTI

The conversation around the umbrella table is dominated by the familiar melodic, bass voice. Close your eyes and you could be listening to the radio.

Then the soft, muffled staccato of drops creeps into the early evening and Jim Hill — radio personality and weekend televison weatherman — sticks his hand out beyond the umbrella.

"Yep, it's wet. That's rain all right."

A trite, "Monday morning quarterback" prediction?

No, just a remark from Jim Hill, suburbanite, another guy whose evening of relaxation in the quiet expanses of the backyard just got washed out.

"LET'S GO inside." Like a child drawn by the Pied Piper, one heeds the velvet-throated words and follows his commanding 6-foot-plus frame up the stairs into the split-level, Hoffman Estates home.

Meet Jim Hill, 45, family man, father of four daughters, and local celebrity — even though he won't admit the latter.

"Someone asked me for my autograph about 10 years ago," he said.

"Don't believe him," wife Mary chimed. "People recognize him very often. Probably the most horrifying thing is when we're eating in a restaurant and people are pointing at us."

She related an incident which occurred just the other day when the Hills went to the aid of a woman whose dog had been struck by a car.

Saturday

In Leisure today

Elite meet—playing polo at Oak Brook.

'Beacon Hill' and 'Phyllis' are among 28 new television shows this fall.

JIM HILL'S FACE is a familiar part of the Saturday news on WMAQ-TV. Hill is the station's weekend weatherman. At home in Hoffman Estates, Hill shuns the notion that he is a local celebrity.

TV's Hill dislikes 'suburbanite' tag

The hysterical woman stopped crying only for a moment when she looked up and saw Hill approaching.

"She looked up at me and said, 'My God, you're Jim Hill,' then she just started crying again," Hill said.

Hill dismissed the recognition with a shrug. "I never think about it. I don't feel anything about that kind of thing. I don't really enjoy that kind of thing. I enjoy human contact. That celebrity thing is unnecessary."

At home, Hill is not much different than most family men when helping himself to a drink, greeting his daughters' friends, lounging in the living room, and contending with family cat, Lily, for his kitchen chair.

BUT DON'T call Hill "a typical suburbanite." Although he's lived 15 years in his Hoffman Estates corner lot abode, a house nestled among trees and greenery, Hill begs off from the "suburbanite" tag.

"We don't live in the suburbs to get away from something. We came here to get to something. It wasn't to escape the city.

"I don't like the attitude of some suburbanites that they are better," Hill said. "The suburbs need the city."

When Hill, a transplanted Chattanooga, Tenn. native, came north to Chicago to join WMAQ radio and television 17 years ago, he and his family found in Hoffman Estates the type of community they were seeking.

Now, however, Hill said the city has "reached" the suburbs.

"When we came here it was cornfields," he explained. "Now drive down any street and there's the city. Everybody just accepts it."

LIFE AT HOME has changed somewhat this year for Hill, who in January fell victim to a programming change at WMAQ radio. He lost his show but retained his job as Saturday weatherman for the station's television outlet. Now most of his time is spent planning new careers, including that of a freelance commercial announcer.

As a weatherman, Hill's profession developed almost from a hobby.

"I came to feel that a guy out front in the public eye should know as much as he can about everything," he said. "Weather is just the first and foremost thing. Nothing else comes close because it affects everyone in terms of safety, future plans — even grocery store prices.

"I had wanted to do sports (at the Chattanooga station) and I was really ticked that they didn't give it to me. But I felt that a radio announcer, if he's going to be a professional, should start with weather, so I chose that."

Though his forecasting is aired only on weekends, Hill's work recently was commended by the Chicago National Weather Service.

EXPOSURE as a media personality often brings requests for personal appearances, a practice Hill said he prebadget counselor.

fers to keep to a minimum unless a worthy cause is involved.

"I've turned down an awful lot of things, but I've never turned down anything if I think it can be of help to someone."

Hill may tell you he is not "a joiner" in local civic groups ("I was at one point involved in everything and I got awfully sick of it"), but after some family prodding he will admit his involvement in local groups — like the Northwest Suburban Boy Scouts, for which he serves as weather merit

He may tell you he doesn't believe in unlisted phone numbers, though both he and his wife admit their privacy isn't always as secure as they would like.

"I try to keep it private," Mary Hill said of their family's life. "It's not nearly as private as I would like. People don't realize how you feel."

BUT HILL SPOKE candidly about dealing with the public. "If people want to hear me swear, I don't care.

"Just because you're on television doesn't mean you're different," he said. "What is a celebrity? I don't see myself that way. I don't like the idea of me or anybody else, just because they're on the screen, having people look at them and say 'big person.'

"It's nice to be recognized. Everybody likes to be seen as a nice guy. But you can put Godzilla on television long enough and people will respond positively.

"That bothers me about television, that it sets you apart," he said."The celebrity status is the thing I'm against. We're all in this together, this thing called life. It starts and it ends."

Bicentennial programs set at churches

Kingswood United Methodist Church, Buffalo Grove, and Grace United Methodist Church, Prairie View, will cosponsor a series of story reenactments on American Methodism for the Bicentennial observation.

The first reenactment will be presented Sunday after 9 a.m. services at Grace Methodist Church. Stephen Dahl, pastor of the Kingswood Church; William Landis, pastor of Grace Methodist Church; and George Bush, chairman of the Kingswood Council of Ministries, will ride horseback in costume from Prairie View to 11 a.m. services at Kingswood Church.

The event will dramatize the first ordination service in American Methodism, which in 1784 officially established the Methodist Church in America.

Members of the two churches will join in a family picnic and gospel songfest led by the Salvation Army Youth Band 5:30 p.m. Sept. 13 at the Kingswood Church. A campout will follow.

THE CAMP MEETING will continue the next morning, Sept. 14, with an old-time camp service at 11 a.m. Guest speaker will be Birger Dahl. Rev. Larry Axelson will be song leader, and Mrs. Mabel Benson Reid, pianist. The service will conclude with special music by the Kingswood choir and gospel sextet.

Members of Kingswood Church will observe Wesley Covenant Sept. 21.

Sept. 28 will be a Biblical Heritage Sunday. Members will examine the role of the Bible in the development of American United Methodism.

The series will conclude Oct. 5 at 11 a.m. with a "Love Feast" in parishioners' homes. This event will mark the beginning of "Neighborhood Societies" within the church.

Kingswood Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., is open to anyone wishing to participate in any of the series' events.

3 Lake County deputies suspended

by TIM MORAN

Lake County Sheriff E. J. LaMagdeleine suspended three deputies Friday who pleaded guilty to eavesdropping charges two weeks ago.

LaMagdeleine suspended the deputies for 30 days, and gave them the option of working extra duty in lieu of the suspension.

"I don't want to penalize their families," LaMagdeleine said. "I believe all the men will opt for the extra duty.

THE THREE deputies were Lt. James Donaldson, Cpl. Robert Schrader, and Det. Chester Iwan. They were indicted by the Lake County Grand Jury, in connection with incidents which occurred under former Sheriff Orville Clavey, prior to LaMagdeleine's election.

The grand jury charged the deputies with official misconduct, eavesdropping, and conspiracy to commit eavesdropping. The charge stemmed from use of electronic surveillance in a narcotics investigation.

The three pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of conspiracy to commit eavesdropping, and were fined $100 by the court.

A fourth member of the sheriff's department, Sgt. Thomas Brown, was named by the grand jury as an unindicted co-conspirator, LaMagdeleine said, and he will receive the same disciplinary action.

"THE BASIS for my taking the type of action I decided to take, was that I feel these men are the victims of circumstance," the sheriff said. "The former sheriff was responsible for what his men did the same as I'm responsible for my men's actions.

"The former sheriff had a big drive going on narcotics, and knowing his mannerisms, I think the guys were pretty well in a position that they had to do what they did."

County Board member F. T. "Mike" Graham of Libertyville, a member of the county law and judicial committee, said he believes the disciplinary action was not strong enough.

"Whether the orders were from the former sheriff or the deputies acted on their own, wiretapping is an illegal activity. When a person is convicted, especially a public employe and a law enforcement officer, it should carry a greater penalty," Graham said.

LaMAGDELEINE said that while he did not condone the eavesdropping activities, he said he had reached an agreement with his department:

"There are a lot of things alleged to have been going on before I took over the department. I told the men, 'that's all water over the dam, I'm only interested in what goes on from now on.' The men have done a heck of a job for me, and I have to judge according to that."

$2,646 raised for Bobby Libit

Community contributions to Bobby Libit, 7, of Buffalo Grove, who underwent bone marrow transplant, total $2,646 94.

Local residents have rallied for financial aid to Bobby and his family, the Jerome Libits of 626 Raupp Blvd., since the beginning of August.

Fund-raising began at a local ice cream shop and led to a series of other fund-raisers which ranged from bake sales to restaurant donations.

The latest fund-raiser is sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Bison Band with a 12-hour volleyball marathon.

The marathon began 7 p.m. Friday night at the Buffalo Grove High School gym. The band group sought sponsors to donate money that will go towards Bobby's medical bills.

Bobby received a bone marrow transplant several weeks ago at the Children's Hospital, Seattle, Wash. His brother Jerry, a Buffalo Grove police cadet, was the donor and has returned home this week.

A crowd of children and neighbors greeted Jerry when he arrived home, said a resident, Marian Branski.

Bobby is still recuperating at the Seattle Hospital and it is uncertain when he will return home, Mrs. Branski said.

Changes asked for workers bus

Several representatives from Elk Grove Village industrial firms said Friday the proposed commuter bus program from the industrial park to Chicago should carry occasional as well as regular riders.

The bus proposal, drawn up by the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce, calls for the sale of only monthly bus tickets. Buses will run between the industrial pak and Jefferson Park weekdays.

Buses are to start running Oct. 6 and will be chartered from Davidsmeyer Bus Co. of Elk Grove Village. The cost of a roundtrip journey will be $1 20 per rider.

STANLEY KLYBER, association executive vice president, said the association has to stick with the monthly pass plan because it must be sure all buses will be full (or at least all seats sold) so the program will not operate at a deficit.

A suggestion offered by Richard Bingham, Davidsmeyer's president, was that special emergency passes could be issued to employes with the individual firm's name stamped on them. The association then could collect the $1.20 fare from a firm as each of its emergency passes is used.

At Friday's meeting of the association it was not known how many employes in the industrial park would use the bus system, although several firm representatives said only a handful from their companies would be able to use the service.

A recent survey showed about 900 workers would use a charter bus if available. The association asked, however, that each firm poll its workers and report by Sept. 26 how many will use the bus service so that times and drop-off points in the industrial park can be set up.

DAN KRAEHMER, bus project chairman, said the program offers three benefits: reduced absentee rates, low-cost, reliable transportation for workers, and a program beneficial to both management and workers.

Kraehmer said that based on 1970 figures, a firm in the industrial park would lose $15,000 a year in production, assuming the firm has 100 employes and a 1 per cent absentee rate. He added, however, that the absentee rate in the industrial park last year was 8 to 10 per cent, which would put the annual loss in the $120,000-plus range.

Employes also would enjoy substantial savings, according to Kraehmer. He said Chicago Motor Club figures show it costs $6.70 per day to drive an average car 60 miles, the distance most park workers must travel.

KRAEHMER SAID plans to charter CTA buses failed because of cost. "The CTA's proposed cost was so high, ridership alone could not have sustained it," he said, adding, that a $7,000-per-month deficit was projected.

Workers would have to find their own transportation to the Jefferson Park station in order to take the bus. At $1.10 per day for CTA fare and $1.20 for the Davidsmeyer bus, officials said the worker still should be able to save a considerable amount.

Approximately 40 industry officials attended Friday's meeting.

Meet Jim Hill, 45, family man, father of four daughters, and local celebrity — even though he won't admit the latter.

"Someone asked me for my autograph about 10 years ago," he said.

"Don't believe him," wife Mary chimed. "People recognize him very often. Probably the most horrifying thing is when we're eating in a restaurant and people are pointing at us."

She related an incident which occurred just the other day when the Hills went to the aid of a woman whose dog had been struck by a car.

The hysterical woman stopped crying only for a moment when she looked up and saw Hill approaching.

"She looked up at me and said, 'My God, you're Jim Hill,' then she just started crying again," Hill said.

Hill dismissed the recognition with a shrug. "I never think about it. I don't feel anything about that kind of thing. I don't really enjoy that kind of thing. I enjoy human contact. That celebrity thing is unnecessary."

At home, Hill is not much different than most family men when helping himself to a drink, greeting his daughters' friends, lounging in the living room, and contending with family cat, Lily, for his kitchen chair.

BUT DON'T call Hill "a typical suburbanite." Although he's lived 15 years in his Hoffman Estates corner lot abode, a house nestled among trees and greenery, Hill begs off from the "suburbanite" tag.

"We don't live in the suburbs to get away from something. We came here to get to something. It wasn't to escape the city.

"I don't like the attitude of some suburbanites that they are better," Hill said. "The suburbs need the city."

When Hill, a transplanted Chattanooga, Tenn. native, came north to Chicago to join WMAQ radio and television 17 years ago, he and his family found in Hoffman Estates the type of community they were seeking.

Now, however, Hill said the city has "reached" the suburbs.

"When we came here it was cornfields," he explained. "Now drive down any street and there's the city. Everybody just accepts it."

LIFE AT HOME has changed somewhat this year for Hill, who in January fell victim to a programming change at WMAQ radio. He lost his show but retained his job as Saturday weatherman for the station's television outlet. Now most of his time is spent planning new careers, including that of a freelance commercial announcer.

As a weatherman, Hill's profession developed almost from a hobby.

"I came to feel that a guy out front in the public eye should know as much as he can about everything," he said. "Weather is just the first and foremost thing. Nothing else comes close because it affects everyone in terms of safety, future plans — even grocery store prices.

"I had wanted to do sports (at the Chattanooga station) and I was really ticked that they didn't give it to me. But I felt that a radio announcer, if he's going to be a professional, should start with weather, so I chose that."

Though his forecasting is aired only on weekends, Hill's work recently was commended by the Chicago National Weather Service.

EXPOSURE as a media personality often brings requests for personal appearances, a practice Hill said he prebadget counselor.

fers to keep to a minimum unless a worthy cause is involved.

"I've turned down an awful lot of things, but I've never turned down anything if I think it can be of help to someone."

Hill may tell you he is not "a joiner" in local civic groups ("I was at one point involved in everything and I got awfully sick of it"), but after some family prodding he will admit his involvement in local groups — like the Northwest Suburban Boy Scouts, for which he serves as weather merit

He may tell you he doesn't believe in unlisted phone numbers, though both he and his wife admit their privacy isn't always as secure as they would like.

"I try to keep it private," Mary Hill said of their family's life. "It's not nearly as private as I would like. People don't realize how you feel."

BUT HILL SPOKE candidly about dealing with the public. "If people want to hear me swear, I don't care.

"Just because you're on television doesn't mean you're different," he said. "What is a celebrity? I don't see myself that way. I don't like the idea of me or anybody else, just because they're on the screen, having people look at them and say 'big person.'

"It's nice to be recognized. Everybody likes to be seen as a nice guy. But you can put Godzilla on television long enough and people will respond positively.

"That bothers me about television, that it sets you apart," he said."The celebrity status is the thing I'm against. We're all in this together, this thing called life. It starts and it ends."

Dist. 54 teachers, board 7% apart in proposals

A $21.3 million operating budget was approved by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education after board members eliminated a deficit in the district's building fund.

Over the objections of two board members, the board transferred expenses of $131,000 from the building fund to the site and construction fund, and transferred $174,250 in state aid revenue from the education fund to the building fund. The transfers wiped out a projected $272,350 building fund deficit.

Board members Sherry Reynolds and Edward Bedard voted against adopting the budget, stating their opposition to using state aid money for building and maintenance purposes.

"EDUCATION FUND income has a purpose," said Bedard. "The reason a school district operates on a fund system is to earmark funds for certain purposes."

Ms. Reynolds said transferring monies in effect, is "corrupting the funding system." Education fund revenue exists for educationpurposes, she said, and transfers should be made "only if all instructional needs are being met."

The budget shows a 23.3 per cent increase in building fund expenses due to increased fuel and utility costs, and increased salaries for maintenance workers. Expenses and revenue are each projected at $1.89 million this year.

Education fund expenses are budgeted at $18.3 million this year, an increase of 19.66 per cent. Most of the increase is due to higher teacher salaries, additional educational equipment and the hiring of about 60 new staff members. Revenue in the education fund is budgeted at $18.56 million. State aid for educational expenses is expected to increase from $9.16 million to $10.48 million.

TOTAL OPERATING expenses are budgeted at about $21.3 million, a 20.3 per cent increase over $17.7 million last year.

Assessed valuation of property in the district is expected to increase 6.2 per cent next year to $420 million. The tax rate is expected to increase 6 cents per $100 assessed valuation next year. The increase will mean an extra $6 on the average homeowner's tax bill in Schaumburg Township.

Beating, kidnap victim nabbed for bond jump

The victim of an alleged kidnaping and beating Thursday was arrested by Arlington Heights police Friday on a bond forfeiture warrant.

Arrested was James W. Case, 20, of 938 A Jefferson Sq., Elk Grove Village. He is being held at County Jail pending a court appearance Sept. 19.

Police said Case failed to appear in court to answer charges after he was arrested in a drug case by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Two Arlington Heights men were arrested Thursday for allegedly kidnaping Case from his home and then beating him with a billy club in their apartment.

Charged with aggravated kidnaping, aggravated battery and unlawful restraint were Mark W. Beatty, 24, and Guy Crawford, 18, both of 2165 S. Tonne Rd. They are being held in lieu of $20,000 bond each.

Case told police he escaped from the apartment and found a ride to the Elk Grove Village police station. Elk Grove Village police took him to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and then notified Arlington Heights police.

A third person was questioned Friday about the kidnaping, but later was released without being charged.

Correction

A story in Thursday's Herald erroneously reported the Elk Grove Village Public Library's personnel committee considered terminating six employes.

The comittee, headed by Darlene Greaves, did not consider firing anyone. The committee conducted six termination interviews with employes who decided to leave the library's employment for their own reasons. These reasons included a pregnancy and four students who were returning to school.

Raffle winner named

Winner of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees' carnival raffle have been announced. The grand prize, a riding lawnmower, has been awarded to Lee Garr, Elk Grove Village.

Other prizes and winners include a stereo system, Kelly Convoy; a 10-speed racer, Phyllis Mendoza, and an outdoor grill, P. Westfall, all residents of Elk Grove Village.

Village wins safety award

The Chicago Motor Club awarded Elk Grove Village a special citation for pedestrian safety.

Elk Grove Village was selected for the honor during the American Automobile Association's 36th Annual Pedestrian Safety Inventory Program.

According to police records, there were no pedestrian fatalities in 1974 or 1975 and a drop from 10 pedestrian injuries in 1973 to five injuries in 1974.

The AAA Pedestrian Safety inventory is a national survey designed to focus attention on cities with outstanding reductions in pedestrian casualty rates.

Obituaries

Elita Behrmann

Mrs. Elita G. Behrmann, 85, of Elk Grove Village, formerly of Des Plaines, died Thursday in Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. She was born Jan. 19, 1890 in Germany.

A private funeral service will be in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Officiating will be the Rev. J. Peter Lovell of First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights. There will be no visitation.

She is survived by her husband, Adolf; two sons, Bruno (Phyllis) Grund of Elk Grove Village and Fred (Patricia) Grund of Texas; three grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Family requests in lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, 800 Biesterfield Rd., Elk Grove Village, 60007.

School talks hit 7% wage snag

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Teacher and board negotiators in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 are still more than 7 per cent apart in salary proposals for the 1975-76 teacher contract, The Herald has learned.

Although teachers and the board are adhering to a "news blackout" on the issues involved in negotiations, The Herald learned Friday that teachers lowered their request last week to a 15 per cent increase in salary. The figure includes an annual raise of about 5 per cent given to teachers for an additional year of experience. The board has offered teachers a total increase of 7.2 per cent.

Teachers in the district will attend a series of meetings this week to discuss the salary contract now being negotiated with the board.

TEACHERS WILL now meet in each of the district's schools to discuss the contract offer. The board and teachers met for a bargaining session last Friday and another session has not yet been scheduled.

Art Neal, president of the Schaumburg Education Assn., said negotiations have been "discouraging" and "frustrating." He said the building meetings are designed to get the teachers opinions on the contract so the bargaining team can better represent them at the bargaining table. "We'd like to get this thing settled. We want to get the best contract for them," he said.

There are about 930 teachers in Dist. 54 this year. Last year almost 80 per cent of the teachers were members of the teachers association.

The teachers are now under a three-year contract which expires next summer. The contract states that the salary agreement must be reopened at the end of the second year if the cost of living increases more than 4.5 per cent.

Neal said last year the cost of living came close to a 10 per cent increase.

The current base salary in the district is now $9,040.

Welfare worker sees hard times, higher caseload

Unemployment and demands for welfare assistance will continue to run high this winter, Schaumburg Township's assistance caseworker predicted.

"I don't feel that optimistic about the future," Edith Hovious said Friday. "I think we're in for another rough winter.

"People in construction are not able to get jobs, and they're not getting the overtime that they used to get to save up money for the winter," she said.

Mrs. Hovious said the general assistance caseload in Schaumburg Township has declined only slightly this summer from the record high numbers of the winter.

"IT'S NOT as high as January, February and March but it's not a heck of a lot less," she said. "There are about 10 to 15 cases less per month, but the

by TONI GINNETTI

The conversation around the umbrella table is dominated by the familiar melodic, bass voice. Close your eyes and you could be listening to the radio.

Then the soft, muffled staccato of drops creeps into the early evening and Jim Hill — radio personality and weekend televison weatherman — sticks his hand out beyond the umbrella.

"Yep, it's wet. That's rain all right."

A trite, "Monday morning quarterback" prediction?

No, just a remark from Jim Hill, suburbanite, another guy whose evening of relaxation in the quiet expanses of the backyard just got washed out.

"LET'S GO inside." Like a child drawn by the Pied Piper, one heeds the velvet-throated words and follows his commanding 6-foot-plus frame up the stairs into the split-level, Hoffman Estates home.

Meet Jim Hill, 45, family man, father of four daughters, and local celebrity — even though he won't admit the latter.

"Someone asked me for my autograph about 10 years ago," he said.

"Don't believe him," wife Mary chimed. "People recognize him very often. Probably the most horrifying thing is when we're eating in a restaurant and people are pointing at us."

Schools OK $21.3 million spending

A $21.3 million operating budget was approved by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education after board members eliminated a deficit in the district's building fund.

Over the objections of two board members, the board transferred expenses of $131,000 from the building fund to the site and construction fund, and transferred $174,250 in state aid revenue from the education fund to the building fund. Welfare worker sees hard times, higher caseload caseload is still 50 per cent higher than at this time las year."

The township general assistance fund, which provides aid to the unemployed and needy while they await unemployment insurance payments, nearly tripled to $200,000 this fiscal year to meet rising demands.

Caseload levels were increasing steadily from October through May before a let-up in the trend occurred.

Township officials also had attempted to secure permission to issue food stamps through the Schaumburg Township office, but Mrs. Hovious said those efforts "have run into a brick wall."

State and federal agencies have not responded to the township's request, she said, and local residents still must go to Arlington Heights to apply for food stamps.

THE APPLICATION process is still a lengthy one, she added, although the waiting time for food stamps has been cut somewhat from three months to about a month and a half.

Mrs. Hovious said though she has written a number of letters to state officials and the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, which administers the food stamp program, the township has heard nothing. She said she also attempted to work with an official in Springfield on the matter, but those efforts apparently also have failed.

"You get tired of getting the same runaround," she added.

2 LWV meetings on school finance

The League of Women Voters of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates will hold two unit meetings dealing with school finance in September.

Mrs. Marvin Lapicola, assistant superintendent of Dist. 54, will speak at both meetings. Also speaking will be league State Board members, Joan Levy of Winnetka and Dorothy O'Neill of Champaign.

The units are intended to clarify formulae and legislation that affects local school districts and taxes.

The evening unit is scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Hoffman Estates Village Hall, 1200 N. Gannon Dr. The morning unit will be Sept. 16 at 9:15 a.m. at Christ the King Lutheran Church, 10 S. Walnut Ln., Schaumburg.

RAINY DAY. Kindergarten children brave the storm while trekking home from school Friday. Their only problem was keeping the rain off art projects and end-of-the-week show and tell offerings.

Hoffman Estates joins 4 in quest for lake water

Hoffman Estates officials have agreed to work with four other area communities to acquire Lake Michigan water.

The action by the village board this week commits support to an alliance among Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village to secure lake water from the City of Chicago.

The suburbs have said lake water will be necessary in the future to supplement existing well water supplies and provide for increasing water demands.

INDIVIDUAL applications for Lake Michigan allotments have been made by the communities to the state Dept. of Transportation, but the new group hopes to ensure a lake water supply by 1980 through the alliance.

The measure approved by Hoffman Estates officials calls for a commitment of both verbal and financial support to the project, although costs which may be involved are not known.

Trustee Jeanne M. Pavey questioned the money commitment, saying the village may find it cannot take part in the project if costs are excessive.

"What happens if we can't afford this?" she asked. "I'm in complete agreement with the concept, but this concerns me."

VILLAGE ATTY. George Knickerbocker said if the village could not afford its share of costs, it likely could drop out of the project. "The key word is 'reasonable' costs," he said.

Formal approval of the project is required from the participating villages so that the Chicago City Council can act on the matter, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said.

If the plan is approvtd by the city council, the five communities would be permitted to tie into Chicago water lines near O'Hare Airport. Lines would be constructed to transport the water to the suburbs.

The local scene

Bicentennial features flicks

A series of free "Great American" movies will be shown starting Sept. 27 as part of Hoffman Estates' Bicentennial celebration. Resident Ron Petke will present the movies, starting with "It Happened One Night," starring Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

The film will be presented at Hoffman Estates High School at 7:30 p.m.

Rotary plans pancake fest

A pancake breakfast to benefit the Twinbrook YMCA will be held Sept. 21 at Schaumburg Airport. The event, sponsored by the Schaumburg Rotary Club, will be held from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. Cost for all the pancakes you can eat will be $1.25 for children and $2 for adults.

Young Democrats to meet

A meeting for young Democrats will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in conjunction with the regular Schaumburg Township Democratic Organization meeting.

Persons 15 and older are invited to attend the meeting at the First Federal Savings and Loan of Schaumburg, 800 W. Higgins Rd.

Speakers will be Lori Vickery, president of the Young Democrats of DuPage County, and Ron Novak, a vice president of the Young Democrats of Illinois.

Rosedale Ln. teens net $85 for charity

Five youths from a block of Rosedale Lane, Hoffman Estates, collected $85 for musuclar dystrophy last week.

Kim Marie Katzbek, 16, of 201 Rosedale Ln., went door-to-door with her brothers, Kevin, 13, and Shawn, 9. Bob Rago, 15, of 204 Rosedale Ln., and his brother, Dan, 13, also collected for the charity.

This is the second year the group has collected money in connection with the national Labor Day Telethon.

'Bicycle laws need enforcing'

Rolling Meadows Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd, has critized local police enforcement of bicycle laws.

Ahrens said poor attendance this summer at Saturday bicycle "court" sessions is due to laxity on the part of police who are supposed to ticket violators.

Ahrens made the charge to Police Chief Lewis Case Thursday at a meeting of the city council's license, police, health and fire committee.

"THE POLICE have let the bicycle court dwindle to damn near nothing," Ahrens said. "It's a very good thing and you're just letting it die. There just isn't enough enforcement."

Case responded to the allegation by saying he has instructed officers to attempt to deal with violators in ways other than issuing citations. He also said he considered local cyclists to be more safety-conscious than bike riders elsewhere because of bicycle-safety schools conducted by the department each spring.

"We will make every effort to write more citations, but if a patrolman stops a kid and talks to him and explains the violations without forcing him to come in to court, I think we do as much good that way," he said.

Bicycle court was conducted every other Saturday this summer and "judge" Virgil Leanna said at the beginning of the season he usually saw 10 or 12 violators at each session. In the past two months, however, only one or two offenders have appeared and sometimes, none showed up.

"I'm UPSET ABOUT it," Leanna said. "I don't know if it's that the police are not writing tickets but nobody is showing up anymore," he said. "I'm about ready to say forget the whole thing."

Leanna added that he feels one factor in the situation is that violators who do not appear in court are not penalized.

"When a kid gets a citation he's just like on the honor system to come in," Leanna said. "Something has to be done to put some bite into the tickets."

Case said the citations are merely

William D. Ahrens

"invitations" to violators to attend the bicycle court. Some parents have refused to allow their child to appear, he said, and in one case, an attorney threatened to sue the city because of a citation.

"THE NUMBER of tickets the men write always peaks off at the end of the season," he commented. "To me, all this just shows that evidently our safety program is working."

According to Leanna, who has served as "judge" in the bicycle court since it was set up about seven years ago, the number of violators for the whole season was down from past summers.

Jim Hill decries celebrity status

by TONI GINNETTI

The conversation around the umbrella table is dominated by the familiar melodic, bass voice. Close your eyes and you could be listening to the radio.

Then the soft, muffled staccato of drops creeps into the early evening and Jim Hill — radio personality and weekend televison weatherman — sticks his hand out beyond the umbrella.

"Yep, it's wet. That's rain all right."

A trite, "Monday morning quarterback" prediction?

No, just a remark from Jim Hill, suburbanite, another guy whose evening of relaxation in the quiet expanses of the backyard just got washed out.

"LET'S GO inside." Like a child drawn by the Pied Piper, one heeds the velvet-throated words and follows his commanding 6-foot-plus frame up the stairs into the split-level, Hoffman Estates home.

Meet Jim Hill, 45, family man, father of four daughters, and local celebrity — even though he won't admit the latter.

"Someone asked me for my autograph about 10 years ago," he said.

"Don't believe him," wife Mary chimed. "People recognize him very often. Probably the most horrifying thing is when we're eating in a restaurant and people are pointing at us."

She related an incident which occurred just the other day when the Hills went to the aid of a woman whose dog had been struck by a car.

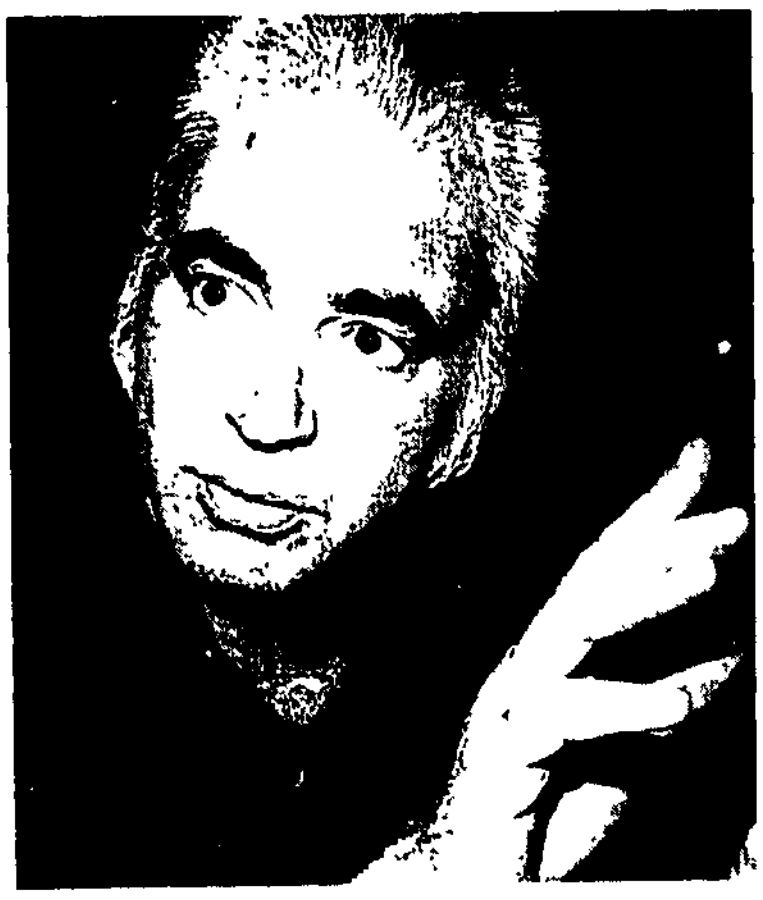
'Beacon Hill' and 'Phyllis' are among 28 new television shows this fall.



JIM HILL'S FACE is a familiar part of the Saturday news on WMAQ-TV. Hill is the station's weekend weatherman. At home in Hoffman Estates, Hill shuns the notion that he is a local celebrity.

TV's Hill dislikes 'suburbanite' tag

The hysterical woman stopped crying only for a moment when she looked up and saw Hill approaching.

"She looked up at me and said, 'My God, you're Jim Hill,' then she just started crying again," Hill said.

Hill dismissed the recognition with a shrug. "I never think about it. I don't feel anything about that kind of thing. I don't really enjoy that kind of thing. I enjoy human contact. That celebrity thing is unnecessary."

At home, Hill is not much different than most family men when helping himself to a drink, greeting his daughters' friends, lounging in the living room, and contending with family cat, Lily, for his kitchen chair.

BUT DON'T call Hill "a typical suburbanite." Although he's lived 15 years in his Hoffman Estates corner lot abode, a house nestled among trees and greenery, Hill begs off from the "suburbanite" tag.

"We don't live in the suburbs to get away from something. We came here to get to something. It wasn't to escape the city.

"I don't like the attitude of some suburbanites that they are better," Hill said. "The suburbs need the city."

When Hill, a transplanted Chattanooga, Tenn. native, came north to Chicago to join WMAQ radio and television 17 years ago, he and his family found in Hoffman Estates the type of community they were seeking.

Now, however, Hill said the city has "reached" the suburbs.

"When we came here it was cornfields," he explained. "Now drive down any street and there's the city. Everybody just accepts it."

LIFE AT HOME has changed somewhat this year for Hill, who in January fell victim to a programming change at WMAQ radio. He lost his show but retained his job as Saturday weatherman for the station's television outlet. Now most of his time is spent planning new careers, including that of a freelance commercial announcer.

As a weatherman, Hill's profession developed almost from a hobby.

"I came to feel that a guy out front in the public eye should know as much as he can about everything," he said. "Weather is just the first and foremost thing. Nothing else comes close because it affects everyone in terms of safety, future plans — even grocery store prices.

"I had wanted to do sports (at the Chattanooga station) and I was really licked that they didn't give it to me. But I felt that a radio announcer, if he's going to be a professional, should start with weather, so I chose that."

Though his forecasting is aired only on weekends, Hill's work recently was commended by the Chicago National Weather Service.

EXPOSURE as a media personality often brings requests for personal appearances, a practice Hill said he prebadget counselor.

fers to keep to a minimum unless a worthy cause is involved.

"I've turned down an awful lot of things, but I've never turned down anything if I think it can be of help to someone."

Hill may tell you he is not "a joiner" in local civic groups ("I was at one point involved in everything and I got awfully sick of it"), but after some family prodding he will admit his involvement in local groups — like the Northwest Suburban Boy Scouts, for which he serves as weather merit

He may tell you he doesn't believe in unlisted phone numbers, though both he and his wife admit their privacy isn't always as secure as they would like.

"I try to keep it private," Mary Hill said of their family's life. "It's not nearly as private as I would like. People don't realize how you feel."

BUT HILL SPOKE candidly about dealing with the public. "If people want to hear me swear, I don't care.

"Just because you're on television doesn't mean you're different," he said. "What is a celebrity? I don't see myself that way. I don't like the idea of me or anybody else, just because they're on the screen, having people look at them and say 'big person.'

"It's nice to be recognized. Everybody likes to be seen as a nice guy. But you can put Godzilla on television long enough and people will respond positively.

"That bothers me about television, that it sets you apart," he said. "The celebrity status is the thing I'm against. We're all in this together, this thing called life. It starts and it ends."

Des Plaines flea market set Sunday

More than 12,000 persons are expected to browse through the exhibits in downtown Des Plaines Sunday at the Des Plaines Historical Society's annual flea market.

Browsers will get a double treat because the Des Plaines Art Guild will stage its 20th annual Fall Fair. The fair will feature the works of more than 150 artists from three states.

The flea market will be centered at the historical society's musuem, 777 Lee St., while the art fair will set up shop at the parking lot at the corner of Lee and Ellinwood streets.

THE FLEA MARKET will attract nearly 130 exhibitors from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The art fair is scheduled to run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In addition to the art work at the fair and the various exhibitors at the flea market a number of contests will be staged.

Cake baking and decorating, husband and wife calling, balloon races, hog calling, a spelling bee and a pie-eating contest are all on tap for the afternoon.

A variety of refreshments and other entertainment also is planned.

The art fair will include a body painting exhibit for youngsters. A variety of designs will be offered for arms or legs.

MORE THAN $600 in cash prizes will be offered to the winning entries at the art fair.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners of the contests at the flea market. The finals of a number of the contests will be televised Sunday as part of WMAQ-TV's "Chicago Camera" program. The show will originate its 90-minute telecast from the country fair activities.

While there is no charge for admission to the fair or art festival, proceeds from the refreshment booths will benefit a number of local organizations including the historical society. The Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission will offer red, white and blue popsicles.

Aldrich Barrington Hills choice

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Capt. Jack Aldrich has emerged as the top contender for police chief of Barrington Hills.

Aldrich, a 23-year veteran of the Arlington Heights department, was termed the "top choice" by a member of the four-man selection committee.

"He would be a real asset to the village and to the job," said Schaumburg Police Chief Martin J. Conroy, selection committee member.

ALDRICH CONFIRMED he had met with three members of the committee, but declined to say how close he was to striking a contract agreement with Barrington Hills.

"I still have to talk with the village president (John C. Denton). He's on vacation now and won't be back until next week. I hope to talk with him then," Aldrich said.

He said salary and job benefits would have to be discussed with Denton when they meet.

"I can't say how close we are until I speak with him (Denton)," he said.

ALDRICH indicated a final decision may have to await action by the full village board of Barrington Hills.

Conroy said that Aldrich had most impressed other committee members of the 25 applicants seeking the position.

Other committee members trustees, Jack Butler and Alexander MacArthur, former chairman of the Illinois State Racing Board, were not available for comment Friday.

Conroy said the committee is advisory only and that Denton will make the final selection.

Aldrich joined the Arlington Heights department in 1952 and was promoted to sergeant in 1959. Promoted to captain in 1969, Adrich is in charge of field services which encompasses the traffic and patrol divisions. He also has experience in the detective and juvenile bureaus.

HE ACTED AS director of the Northwest Police Academy in Arlington Heights for seven years. The academy provides training for 20 suburban police departments.

Aldrich graduated from Northwestern University Traffic Institute in 1966.

Jack Aldrich

Aldrich, 50, is married and has 12 children.

A lieutenant has been acting police chief in Barrington Hills since the resignation in June of Ralph Hummel. Hummel is now serving as a special investigator until February at the rank of lieutenant.

Beating, kidnap victim nabbed for bond jump

The victim of an alleged kidnaping and beating Thursday was arrested by Arlington Heights police Friday on a bond forfeiture warrant.

Arrested was James W. Case, 20, of 938 A Jefferson Sq., Elk Grove Village. He is being held at County Jail pending a court appearance Sept. 19.

Police said Case failed to appear in court to answer charges after he was arrested in a drug case by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Two Arlington Heights men were arrested Thursday for allegedly kidnaping Case from his home and then beating him with a billy club in their apartment.

Charged with aggravated kidnaping, aggravated battery and unlawful restraint were Mark W. Beatty, 24, and Guy Crawford, 18, both of 2165 S. Tonne Rd. They are being held in lieu of $20,000 bond each.

Case told police he escaped from the apartment and found a ride to the Elk Grove Village police station. Elk Grove Village police took him to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and then notified Arlington Heights police.

A third person was questioned Friday about the kidnaping, but later was released without being charged.

Fire unit growth hinges on vote

Editor's Note: This is the second in a three-part series explaining the purpose and consequences of Tuesday's referendum to upgrade fire services in Palatine.

by DIANE MERMIGAS

The growth of the Palatine Fire Dept., from a rural to a metropolitan fire system, hinges upon the successful outcome of Tuesday's referendum to increase fire taxes and upgrade fire protection, Palatine officials say.

The rapid population growth and land development of the village and outlying unincorporated areas has demanded changes in the fire department that include increasing the full-time fire force to 40 men and the volunteer reserve force to 20 men.

The population of the areas served by the fire department was 12,000 in 1960, is currently 50,000 and is projected to reach 90,000 by 1990, Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said.

Apartment and commercial complexes, new schools and libraries, more highrise buildings and houses have resulted in an increased and more complex number of fire and paramedic calls, Harwig said.

PALATINE'S 14 full-time firemen serving 50,000 residents compares with 73 full-time firemen in Arlington Heights serving 72,000 residents, 83 in Des Plaines serving 58,000, 21 in Hoffman Estates serving 34,000, 53 in Mount Prospect serving 48,000, 18 in Rolling Meadows serving 19,800 and 42 in Schaumburg serving 37,800 residents, statistics compiled by the village show.

Palatine's current fire tax of 7.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation compares with Des Plaines with 17 cents, Arlington Heights with 18 cents, Hoffman Estates with 40 cents and Rolling Meadows with 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Palatine's rate will increase to 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation if the referendum is successful.

Palatine is attempting to "catch-up" with other suburban fire departments which is going to take both time and money, Harwig said.

The village board has said it is giving Palatine residents the option of having their taxes increased for improved fire services by conducting the referendum, which will be strictly advisory to the village board.

The board has the power, under homerule law, to increase fire taxes without voter approval. However, Republican trustees Robert J. Guss, Richard W. Fonte and Bryan P. Coughlin and independent trustee Fred H. Zajonc have said they will hold fast to their campaign platforms and not approve a tax increase that isn't sanctioned by the voters first.

THE BOARD could decide to use its current tax revenues for fire protection to pay only for fire services and either minimize or charge extra for paramedic services, which outnumber fire calls on a 3 to 1 ratio, some trustees have said.

But there is an obvious, more threatening consequence that could result without immediate action to upgrade the fire department, Harwig said.

Harwig said that the village cannot recruit enough volunteer firmen to provide adequate daytime fire protection and will have to begin relying Amanda E. Freeman, nee Wienecke, 84, a lifetime resident of Palatine, died Friday morning in the Maple Hill Nursing Home, Long Grove. Born in Palatine, Aug. 9, 1891, she was a member of St. Paul United Church of Christ Women's Guild, Palatine.

Preceded in death by her husband, Otto C., she is survived by two sons, Howard J. of Palatine and Robert F. Freeman of Roselle; a daughter, Mae (Edward) Troyke of Roselle; nine grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren. She was also preceded in death by two sisters, Esther Toppel and Lydia Wienecke.

Visitation is Sunday from 2 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Funeral service will be Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. James W. Errant Jr. of St. Paul United Church of Christ, Palatine. Burial will be in Palatine-Hillside Cemetery, Palatine.

Family requests in lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to St. Paul United Church of Christ, 144 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, 60067.

Deaths elsewhere

STEVEN G. KELLETT, 22, of Cary for three years, formerly of Rolling Meadows, apparently drowned Thursday night in a canoe accident in Fox River near the Ill. Rte. 62 bridge in Algonquin. Born in Elmhurst, Nov. 17, 1952, he was a 1970 graduate from William Fremd High School, Palatine.

Visitation is today from 7 to 9 p.m. in Warner and Flagg Funeral Home, 2 N. Williams St., Crystal Lake, and Sunday until 9 p.m.

Funeral service will be at 11 a.m. Monday in the funeral home. The Rev. Michael F. Green of Meadows Baptist Church, Rolling Meadows, will officiate. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

He is survived by his parents, George and Barbara, nee Johnson, Kellett of Cary; a brother, Scott of Mount Prospect; a sister, Kristin Kellett of Gary; paternal grandparents, Len and Gladys Kellett of Franklin Park, and maternal grandparents, Milton and Hazel Johnson of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Family requests memorial donations may be made to the National Wild Life Foundation.

more on full-time firemen.

The lack of weekend and daytime response, the sophistication of fire equipment and technique and an increasing number of calls makes it "imperative" for services to be upgraded and expanded immediately, he said.

The village administration has proposed a three-phase development of the fire department that would be completed by 1980. It provides for a total 59 full-time firemen, 20 volunteer firemen as a reserve force, the construction of two fire stations — one in the northern and another in the southern township areas, the addition of three engine companies and a new ambulance. The operating cost of such a system is projected to be $1.5 million.

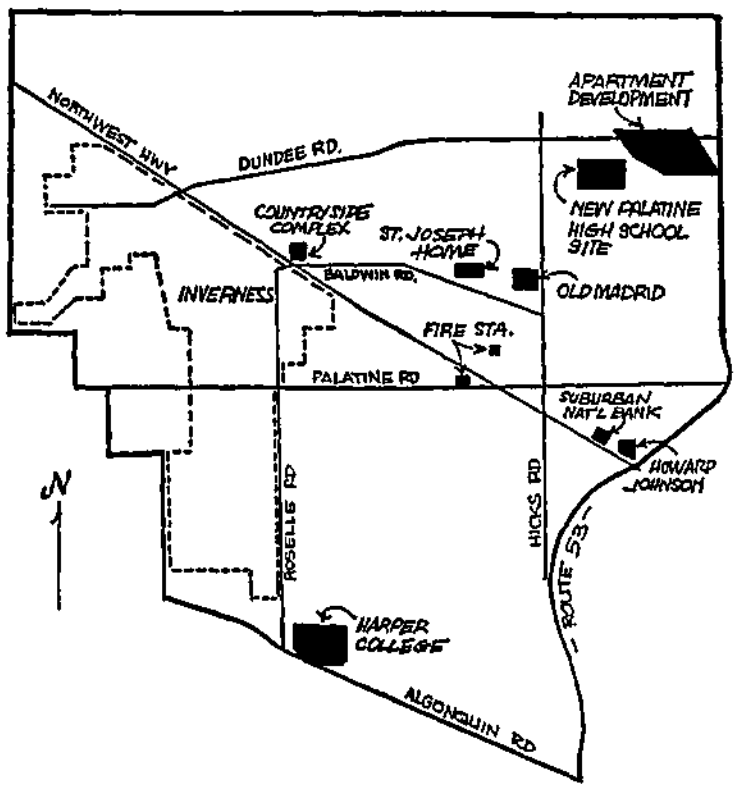
THE FINAL PHASE of development could be paid for with new funds provided through increases in assessed valuation or population in the areas served by the fire department, Harwig said.

"But the main thing now is getting the additional men we need. We can't even think about getting new buildings or equipment without getting the men first," he said.

"Our fire service is completely saturated. We are talking about our firemen being able to get to a heart attack victim at his home on time, to the scene of a car accident and to a fire before it is out of control. Without the first step in developing the department, which is proposed in the referendum, it may be impossible to do all of this," he said.

It can take firemen between five and 10 minutes to get to outlying areas in the rural fire protection district from the Slade Street fire station in downtown Palatine.

"That's a long time when you're dealing with saving a human life," he said.



FIFTY SQUARE MILES and 50,000 people live in the area protected by the Palatine Fire Dept. Although high-density high-rise apartment buildings are scattered throughout the area, both fire stations are in downtown Palatine.

S-curve widening won't be urged

by GERRY KERN

Widening of the S-curve on Ill Rte. 83 through Mount Prospect to improve traffic flow will not be recommended to the village board when it considers the problem Sept. 16

Trustee Leo Floros, chairman of the board's fire and police committee in charge of finding a solution to dangerous traffic conditions on the curve, Friday said widening proposals are too objectionable to too many village residents

Floros made his assessment after about 100 Mount Prospect residents showed up for a public hearing on the S-curve between Milburn Avenue and Sha-Bonee Trail Thursday night. Most of those residents disapproved of plans to widen the stretch of road by about seven feet.

INSTEAD, ONLY the installation of a traffic signal at Sha-Bonee Trail and Elmhurst Avenue and widening of that intersection will be recommended to the full board. The traffic signal is deemed necessary to provide a safe crossing for school children attending St Raymond, Lincoln and Lions Park schools

"I hope to have things ready for the Sept. 16 meeting so we can take some sort of action," Floros said. "As it stands now, we'll only have the traffic light, but that could be changed if the board thinks it's necessary."

The decision not to widen, the S-curve was a compromise solution which came out of Thursday's public hearing. Residents and village officials heard reprsentatives of the engineering firm of M/E, Alstat, March and Gulliou, Inc outline their plans to widen the route at the expense of most of the parkway space along Ill. Rte 83 and as many as 30 trees lining it and other side streets

Homeowners along the stretch between Milburn Avenue and Sha-Bonee believed such proposals would turn the already dangerous stretch into a "speedway," seriously endangering the lives of children attempting to reach school and nearby park facilities Most believed speeding would be encouraged, not discouraged

COMMITTEE MEMBER Edward B Rhea told the crowd he would vote for a light, but not the widening proposal, estimated to cost the state and village as much as $350,000. Trustee E F Richardson, also a committee member, agreed that a light somewhere along the route was needed

However, the placement of the signal is still a point of contention between village residents and officials.

A petition signed by 201 residents was presented to the committee, calling for a signal at Lincoln Street and Rte 83, instead of Sha-Bonee Trail John Thebault, 500 S I-Oka St., said he and the other 200 petitioners believe a crosswalk and light at that intersection would be much safer.

Floros did not agree

"THAT PROPOSAL was brought up before and most at the hearing violently objected to it then," said Floros "We cannot expect to have a safe crossing at that point without widening the curve. In fact, George March (a principal engineer with the consulting firm) said he'd pull out of the project if a light was installed at Lincoln without accompanying curve improvements."

HAPPY FOOTBALL FANS. The high school football season kicked off for many area teams Friday night, but only some of the fans left each game smiling. See sports for details on all games.

Jim Hill decries celebrity status

by TONI GINNETTI

The conversation around the umbrella table is dominated by the familiar melodic, bass voice. Close your eyes and you could be listening to the radio.

Then the soft, muffled staccato of drops creeps into the early evening and Jim Hill — radio personality and weekend televison weatherman — sticks his hand out beyond the umbrella

"Yep, it's wet. That's rain all right."

A trite, "Monday morning quarterback" prediction?

No, just a remark from Jim Hill, suburbanite, another guy whose evening of relaxation in the quiet expanses of the backyard just got washed out.

"LET'S GO inside" Like a child drawn by the Pied Piper, one heeds the velvet-throated words and follows his commanding 6-foot-plus frame up the stairs into the split-level, Hoffman Estates home.

Meet Jim Hill, 45, family man, father of four daughters, and local celebrity — even though he won't admit the latter.

"Someone asked me for my autograph about 10 years ago," he said

"Don't believe him," wife Mary chimed "People recognize him very often Probably the most horrifying thing is when we're eating in a restaurant and people are pointing at us"

She related an incident which occurred just the other day when the Hills went to the aid of a woman whose dog had been struck by a car.

Elite meet—playing polo at Oak Brook.

'Beacon Hill' and 'Phyllis' are among 28 new television shows this fall.

JIM HILL'S FACE is a familiar part of the Saturday news on WMAQ-TV. Hill is the station's weekend weatherman. At home in Hoffman Estates, Hill shuns the notion that he is a local celebrity.

TV's Hill dislikes 'suburbanite' tag

The hysterical woman stopped crying only for a moment when she looked up and saw Hill approaching.

"She looked up at me and said, 'My God, you're Jim Hill,' then she just started crying again," Hill said.

Hill dismissed the recognition with a shrug. "I never think about it. I don't feel anything about that kind of thing. I don't really enjoy that kind of thing. I enjoy human contact. That celebrity thing is unnecessary."

At home, Hill is not much different than most family men when helping himself to a drink, greeting his daughters' friends, lounging in the living room, and contending with family cat, Lily, for his kitchen chair.

BUT DON'T call Hill "a typical suburbanite." Although he's lived 15 years in his Hoffman Estates corner lot abode, a house nestled among trees and greenery, Hill begs off from the "suburbanite" tag.

"We don't live in the suburbs to get away from something. We came here to get to something. It wasn't to escape the city.

"I don't like the attitude of some suburbanites that they are better," Hill said. "The suburbs need the city."

When Hill, a transplanted Chattanooga, Tenn. native, came north to Chicago to join WMAQ radio and television 17 years ago, he and his family found in Hoffman Estates the type of community they were seeking.

Now, however, Hill said the city has "reached" the suburbs.

"When we came here it was cornfields," he explained. "Now drive down any street and there's the city. Everybody just accepts it."

LIFE AT HOME has changed somewhat this year for Hill, who in January fell victim to a programming change at WMAQ radio. He lost his show but retained his job as Saturday weatherman for the station's television outlet. Now most of his time is spent planning new careers, including that of a freelance commercial announcer.

As a weatherman, Hill's profession developed almost from a hobby.

"I came to feel that a guy out front in the public eye should know as much as he can about everything," he said. "Weather is just the first and foremost thing. Nothing else comes close because it affects everyone in terms of safety, future plans — even grocery store prices.

"I had wanted to do sports (at the Chattanooga station) and I was really ticked that they didn't give it to me. But I felt that a radio announcer, if he's going to be a professional, should start with weather, so I chose that."

Though his forecasting is aired only on weekends, Hill's work recently was commended by the Chicago National Weather Service.

EXPOSURE as a media personality often brings requests for personal appearances, a practice Hill said he prebudget counselor.

fers to keep to a minimum unless a worthy cause is involved.

"I've turned down an awful lot of things, but I've never turned down anything if I think it can be of help to someone."

Hill may tell you he is not "a joiner" in local civic groups ("I was at one point involved in everything and I got awfully sick of it"), but after some family prodding he will admit his involvement in local groups — like the Northwest Suburban Boy Scouts, for which he serves as weather merit

He may tell you he doesn't believe in unlisted phone numbers, though both he and his wife admit their privacy isn't always as secure as they would like.

"I try to keep it private," Mary Hill said of their family's life. "It's not nearly as private as I would like. People don't realize how you feel."

BUT HILL SPOKE candidly about dealing with the public. "If people want to hear me swear, I don't care.

"Just because you're on television doesn't mean you're different," he said. "What is a celebrity? I don't see myself that way. I don't like the idea of me or anybody else, just because they're on the screen, having people look at them and say 'big person.'

"It's nice to be recognized. Everybody likes to be seen as a nice guy. But you can put Godzilla on television long enough and people will respond positively.

"That bothers me about television, that it sets you apart," he said. "The celebrity status is the thing I'm against. We're all in this together, this thing called life. It starts and it ends."

Teachers, Dist. 26 reach pact accord

by MARILYN McDONALD

Teachers and board members in River Trails Dist. 26 have reached a tentative contract settlement for 1975-76.

Agreement was reached Thursday night during the fifth negotiating session held this year. Although neither side will release terms of the final agreement, both say they are pleased with the settlement.

"We were really pleased with the attitude that existed among teachers and board members," said Sylvia Lurie, board member and negotiator. "Things went pretty well, considering the financial circumstances we are under."

THE DIST. 26 school board approved a $4.6 million budget for 1975-76 last week that will result in a $166,000 deficit at the end of the year. The budget provided for a 7 per cent hike in teachers' financial benefits, said Ralph Beaudoin, district business manager.

"I think negotiations were very positive," said Gary Rathgeber, president of the River Trails Education Assn. union and spokesman for the negotiating team. "We're pleased with the settlement."

Dist. 26 settled two previous contracts in the spring after just a few negotiating sessions. Rathgeber said that delaying this year's final settlement until the fall helped teachers to better understand the district's financial picture.

"I THINK the teachers understood what the district's finances were, and the board knew them better too," Rathgeber said.

Teachers will meet Tuesday afternoon at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, to vote on the tentative contract. Final wording will be drawn up by both sides Thursday.

Although the contract may not be in final form for signatures by the Sept. 15 school board meeting, William Haase, chief board negotiator, said members at least will discuss the settlement at that time.

RAINY DAY. Kindergarten children brave the storm while trekking home from school Friday. Their only problem was keeping the rain off art projects and end-of-the-week show and tell offerings.

Dist. 23, teachers near accord

by MARILYN McDONALD

Teachers and board members in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 are predicting a contract settlement within the next few weeks.

Both sides met Thursday night, settling one more benefit item and making progress on several other items, said Vincent Battaglia, board member and spokesman for the board negotiating team.

"Last night, we settled compensation for professional dues outside of union dues," Battaglia said. The district previously reimbursed teachers up to $10 annually for professional organization dues. Now, they will reimburse up to $15 in dues other than union dues.

"We're now down to seven items. If everything goes well, we can cut the list in half or more next week," Battaglia said.

KENNETH BATES, spokesman for the union negotiating team, described Thursday's talks as "very friendly." Bates said the board team has increased their combined financial package for merit and across-the-board raises to a 4½ per cent hike, to be divided at the teachers' discretion. Bates said the board previously had offered a total 3 per cent hike in the financial package.

"Our financial request has come down," Bates added. "Teachers are now asking a 12½ per cent increase in the financial package, down from a previous 13½ per cent request, Bates said.

Bates said the two sides also agreed on the way to approach settling final salary items. Bates said teachers will consider dropping requests for cost-of-living raises in exchange for concessions on other items.

Teachers and board members have been meeting since February to settle financial items in the second year of a two-year contract. Talks went into impasse July 17 after the board presented a counter proposal with several concessions but teachers made little movement in their counter-proposal. The breakdown was resolved a month later after both sides went through a series of impasse procedure meetings and decided they could continue meeting without a mediator.

Items settled thus far in contract talks include:

- Extra duty and summer school pay increases. Teachers will receive a 10 per cent raise in extra duty and summer school pay.
- Sick leave accumulation. Teachers may now accumulate up to 135 days of sick leave rather than 120 days as previously allowed.
- Professional travel allocation. Teachers now have a total of $1,500 to spend annually for trips related to professional duties. That same amount was allocated last year, but district officials spent about $500 of it to pay substitute teachers.

Both sides will negotiate again Thursday.

Opening to feature WGN stars

A variety of WGN personalities will be on hand Sept. 21 for the grand opening of the Mount Prospect State Bank's six-story facility at Maple Street and Busse Avenue.

Roy Leonard will serve as master of ceremonies for the festivities, which will begin at 1 p.m. He is known for his "Roy Leonard Show," heard weekdays and Saturdays.

Weatherman Harry Volkman will be among those at the grand opening who will interview people and give away prizes. Volkman's umbrella will be given away as a special prize at the grand opening.

Volkman forecasts the area's weather on the "Jack Taylor and News Nine" team at 10 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. He also can be heard doing special weather reports on "The Wally Phillips Show" on WGN radio from 5:30 to 10 a.m.

Ned Locke, longtime ringmaster on "Bozo's Circus," also will be on hand to welcome visitors and pass out prizes. He will bring with him other entertaining acts, including magician Ken Diamond and Louise, Martin Lamberti Jr. and Willie Necker and his six famous dalmatians.

The Guardsman Drum and Bugle Corps and the Prospect High School Jazz Band also will perform.
